Armed Forces Day Observed Across U. S.

Military Shows Off Powerful New Weapons

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—The United States put its military men and machines on display today pointing up the "power for peace" theme of Armed Forces Day.

All across the nation, military, air and naval bases were thrown open to the public. In speeches far and wide, Pentagon officials—uniformed and civilian — bore down on the need for strong defenses.

Center of this 8th annual armed forces observance was in the nation's capital and nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Nearly 10,000 troops of all the services, together with veterans and other groups, swung down flag-bedecked Constitution avenue in bright sunshine.

In the reviewing stand were Secretary of Defense Wilson and other high officials. Also watching the parade were many diplomats—including uniformed officers attached to Iron Curtain legations.

At Andrews Air Force Base, just outside the city, an estimated 100,000 persons thronged through the gates to get a look at samples of America's most advanced missile and other weapons. Base police said they anticipated a total of about 250,000 by the end of this first of two "open house" days.

The open house privileges extended to any Communist military attaches who cared to come. U.S. officers said they understood a number of the Red military men planned to take advantage of the opportunity to examine the huge display of American fighting gear.

Some of the weapons lined up for inspection included models so new they are just going into production.

There was the Bomarc, a supersonic missile designed to knock down enemy bombers at long range. Nearby stood the "Rascal," a rocket-powered missile designed for use by American heavy bombers against enemy targets.

Also an exhibit was the Army's Redstone ballistic missile. This weapon is capable of carrying a nuclear warhead 200 miles and is regarded as the forerunner of the Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile. The IRBM, still in the development stage, would have a range of 1,500 miles.

Polish Cardinal Gets Symbolic Hat From Pope

VATICAN CITY, May 18 (UP)—Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski of Poland today received from Pope Pius XII the red hat symbolic of his willingness to "shed blood" for the faith in his Communist homeland.

The ceremony coincided with publication of a Papal encyclical exhorting all persecuted Catholics, particularly those in Poland, to remain steadfast and be mindful of a sainted Polish priest who died defending his religion against Cossack invaders from Russia 300 years ago.

Both the investiture of the Cardinal and the encyclical served as reminders that the Roman Catholic Church had suffered at the hands of its enemies before in eastern Europe and had ultimately conquered them.

Delayed Four Years

The brief and private Vatican ceremony had been delayed four years and four months by Communist persecution of the Cardinal, spiritual leader of 25 million Catholics in overwhelmingly Catholic Poland.

The Polish prelate, who came to the Vatican this week under an agreement with the new "liberal" Polish regime of Wlydslaw Gomulka, entered the hall of the little throne and approached the seated Pontiff, while Vatican officials and 30 Polish clercis, most of them exiles, stood watching.

The Cardinal bowed thrice and then knelt to kiss the Pope's silken slipper and his hand as a symbol of obedience to the church. Both men embraced with "the kiss of peace."

"Receive this red cap, insignia of the singular dignity of the Cardinalate," he intoned in Latin.

"It signifies that for the exaltation of the holy faith, for the peace and quiet of Christian people and the expansion and conservation of the sacrosanct Roman Church, you must show yourself intrepid even unto death and the shedding of blood."

The Pope placed another symbol, the ring, on the right hand of Cardinal Wyszynski.

BOB FALLIN

Ruston Man, Bob Fallin, Is JC Head

Bob Fallin of Ruston captured the presidency of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce at the group's state convention here yesterday, edging out candidate Tom Ruffin of Shreveport.

D. C. Bernhardt of Monroe and Bill Chapman of Bastrop were elected as regional vice-presidents for the north region, along with Jim Putnam of Mansfield.

Others Named

Other regional vice - presidents are: central region, Ed Ware of Alexandria; Southwest region, Bill Jordan; South Central region Jim White; and Southeast veeps elected were Ernest Gibson of Bogalusa; Al Robichaux, o Thibodaux; and Ralph Dwyer of New Orleans.

In the state finals of the Speak-Up contest, Harold Whiteside of Shreveport captured first place. Bob Fallin, the new president placed second and Jack Parker of New Orleans was third.

At the banquet last night the following awards were presented: Outstanding new jaycee: R. E. "Gene" Turner of Bastrop. Outstanding state committee chairman, Bob Fallin of Ruston. Harry Pell of Monroe was selected as the outstanding contributor and the outstanding national director award went to Tom Ruffin of Shreveport.

Curb On $500 Civil Service Jobs Is Sought

BATON ROUGE, May 18 (AP)—Rep. Nick Cefalu said today an attempt will be made in the fiscal Legislature to trim civil service in order to build support for a real test in 1958.

A constitutional proposal will be introduced, either tomorrow night or Monday, he said, to remove civil service protection from any state job paying $500 monthly or more.

Key sponsors are Reps. Walter Chachere, Franklin Parish, and Cefalu, veteran Tangipahoa Parish representative.

Civil service, established statewide in 1952 under a rival administration for some 26,000 workers, has gained acceptance by the people.

But it continues under attack from foes. Cefalu led an unsuccessful raid against civil service last year.

The 30-day fiscal Legislature returns for its second week when the House resumes work in a night session Sunday starting at 8 p.m. The Senate returns from a five - day holiday at 7 p.m. Monday. Senators haven't anything to do until the House acts.

Owaits Vote

In the House, the first bill up for floor passage is the $546,540 appropriation for legislative expenses. Rep. Gilbert Faulk of Ouachita Parish has a resolution awaiting a floor vote which would forbid state agencies accepting federal aid in school construction if there are any strings attached.

The really big issue is Gov Earl Long's record 411-million-dollar general appropriations bill. It provides state operating expenses as part of a record 599 million dollars in total spending for the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

The House Appropriations Committee starts hearing Monday, with the administration in control but with attacks already being

NEAR MANIFEST

2 Brothers Drown In Swollen Creek

MANIFEST (Special)—Two Manifest brothers drowned shortly after dawn Saturday in a swollen, stagnant creek near here as one attempted to save the other. They were identified as Floyd Hobbs, 28, and Robert Hobbs, 31, both of near Manifest. The tragedy climaxed an all-night fishing trip.

Dr. C. F. Passman, Catahoula parish coroner, gave a verdict of accidental drowning.

Bodies Recovered

The bodies were recovered by Catahoula parish deputy Sheriff J. W. Adams at 8:20 a.m. Members of the sheriff's department using grappling hooks located the bodies, close to the spot where they went down, in the Bushley creek one mile south of Manifest. Both bodies were found within a few minutes of each other in 20 feet of water about three hours after the tragedy occurred.

The Hobbs brothers had taken in their throw lines from the creek, and started to leave when their car stuck in mud on the creek bank. They went to a near-by house and asked Leon Franklin to help them get the car out.

According to Deputy Max Good, Robert plunged into Bushley creek after Floyd had fallen into the dead backwaters in attempting to remove their car from a bog.

He said Floyd was trying to swim the creek, but dropped out of sight before Robert dived to his rescue.

Franklin was an eye witness. He told deputies that Floyd started for the opposite side of the creek after falling from the bank. Floyd was in the middle of the creek when he went under.

Good Swimmers

Both were described as good swimmers and were said to have fished the creek often. They were employed by a gravel company.

This was the first drowning of the year in Catahoula parish where many occur every year.

Franklin, who had no phone, attempted to notify the sheriff's office, from the home of A. G. Girlinghouse, who lived nearly two miles from the scene, but ran into phone line trouble. Residents in the Jonesville area also stated that phones on the Harrisonburg circuit were out of order Saturday morning. He finally was able to make contact with the sheriff at 6:50 a.m.

Sheriff George McGee sent for a rescue truck from Natchez, which is about 40 miles from the drowning location, but the bodies were found before the truck arrived, and officials radioed to Vidalia to halt the truck there and tell the driver that revival effort was useless.

The bodies were taken to Young' Funeral Home in Ferriday. Funeral arrangements were incom-

Japan Builds Up Case On 'The Somagahara Incident'

TOKYO, May 18 (AP)—Japan built up her case today in a tug of war with the United States over "The Somagahara Incident" -the fatal shooting of a Japanese woman hunting scrap metal on a U.S. military firing range.

The office of the Maebashi procurator (district attorney) indicted S.3C. William S. Girard of Ottawa, Ill., on a charge of inflicting bodily injury resulting in death. Conviction might entail a sentence of from 2 to 15 years in prison if the Japanese gain custody of him

The woman was Mrs. Naka Sakai, 46. She was killed by an empty cartridge case propelled from a grenade launcher. It was fired after she and several other women, admittedly trespassing in quest of junk they could sell, had surged on the range at Somagahara Village north of Tokyo during a rest period in firing Jan. 30 and ignored warnings to leave.

Asst. Prosecutor Kakuichi Fujimoto said Girard would remain in American custody during the trial, the date for which is still to be set.

By order of Secretary of Defense Wilson, the U.S. Far East Command held off surrender of the 22-year-old soldier to Japanese authorities. Wilson's order, cabled from Washington, Friday, called for "complete review of the matter."

This overruled a decision of the government pressure and a wave of anti-American feeling in this island nation—to turn Girard over for trial despite the U.S.-Japan status of forces agreement that gives local courts jurisdiction only over off-duty, off-base offenses of American military personnel.

Ike's Farm Not Making Money

INDIANAPOLIS, May 18 (AP) — President Eisenhower's farm near Gettysburg, Pa., "isn't making any money," his farm manager said today.

"He's buying cattle now and not selling any," explained Brig. Gen. Arthur S. Nevins, who came to Indiana to visit several large farms.

Nivens said there are 20 head of Angus cattle on the President's 190-acre farm.

Hail Adds To Misery In Texas

By UNITED PRESS

Hailstones so thick that they left the ground white between Dalhart and Clayton on the Texas Panhandle fell late Saturday on the heels of a severe weather warning by the U.S. Weather Bureau.

The severe warning expired at 8 p.m. CST, for eastern and southern Arkansas, northwest Louisiana and extreme northeast Texas and northwest Mississippi.

Although there were no new tornadoes reported in the state Saturday, thunderstorms continued, causing flash flooding in sections of San Antonio and in the Texas Hill country. An inch of rain pelted Houston and winds of 50 miles per hour struck Galveston.

Clouds Will Return

The weather bureau said showers will gradually move out of east Texas Saturday night but clouds will return over all except the extreme west portion of the state by Sunday morning.

Heaviest rainfall during the 24 hours ending at 6:30 p.m. Saturday night was the 4.04 inches at Wichita Falls where new warnings were issued for flooding along the Wichita River and Holliday creek.

Other rainfall amounts included 3.05 inches at Victoria, Abilene 1.92, Austin 1.58, Brownsville .42, College Station .22, Childress .83, Corpus Christi .58, Dallas .46, Del Rio 1.22, Fort Worth .42, Galveston .48, Houston .40, Laredo .03, Lubbock .07, Lufkin .80, Midland .29, Mineral Wells 1.63, San Angelo 1.14, San Antonio 1.46 and Waco .21.

Texas Portion

Heavy new rains hit the San Antonio area with a three-inch cloudburst reported at Leon Springs, 20 miles northwest of San Antonio.

The Leon, Alazan and Martinez creeks ran bankful and over in some places. The Martinez and Alazan Creeks run into west San Antonio where they caused flash flooding on at least three different times in April. Some homes were flooded again today.

Meanwhile, the Wichita Falls weather bureau reported that the Wichita River was gauged at 13.86 feet Saturday and will continue to rise until a stage of 20 to 21 feet is reached Sunday afternoon. Flood stage is 18 feet.

The river stage is tentative because of water being released from Lake Kempt, the bureau said.

Mayor Cancels His Request For Road Plan Delay

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard yesterday withdrew his request made earlier this month that final approval of the federal interstate highway through the Twin Cities be delayed, and at the same time accused state and federal officials of issuing contradicting information concerning the manner in which the project would be handled.

Howard's action followed a request made Friday by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce that planning be resumed. The board made the request after they heard a lengthy address by Wayne Huckaby, district engineer for the state Department of Highways.

Many Confused

"During the last few days, it has become apparent," the Mayor said, "that many of our citizens are thoroughly confused as to the location of the elevated superhighway scheduled to come through Monroe. Many have expressed keen interest in the project.

"I must confess that I can understand the reason for some of this confusion," he added, "for I have found that a great deal of information concerning this project has not been made public."

He pointed out that he had asked for further study to be made "in order that the citizens of Monroe might determine the effect the highway might have upon our future growth and development. I requested that final approval of the route be withheld until the city could make such a study," he said.

"I made this request," he ex-

ANXIOUS TO GO HOME

Benny Develops Mild Pneumonia

MANORVILLE, N. Y., May 18 (AP)—Benny Hooper, the "boy in the well," begged to go home from the hospital today but his doctor said "a little spot of pneumonia" would keep him there a while.

The pneumonia report came after blond, blue-eyed Benny, 7, had been pronounced in good condition despite 24 gruelling hours trapped 24 feet down a freshly dug well.

At Bayview General Hospital in nearby Mastic Beach, Long Island, Dr. Joseph H. Kris told newsmen that X-rays had shown a touch of pneumonia on the boy's right lung.

Pneumonia had been feared ever since the lad was pulled from the sand last night, stiff and cold but still alive.

Dr. Kris said the boy was being kept in an oxygen tent tonight and needed quiet.

Earlier the boy had been lively and ate his first solid food—a bowl of cereal—and reminded his father, truck driver Benjamin Sr., that he wanted a toy automobile for his birthday in July.

"In the next three or four days he should be all over it (the pneu-

Round-The-Clock Efforts To Rescue Entombed Miner

LYKENS, Pa., May 18 (AP)—Rescue workers in their second day of round-the-clock digging labored today to free a 34-year-old father of three, buried 25 feet underground by a mine cave-in.

David Snyder was trapped in an independent mine on Short Mountain, one mile west of this eastern Pennsylvania anthracite community yesterday morning. The only communication between the entombed man and the surface was late yesterday afternoon via tapping with a hammer.

Some 40 rescue workers were digging out about a ton and half of debris every two hours, not knowing whether Snyder was alive. The scene of the dramatic rescue operation is at the western end of Short Mountain, a bleak, desolate area about a mile from where three Lykens men were killed in a coal slide 23 years ago.

At 6 p.m. State Mine Inspector Francis O'Connor estimated it would take "at least another six to eight hours to reach the area" where the victim is believed to be entombed.

Veteran miners among the sober faced crowd of about 75 friends and neighbors maintaining a silent vigil at the scene agreed it was "highly improbable" Snyder would be found alive.

The only chance of his surviving, they explained, hinged on his having access to air via one of the several shafts to abandoned veins in the vicinity.

The men worked through the night under lights from a truck of the Schuylkill County Independent Miner's Breakermen and Truckers Assn., a group of independent miners. The lights operated from a generator in the truck. A rescue vehicle with mine lamps, safety lamps, pick axes, blankets, rope, first aid equipment, including a resuscitator, and a coffee urn, stood to one side.

Aiding in the digging was Snyder's brother, LeRoy, who was operating the hoisting engine in the mine shaft when the cave in occurred.

The rescue workers are mostly fellow miners, aided and directed by state police, state and federal mine inspectors.

Whole State Virtually Under Water

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 18 (AP)—Oklahomans by the thousands, from the metropolitan city of Tulsa in the northeast to farmers along the Washita River in the south, evacuated their homes tonight as major flooding was reported in virtually all sections.

Tulsa, Oklahoma's second largest city, was warned it can expect the worst flood in history as the rain - swollen Arkansas rolled downstream. Tulsa has a population of 240,000.

Already brimful and rising steadily, the river is expected to crest at Tulsa tomorrow after receiving a heavy load of water from the overflowing Cimarron River where the two converge at Keystone 30 miles west of Tulsa.

Oklahoma's fatalities for the three days of storms climbed to nine today with the recovery of the body of Roland Bullock, 39, a farmer near Lindsay.

He and his wife were riding in a pickup truck when a bridge over a creek collapsed. The couple was thrown into the surging waters.

Bullock was attempting to help his wife but he was carried away. She later was saved after clinging to debris.

There wasn't a major highway in the state that could be traveled without washouts. Three major bridges and dozens of smaller ones were washed away.

Train service was disrupted by washed out rails. Buses also were slowed down or halted.

As much as nine inches of rain fell in the south central section of the state overnight.

The Washita River was out of its banks in the south central sections, from Lindsay where the nine inches fell, to Lake Texoma in the southeast.

The highway patrol said it was warning property owners and residents along the Washita to be on the alert for momentary evacuation. Dozens of persons already had abandoned their homes.

Some lowlands in the Tulsa area were flooded. The river experts warned residents on both sides of the Arkansas they can expect a severe flood when the crest hits tomorrow.

Mother Drops Son To Death In Deep Well

LYKENS, Pa., May 18 (UP)—A 21-year-old mother dropped her 2-year-old son to his death in a 70-foot well today because her children "irritated" her, police said.

The body of the child, Michael Schmink, was found in 10-feet of water after his sister, Vickie, 4, ran into the house and told her grandmother,, Mrs. Anna R. Schmink, 51, that "Carrie threw Mike into the well," authorities said. An autopsy was ordered to determine the cause of death.

The mother Mrs. Carrie Schmink, who told police she had been hospitalized for mental illness, was held without bail on a murder charge by Justice of the Peace Charles W. Henninger. She was committed to Dauphin County Prison at Harrisburg.

State police Sgt. Joseph Pochyba said Mrs. Schmink denied throwing Michael into the well but quoted her that, "I wouldn't throw him in again."

launched to stretch or strain the budget.

Long's leaders sharply warned there is no more money.

Gov. Long, questioned directly, said he has no plans "at this time" to go before the House committee to speak for his money bill.

The administration tried to edge the bill through untouched, but friction developed quickly. Some members, annoyed at the administration's tight grip on the state pocketbook, insisted it was their budget.

Set Wednesday

State Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, with his own Education Department budget slashed under current expenses, asked a hearing. It was set here next Wednesday.

House Speaker Robert Angelle, Long's House voice, said after two or three department heads are heard by the committee and discover it won't budge with the budget, "others wanting to appear may change their minds and not try.

"No appointed department head should come before that committee," the speaker insisted. "The governor has prepared their budgets. Elected officials are another matter, however."

But committee members already have opened the way for appearances of Public Welfare Commissioner Mary Evelyn Parker, the Wildlife and Fisheries Department, State Forestry Commission, Department of Occupational Standards, Natchitoches Trade School, State Public Service Commission, Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission and the state insurance commissioner. Administration expense in the Public Welfare Department, for instance, was cut more than $500,000.

Under constitutional law, only fiscal and budget bills can be considered in this session, second of its kind in state history. Gov. Long's leaders have joined forces with traditional anti-Longs to bar an open-door session.

Any lawmaker, however, under the same law can gain introduction of nonfiscal legislation with a three-fourths majority vote.

This is what Cefalu and Chachere may try, although they didn't mention it. The speaker said he believes that is the action they will seek.

Angelle said if the anti - civil service proposal ever reached the House Screening Committee, which decides whether legislation is fiscal or nonfiscal, "it will be rejected."

"What I think they will do is ask immediately for a floor vote, in an attempt to gain a three-fourths majority for introducion," the speaker added.

In such a floor vote, Cefalu may find the House reaction he seeks.

cialism and the communistic system.

Wiesman explained that he was 12-year-old when Hitler came to power in Germany.

"So you might say that I spent my juvenile and some adult years under a rather one-sided political development," the former guided missile specialist said.

Press Controlled

"Press services were government controlled, radio stations government owned, school systems and teachers were influenced by political pressure and even history books re-written to suit the political philosophy of the government," he stated.

"If you don't know what freedom and independence is like, how can you ever miss it?," Weisman asked.

Weisman, who was born in Dortmurd, West Germany and was educated in the field of industrial management and worked for the German gasoline corporation, said civic, business and professional organizations are a natural supplement to the various levels of government.

He said that the individual in the United States becomes a part of the government and that the citizen should do his part by voting — not just to enjoy the privilege of voting but by expressing his views.

"This, ladies and gentlemen, is something millions in this world are dreaming about and hoping for," he stated. "And we have it right here."

Weisman, who came to the United States with a group of V-2 guided missile specialists in 1945, said an alarming thing in the United States was that a great number of citizens enjoy all the privileges without realizing the duties of a citizen in a "democracy such as ours."

"The duties involved in being a good citizen can be stated in one simple sentence: active participation in all the actions of governments on all levels," Weisman stated.

He said that to be a good citizen the invididual must be informed, that he must evaluate what he has learned and that he must express himself in sober and plain language toward elected or appointed officials.

A former president of the Huntsville Jaycees, Weisman advocated teaching the principles of communism "so that our children will know what they are fighting."

"You and I have to assume our full share of public responsibility," he stated. "Let us exercise this privilege by remembering the words of the philosopher, Goethe, who more than 150 years ago reminded free men of their possible fate when he said that 'None are more hopelessly enslaved than those who falsely believe they are free.'" plained, "while under the impression that the proposed route had not been settled upon and that the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads would not be requested by the State Department of Highways to approve a location until a public hearing had been held."

Already Approved

Mayor Howard then revealed a letter he received last week from G. M. Williams, assistant commissioner for engineering for the Bureau of Public Roads in Washington, D. C. The Mayor said, "The letter plainly states that the location of the elevated highway through the south portion of Monroe has already been approved by the Department of Public Works."

He referred to statements made at a public hearing held in court house here May 8, in which R. B. Richardson, director of the Louisiana Department of Highways, pledged that the project would not be submitted for federal approval until after a public hearing. J. S. Logan, division engineer for the Bureau of Public Roads, reiterated Richardson's statement at the hearing.

Letter Dated May 8

Williams' letter, dated May 8, reads in part, "The State, after engineering and economic studies, has selected a location for the Interstate highway which extends through the southern portion of Monroe. The location was approved by Public Roads on the basis that it would serve the purpose of the designated route, could be developed to the standards justified for these important highways and would provide adequate service for the ever-increasing volume of traffic."

The letter then made the first published mention of a secondary route on the north side of the Twin Cities. It read, "The State has included in its current program of projects involving federal - aid funds, Project I-542(2), consisting of preliminary engineering, that is, surveys and preparation of plans for the Interstate highway extending through the city and also the Interstate highway extending around Monroe and West Monroe to the north."

Mayor Howard said, "In view of these facts and because I have no desire to cause any unreasonable delay in the construction of this highway, and in a spirit of cooperation, I hereby withdraw my request for time to have a city planner make the study which I still feel should be made."

The Mayor then indicated he would place all responsibility for any future complications resulting from the selected location directly upon the officials of the Highway Department.

"In my opinion," he said, "the construction of the elevated highway just five blocks from the center of our city will call for new streets, the widening of some existing streets, and probably an overpass. Should this occur, this would place an extra heavy burden upon the city of Monroe.

"I therefore ask the State Department to take these into consideration in its planning and feel that they will want to accept their share of responsibility for these improvements should the items I have mentioned become necessary in order to handle the traffic generated by this location.

"I want to again assure the people of Monroe and the officials of the State Highway Department that my action in this matter has been one of complete sincerity acting in what I honestly believed to be in the best interest of our city and it is in this same spirit that I issue this statement."

monia)," the doctor said later tonight.

Dr. Kris said he planned to have an internal specialist check Benny over, probably tomorrow, and predicted the boy will be in the hospital a week or 10 days.

He was suffering from a soreness in one shoulder, but Dr. Kris said X-rays showed there were no broken bones. Kris kept a 24-hour vigil during the rescue efforts at the pit.

Sam Woodson, 39, Negro construction worker who reached the boy first through a rescue tunnel, had told the doctor he heard something snap as he pulled the boy out. The shoulder may have been hurt then.

The doctor earlier said the boy was "hungry, and that's always a good sign in a boy."

"He's a good boy. He doesn't complain. He does what we tell him to."

At the hospital the boy told his father how he fell into the well.

"I was playing with Michael (a friend) and we were running. I told him I wanted to see if I could jump over the hole.

I jumped and I fell.

"I don't remember much about what happened then except it got dark and I got scared."

The exhausted parents spent the night at the hospital.

The mother, Borghild, 30, later told newsmen that during the tormented hours waiting to learn whether the boy could be saved, she had tried to adjust herself to the possibility he might be dead.

"I was trying to picture him as being dead and to build myself up to the fact that he was, and how to cope with it," she said.

She slept under sedation in the boy's hospital room and awakened at about 9:30 a.m.

Then she tiptoed to the boy's bed, leaned over, smiled and said:

"This is Mommy."

"Hello Mommy," the boy replied.

"Hello, Baby," she said.

The father, overjoyed and excited at the boy's rescue, got little sleep. He talked with doctors, nurses and newsmen, and finally was sent home after daybreak to get some rest.

The mother stayed on at the hospital.

The rescue effort was one of exasperating frustrations until shortly before it succeeded.

First, the father had lowered a rope, hoping the boy could grasp it and then be pulled out of the shaft, scarcely a foot in diameter.

Then firemen lowered a grappling hook but it tore through the boy's red poplin jacket.

Next came the gigantic job of digging a parallel vertical shaft, 30 feet across the top and about 25 feet deep, so a tunnel could be built from the bottom to the boy' position in the well.

The rescuers could not work from atop the well for fear of knocking down sand and soil that would suffocate the boy. Even so, in the latter stages, the boy was covered by sand, apparently a very thin layer.

Time after time sandslides wiped out all progress in the tunneling efforts.

Then, late yesterday afternoon, atomic workers arrived from the Brookhaven National Laboratory with gamma ray shields which turned the trick.

The shields, cylinders about four feet in diameter, fitted one within another like rings on a collapsible metal cup.

One ring was driven horizontally through the sand toward the well. The sand was scooped out. Then a smaller ring was pushed through the first and into the sand, each pushed by a horizontal jack, until the tunnel reached the well.

Woodson, a quiet religious man, working inside the tunnel, spotted the boy's red jacket, grabbed his hand and pulled him to safety.

Woodson showed up at the hospital today and visited the boy and the boy's mother. She thanked him profusely.

Cautious Military Spending Advised By Senator Stennis

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) warned today in an Armed Forces Day speech "The military preparedness necessary to insure our freedom can destroy the very freedom we seek to protect."

The senators' warning, in an address for observance at the gigantic Keesler Air Force Base, came after he said recent events made it apparent this country "must continue to be the mightiest military power."

"At the same time," he added, "to allay the fears of the neutrals, we must re-emphasize that we build purely for the defense of freedom — never for aggression.

"Our granting the Philippines independence and conferring commonwealth status on Puerto Rico have underscored this. No free nation need stand in fear of the United States."

But, said Stennis — a member of both the Senate Appropriations and the Armed Services committees — Congress has been requested to appropriate 38½ billion dollars to the Department of Defense for the nation's largest peacetime military budget.

"This military striking power can be our downfall — not by any abuse of the power if its force — not by the corruption of our national or military leaders — but by the simple operation of basic laws of economics. We, as a nation, must learn to build and maintain our military establishment within the limits of our ecanomy to absorb its frightening cost."

The Mississippi Democrat said Russia's primary attack on the United States "is not by war but in forcing us into spending programs beyond the capacity of our free economy and in causing us to squander our great natural resources. They have succeeded in straining our national economy through excessive governmental spending."

Stennis said since the Russians completed their first atomic explosion in 1949, the United States had appropriated money for military programs in an atmosphere of fear.

"Our responsible military leaders lean all too far toward the attitude of asking for all that they can get. These two approaches must be stopped."

The senator said this nation's military appropriations had reached their peak and it was up to the leadership of the military to make careful plans and spend available funds more efficiently.

Stennis listed three recommendations for making "vast savings" which could be planned only by professional military men:

1. "At least some of the evils of useless duplication could be eliminated by . . . further unification of the three major branches of the military services."

The senator said one example of duplication was the missile program. Each branch of the service he continued, "bid against each other in this narrow and specialized field for the exxpensive materials, the limited number of industrial plants, and the small number of top notch scientists who have become specialists in missiles. In this bidding against each other, they are running costs up for all."

2. "We now have 2,800,000 men under arms in all of the services combined. The total cost of salaries and maintenance for this force is 10½ billion per year. Substantial savings can come through an expanded and extensive system of active reserves for all branches of the service."

3. "As part of this personnel plan, I think we must go even further in establishing a system of permanent military careers extending from the lowest noncommissioned rank to the five-star general. Through spreading the general popularity and appeal of such a career, we would eventually be able to abandon the peacetime selective service program."

Producers Await Drop In Imports

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — With crude oil imports again on the climb, as shown by government figures, independent U.S. producers are waiting hopefully for government action to bring them down.

Russell B. Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America, called this week for "immediate and definite action" clamping a lid on imports at the 1954 ratio of imports to domestic demand.

Brown said the latest report of the Bureau of Mines "confirms our position that unless the administration takes action to curb imports, they are going to continue to climb." He said domestic operations were down sharply because of imports.

The Bureau of Micnes report, issued this week, said imports of crude oil averaged 780,000 barrels a day in February, probably would be 839,000 a day in March and 903,000 in April and reach 925,000 in May and 950,000 in June.

The report said actual imports of refined products averaged 650,000 barrels a day in February and probably would average 660,000 in March and 590,000 in April, then drop to an estimated 500,000 in May and 475,000 in June.

Defense Mobilization Director Gordon Gray has certified to President Eisenhower that imports apparently threaten to impair the national security. The President has asked Gray to see if voluntary methods can be worked out to reduce them.

"Largely as a result of the confusion over imports," Brown said, "the number of wells drilled from January through May 12 this year is 1,600 under the same period a year ago. Rotary rigs active are down 456 and geophysical investigations are down 7½ per cent.

"In my opinion, when they get the feeling the President is going to do something, they will go back to work."

Lampasas Slowly Rising From Flood Disaster

By O. B. LLOYD JR.

LAMPASAS, Tex., May 18 (UP) — The business section of Lampasas, which was almost washed away by a flood last Sunday night, is slowly coming back to life.

Almost every store in town was hit by Sulphur Creek, which washed 16 feet deep through town, drowned five persons and did damage totaling around $5,000,000.

But Mayor R. L. Northington said today that he had made a round of the business area, and that only one man, a grocer, was so discouraged that he is giving up.

Everyone Going Back

"Everybody else said he is going back," Northington disclosed.

The residential area of Lampasas is being put to rights a little more slowly than the business section. But debris is being steadily cleared from residential streets and houses cleaned and dried out.

When the big cleanup started last Monday, there were two big jobs in it: to pump water out of the business section and to get spoiled food, meat and milk away before it created a hazard to health.

The first job has been accomplished. The 35th Engineering Group from Fort Hood, Tex., with civilian helpers is rapidly accomplishing the second job.

5,000 Loads Of Food

So far Army trucks have hauled 5,000 loads of food, garbage and moulded grain to a big dump a mile-and-a-half beyond the city where it is buried. The hauling and cleanup is still going on with military precision.

For instance, today within a few minutes, Capt. W. C. Hedleston, with a map in front of him on a desk in city hall, moved eight soldiers to Fifth Street, with instruction to work from Key to the railroad.

Eight men and two dump trucks were ordered to Sixth Street, to work from Key Street to the railroad.

"Pick up everything you can and when you're through there, move to seventh and Eighth Streets," Hedleston told the big, rain-soaked sergeant in command of the men.

"How long do you think we'll be here sir?" the Sergeant asked.

Rivers-Harbors Group Approves 4 Resolutions; Elects Officers

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — The National Rivers and Harbors Congress wound up its 44th annual meeting here today after approving resolutions and electing directors.

The congress approved resolutions for:

1. Deeper channels. It noted that in recent years the Merchant Marine fleet has acquired vessels whose tonnage and draft exceed the channel depths of many important U. S. ports.

2. A full scale study to determine the nature and extent of the nation's water supply programs.

3. That Congress consider the need of continuing Army engineers in service beyond the mandatory 35 - year retirement age because of the current shortage of engineers.

4. Consideration of the construction of a sea - level Panama Canal.

Rep. Brooks (D-La.), Congress president, said that elements in Panama are beginning to suggest that we share our soverignty over the Canal Zone with them." He said that this county "has no intention of turning over one of its main assets to the United Nations in exchange for a mere pat on the back. I trust that we have not become that soft-headed."

In his address, Brooks said that "we detect a marked improvement in the public's attitude toward water development programs."

Billy Graham Described As Sincere Bloke

Billy Graham, the world's outstanding evangelist of the crusading type, is now engaged in a religious campaign in New York's mighty Madison Square Garden. The series of revival services will last six weeks and will involve the expenditure of many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Graham's crusade, in active preparation for more than two years, is the evangelist's first full-scale effort in the world's greatest city—sometimes called the world's most wicked city.

News dispatches say that nearly 60 per cent of New York City's eight million people do not participate in any kind of church activities.

This poses for the evangelist and his corps of assistants one of the biggest problems they have ever faced.

There are many who look at the large amounts of money raised in such campaigns as this and, with skepticism for any genuine good that may be accomplished, assert that this kind of evangelism is a money-making scheme and nothing else.

In this matter, however, they have a hard time sounding convincing when they take into account that Graham draws a salary of only $15,000 a year, which might be called "chicken feed" when compared to salaries of other men of comparable human capabilities. While traveling, Graham also draws enough to care for his railroad fare, meals, sleeping quarters and other similar expenses. This compares to expense accounts provided to traveling men by business firms.

Anyone who could attract millions of people by his personal power alone would be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to many business firms. Thus we must conclude either that Graham's personal drawing power is so great that he is worth vastly more than he receives as a minister or that he is really divinely led and that he must call on divine power when he conducts successful religious campaigns.

Many attempts have been made to describe the source of Graham's power in attracting crowds and in persuading them to accept the teaching of Christ.

In the final analysis, the thing about Graham that seems to draw most people is his sincerity.

In England religious enthusiasm has been on the wane for generations. In that skeptical country there are many news reporters who are even more skeptical. One of those hard-boiled reporters, after hearing Graham preach a number of times and after talking with him at lunch, said:

"The bloke really believes and lives the way he preaches."

It costs huge sums of money to carry on such a campaign as that in New York but many times that amount would not make a successful campaign without Graham's intense sincerity and his ability to show his listeners he really believes what he says.

Forces Which Fought McCarthy Still Active

Senators discussing the whole McCarthy affair in gatherings came to one foreboding conclusion: that the forces which wore down the Wisconsin Senator still possess great vitality (witness their recent reactivation in whitewashing Canadian diplomat Norman) and still have at their disposal very well-oiled machinery for publicity and blackmail, ready to go into action against anti-Communism at any time.

Recognition of the "facts of political life" about the McCarthy affair is necessary—Senators agreed—if American public men are to checkmate the abovementioned forces effectively. First of all, this recognition requires revision of the common "liberal" version of how it all started, back in February, 1950. It did not develop haphazardly, or merely as a result of supposed public reaction against Senator McCarthy's first charges in that month about subversives in Government—according to some who have made a study of the famous affair.

On the contrary, what actually happened was that McCarthy was coldly and calculatingly "selected" by a strategy committee of "liberals" as the man to be discredited, to be "made an example of," thereby preventing the development of another Alger Hiss case (which had left severe scars on the prestige of the Left at that time).

"They" chose McCarthy instead of Nixon or Mundt, then the best-known antagonists of Communism on Capitol Hill, for sound reasons of political strategy. Nixon and Mundt were experienced operators in the parliamentary scene and both had served a number of terms in the House before going to the Senate.

McCarthy, on the other hand, was the most obscure of Senate "freshmen," had not picked up much experience, and indeed seemed timid and unsure of himself at that time. He appeared, to the strategists of the Left, an ideal victim. They would confuse him, scare him, smear him and thus put an end to the then growing "Communists in Government" issue, once and for all. McCathy's speech in Wheeling, attacking Communists in Government, which actually got little press notice the next day, was followed by a pause, during which "they" made the decision—and choice.

To their surprise, McCarthy proved far tougher and more resourceful than expected, and it took over four years—in which they had to pull out all the stops—to wear him down, physically and politically. So runs one analysis of the famous affair, an analysis which is shared not only by many veteran legislators but also by correspondents in Washington (whether they dare to say so openly or not).

Two topics in particular, relevant to this picture, enlivened discussions of the Senators on the funeral planes which went to Appleton, Wis.:

(1) Some discovered the fact, just going the rounds on the Hill, that the State Department, in the past year, found (and discharged) a "card-carrying Communist" among its personnel.

The individual was a clerical worker and not in a high or "sensitive" position. No publicity was given the matter—for one reason, because "White House policy" since the censure of McCarthy wanted it that way; and, secondly, because security officials know full well that it is not "card carrying" Communists, but crypto-Communists or "liberal dupes" who present the biggest danger in the Executive arm of the Government. They, indeed, are very "hard to get at."

(2) The second topic was little known even to some well-informed Senators. What set off the Norman case was material resulting from the discovery in the Treasury Department of hitherto well-concealed files of the famous Harry Dexter White, Soviet agent and former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. These files were first spotted by investigators outside of the Treasury late in 1955. Up until then, even the F. B. I. had no knowledge of their existence.

The files contained much material showing that White was a far more important cog in the Soviet secret machine than had been definitely known before. There was much material filling out knowledge of a wide range of activities by the dead official; and finally, information which led the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to break the story which touched off the affair of the Canadian diplomat.

Why the Treasury (which had previously been deemed very "clean of lefties") failed to find this material earlier and to bring it to the attention of the F. B. I. remains a disturbing question. Senators ask: is the "red network" so artfully imbedded in the ranks of the bureaucracy that it takes years for Hoover's alert men to uncover one of its most important segments? Must we again fight a "McCarthy" battle? And, if so, where can we find a legislator who is ready to brave the secret "forces" and their "smear machinery"?

REYNOLDSVILLE, PA., STAR: "In the American system of government by law, no principle is more essential to the protection of our way of life than the principle of equality under the law. Labor unions should be required to submit to this principle, like all other American institutions. If the policy of this country is to outlaw monopoly and monopolistic practices, there is no ground for granting unions—the most powerful of our concentrations of economic power—special rights and dispensations."

ALTOONA, PA., MIRROR: "A doctor contends that people will be shorter in the next hundred years. Aw—maybe they'll reduce taxes before then."

HIGHLAND, ILL., NEWS LEADER: "In these days a depression would be a period when people do without what their parents never had."

Eisenhower's Criticism Of Lee Does Not Enhance His Prestige In South

President Eisenhower did not enhance his prestige in the South by a gratuitous criticism of the military skill of General Robert E. Lee at the battle of Gettysburg, fought almost 94 years ago. His understanding of the South's political philosophy is just as much questioned by representatives of that section in Washington as his conclusions about General Lee's military judgement.

The President has had ample opportunity to study the tactics of the opposing generals at Gettysburg during long week ends at his farm, on a hill overlooking the battlefield. He has also had more than four years to consider plans to increase Republican representation in Congress from southern states. The comment of southern Democrats has been that he ought to leave judgment of General Lee to the historians and exercise more generalship himself in the political field.

On the day before his observation, while touring the battlefield with British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, that he would have "sacked" the South's great military leader for the way he commanded the Army of the Northern Virginia at Gettysburg, the President claimed "impressive increases" in Republican strength in the South had cracked its solid Democratic alignment in recent years.

He made the claim in a speech telephoned to a meeting if southern Republican leaders in Louisville. He also urged that a Republican candidate be entered next year in every congressional district in the South as another step "in the direction of a responsible two party system."

Several of those who resented the President's comments on Lee remarked that Ike had never been a tactical commander in any battle, depending on army and corps commanders to plan and direct actual combat. They also wondered how his political experience gave him the impression that the Republican party in the South had progressed much under his nominal party leadership.

In an exhaustive analysis of 1956 voting, the Congressional Quarterly, a private impartial research group, has shown that while Eisenhower polled the biggest victory in the South of any Republican in history, his party not only failed to crack the Democratic congressional line-ups to any significant extent, but that Republicans ran so far behind him they gave no indication they can increase their congressional representation in 1958.

In Texas, where the President polled 55.3 per cent of the vote, the GOP re-elected one Republican member, Bruce Alger of Dallas, but in the other 20 districts of the state and the member at large race, there either were no Republican candidates, or the Republican congressional vote was no greater than 35.4 per cent, as in the El Paso district.

In Louisiana where the President carried every congressional district for himself and won the state by 55.3 per cent, only two Republican congressional candidates appeared on the ballot and their percentage of the vote was between 31 and 36 per cent. In Tennessee, which has two regularly GOP districts out of nine, only one Republican candidate made it a close race — in the Chattanooga district with 46.3 per cent of the vote. Mississippi had no GOP Congressional candidates and Eisenhower received only 24.5 per cent of the vote, part of which was cast for him by the Mississippi Black and Tan Grand Old Party. Arkansas had only one Republican house candidate who received 38.7 per cent of the vote. In Oklahoma, which Ike carried for the second time, the one Republican congressman out of six was re-electel with 57 per cent of the vote, but all of the five winning Democrats polled larger vote percentages than President Eisenhower.

Whatever mistakes General Lee may have made at Gettysburg are enshrouded in the glorious past of the Republic. But General Eisenhower, as caustic southerners are wont to remark has actually made hardly a dent in the solid South, partly because he has not attempted to exert any leadership in that section and he can't run again.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Crime Flourishes Best When Public Officials Permit Margin Violations

It has been said that Frank Costello is to a degree, possibly to a startling degree, a creature of newspapermen, particularly those in New York who have attributed to him the wisdom of Solomon and the depravity of Bill Sikes. Well, everything can be attributed to newspapermen as it is to Frank Costello, but it may also be said that where there is smoke, there must be fire.

Crime exists in all big cities throughout the world and what is crime in one place is not crime in another, as the determination as to what is a crime is an act of legislation. For instance, in New York City it is a crime to gamble but not to speculate. Those who engage in bet-taking are criminals, but those who publish odds and provide tips for the bettors and the bettors themselves are not criminals. Or, to take another instance, it is lawful to ruin a man's business by surrounding it with a shouting, shrieking picket line but it is illegal to ruin his business by defaming his character or ridiculing his product.

If all the laws on the statute books were vigorously enforced, it is probable that the people would rise up against the tyranny; on the other hand, crime flourishes best when public officials permit the criminals to move within certain margins. It is unquestionably true that no city is wide open without official consent and connivance. It may also be that public opinion is apathetic and regards the law as an instrument of power rather than of social benefit.

Frank Costello has become the stereotype of criminal activity of the present period. The probability is that public opinion is 10 or even 20 years behind the fact; that whatever Frank Costello has done, apart from income tax evasion and gambling, was committed so long ago that the statute of limitations has long since run. At any rate, the law has come up only with income tax evasion which, while it is wrong is not unpopular, and contempt of court which in his particular instance does not move public opinion against him.

In the Lanza case public officials placed a microphone in a cell and listened into the conversation of a prisoner and his counsel, an act that is clearly unconstitutional and against which all bar associations ought to protest if they are not too timid to raise their voices in defense of the Constitution. When law-enforcement officers violate the law they are as guilty as the worst offender and ought not to be protected. It ought to be made clear who picked Frank Costello's pocket and why. It is not important to defend Lanza or Costello; it is important to preserve constitutional rights.

Law enforcement grows increasingly more difficult, as crime becomes more businesslike and complicated, more thoroughly organized and more protected by the law. For be it known that just as the law-enforcement agencies seek legislation to prevent and put down crime, so do the forces of organized crime find means to use the law advantageously and there are lawyers and courts to protect them.

In such a case as the one now pending against Frank Costello, the situation actually is this: Costello was in the lobby of his own apartment house, engaged in no criminal activity, but like the honest burgher, was returning to his domicile from a public restaurant, whereupon a punk walked up to him and sought to kill him but failed in the attempt. Costello was taken to a hospital where it was found that he was suffering from a slight scalp wound which was soon mended. He was interrogated by the police but chose silence. Some time during the interrogation, the police came into possession of a slip of paper which to them and other experts indicated that Costello was engaged in gambling. Because he would not explain to law officers or to a grand jury, he was arrested on the charge of contempt of court.

All of this is normal except the piece of paper is his property and upon it the law-enforcement agencies can only act by due process. The punk who tried to kill Costello is either free or dead, but Costello is in jail for being shot at.

Little Benefit Is Found In USIA Propagandizing

WASHINGTON, D. C. — "Never before," said Senator Lyndon Johnson in Churchillian prose, "have I experienced so much difficulty and spent so much time getting so few facts . . ."

He was addressing a pale-faced, much - deflated Arthur Larson, alias Mr. (Modern) Republican, director of the U. S. Information Agency, which is the "kept press" of the Share America groups in Government. Johnson is Democratic Floor Leader and Chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee which has the USIA budget in charge. The Senator hadn't been able, after three days of hearings, to find much justification for the de luxe propagandizing with which USIA is trying to "win the minds of men" for our side. He was pretty annoyed with Mr. (Modern) Republican, who is the handsome author of a very glib and overgeneralized book called, "A Republican Looks at His Party." Ever since his Eisenhower-plugged book came out last year, Mr. Larson has been regarded as the spokesman of the "new" Republicanism and as the fellow who could say of himself, like Hamlet:

"The Time is out of joint; O, cursed spite,
That ever I was born to set it right!"

When you've been in Washington awhile, you get used to seeing these world - fixers come along. Only a couple of years ago we had Edward Corsi, a sports model Republican, who was going to turn back the calandar and autdo Tammany Hall, a Democratic society which got its political start by catering to immigrants. The word from New York was that Corsi was building up to run for governor as a Modern Republican. Down here he gave the impression, so familiar to us all, that all the Federal Government needed was a humanity - lover like himself. Corsi didn't last much longer than Newbold Morris, who preceded him by a few years; and I bet Larson will be gone before the year is out. These world-fixers can't stand being laughed at.

But the clash between Johnson and Larson, a Southern Democrat and a Modern Republican has a significance beyond personalities. While the president's party spokesman was catching his lumps, the President was making a telephone address to Louisville where he told a regional GOP meeting that Republican candidates must challenge the Democrats everywhere in the South. Mr. Eisenhower was voicing the well - known call for a two - party system in Dixie and he was, by inference, taking some credit for advancing this movement.

Yes, but we had better examine this movement more closely. Long before Ike came along, four southern states left the Democratic party in 1948 and voted the States' Rights ticket againts Candidate Truman. By 1950 there were definite signs in Florida, Texas, North Carolina and Virginia that a realignment was taking place. In 1952, still voting "against Truman," although the Democratic candidate was Stevenson, four southern states went Republican, that is, conservative. The movement spread and deepened in 1956. By this time Virginia, Florida, North Carolina and Texas had reelected Republican Congressman, the surest proof of grassroots sentiment.

But this GOP trend in the south was not for Modern Republicanism. It was an escape from the so-called liberalism of the Democratic party. Since his second inauguration, the President has been proclaiming liberalism for the Republicans, too. What does this do to the conservatives in the south, and elsewhere, who were looking for a home?

The question is more than academic because governors are being chosen this year in Virginia and New Jersey. Four years ago Republican Candidate Ted Dalton polled over 45 per cent of the Virginia vote. He and his party did so by anticipating the GOP's "modern" movement and by confronting the southern Democrats, of whom Senator Byrd is the intellectual and spiritual leader, with something resembling a state sized New Deal. It was a close victory for the Byrd forces and one of the sweetest that the senator ever tasted.

Now it's all to be done again. But Virginians know the score. To vote conservative, they vote Democratic. Their fellow - thinkers in New Jersey are not so lucky. The Democratic candidate Governor Meyner, is an orthodox Fair Dealer, and it might be hoped that his Republican opponent would represent a contrast. No so. State Senator Malcolm Forbes, recent winner of the GOP primary, is a "new" Republican, a close friend of young Congressman Peter Frelinghuysen who, along with Senator Clifford Case, might as well be Democrats.

Were it not for the political meaning that lies behind such a clash as that of Lyndon Johnson vs. Arthur Larson, the hope for a two - party system would be nil. The truth is that the spirit of conservatism has stayed alive despite more than two decades of ultra - liberalism in the Democratic party and a recent showing of it in the Republican party. The south, which is more like what the Founding Fathers intended, understands that the struggle for freedom in America and in the world is against the super state. In places like California, where such a man as Senator Knowland makes a fight, there is some comprehension of what's going on. But in too many places, like New Jersey and New York, where party lines are meaningless, the American people are almost reduced, like Middle Europeans in times past, to voting "Ya!" or staying home from the polls.

The only thing which could clear up the confusion, and save us, is the kind of fight which separates the fundamentalist sheep from the modernistic goats, regardless of party label.

Speaker Says Responsibility And Thrift Are Hang-Overs

Social Security Commissioner, Charles I. Schottland, went to Chicago last month to address The American Orthopsychiatric Association.

Mr. Schottland used to be Director of Social Welfare in California under Governors Warren and Knight. This was his principal qualification for the Washington post.

It is customary for many public speakers to hand out a written text of their remarks to the press. Sometimes in advance. It is a measure of protection for the speaker who wants to be quoted correctly and a considerable convenience for the reporter who has a deadline to make and or who doesn't want to listen anyway.

Commissioner Schottland handed out mimeographed copies of his remarks — in advance — to the Chicago press corps.

I've never been able to discover who "got to him" before he got to his feet. Somebody did.

Because the Commissioner departed from that prepared text, completely eliminating certain immensely interesting paragraphs.

Those paragraphs are typified by this one:

"Puritan ethics of thrift, such as 'saving for the rainy day,' and belief in individual responsibility, are hang-over of an earlier social and economic era."

White House and Senate leaders, when this offending paragraph hit print, were at once aroused, irate.

It is to Mr. Schottland's credit that he did not read that part, but he was nonetheless publicly quoted since it had been released formally and officially by his office.

Commissioner Schottland says the speech was "ghostwritten."

He says his department has no paid speech writers, so the "job has been turned over to technicians who are not trained in writing or public relations."

This would seem to mean that inasmuch as they are untrained in double talk, they simply say what they mean.

At any event, somebodies in the Social Security Administration think "saving money" is a rather ridiculous hang - over from the time before big government had agreed to take care of everybody.

And those "bodies" are still in the department because the Commissioner assures "no punitive action whatsoever has been taken."

He says he has issued new instructions which should "take care of the situation" and prevent repetition of the blunder.

He says that he, personally, believes in thrift. Says he is strongly in favor of personal savings and private insurance and other individual efforts.

Says this speech, as written, does not reflect this philosophy.

In which case it is perhaps less a credit to his administration than if he had accepted responsibility for it.

The piteous spectacle of high public officials reading canned speeches turned out by nameless hirelings is an unfortunate reflection on the speaker and a disgraceful affront to his audience.

There are human errors in the administration of any office. But, except where security is a consideration, when the headman is unable or unwilling to prepare and present is own public utterances, then he must not have anything very important to say.

For the man who has everything, especially a fat bank account . . . Esquire Magazine's annual fashion display shows a man's lounging robe woven from the beard of an ibex (that's a goat) . . Only $2,000. Add a mink hat . . . at $300.

NSC Yearbook Features Monroe Girl As Beauty

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Copies of the 1957 Potpourri are being distributed at Northwestern State College this week after the yearbooks arrived on the campus Thursday afternoon in time for an assembly held here late that afternoon.

Several students and a faculty member received recognition in the publication, with names of top beauties and the Senior Hall of Fame being revealed for the first time.

Betty Jo Tilleux of Shreveport, editor of this year's "annual," presided at the student gathering, a traditional event at NSC.

Miss Eve Mouton, former dean of women and associate professor of French at Northwestern, was honored in being named Potpourri dedicatee. The staff, in dedicating the yearbook to Miss Mouton, said, "It is not enough to have great qualities . . . one must make good use of them."

Pat Barker of Monroe was named number one beauty, with the others in order of appearance as follows:

Named to the NSC senior Hall of Fame were Jerry Byrd of Shreveport, Bennie Barron of Pineville, Katina Manitzas of DeRidder, Don Morgan of Baton Rouge, James McNew of Ferriday, Martha Ann Washington of Vivian, Delbert Vines of Jonesboro, and Miss Tilleux.

Sponsor of the Potpourri this year is Paul C. (Doc) Marx, member of the health and physical education faculty at NSC.

Handweaving Workshop Set At N'western

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — "Handweaving is not a lost art. It is being revived for profit and pleasure."

Thus said Mrs. Ruby Dunckelman, head of Northwestern State College's home economics department, whose handweaving workshop will be held at Northwestern June 3-21 for craftsmen, amateurs, teachers and extension workers.

"With 15 handlooms and the necessary equipment, we are looking forward to a large enrollment in the special study project here this summer," Mrs. Dunckelman added.

Instructor for the workshop will be Miss Winogene Redding of Boston, Mass., a master craftsman, member of the Society of Arts and Crafts and author of the internationally - circulated publication, "Reddigraph."

Miss Redding is a former instructor in the summer works in Coach House, Mason, N. H., and Pi Beta Phi School, Gatlinburg, Tenn. She has had wide experience in teaching the interesting art of cloth making by the hand weaving process.

"Anyone interested in the class this summer is urged to contact Mrs. Dunckelman at NSC. She added that the class will be divided into two sections, one to meet in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Ferriday Sets Clean-Up Drive For Next Week

FERRIDAY (Special) — Ferriday's annual Spring Clean - Up campaign will be in tomorrow and last through Friday, Fire Chief Nolan A. Moulle announced today. The theme for this year's campaign is "It's Spring — and Time For Clean-Up. Don't Give Fire a Place to Start in Your Home," stated the chief.

The Ferriday Fire Department will sponsor the campaign locally. The National sponsors at the National Fire Portection Association and the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

Cooperating with the fire department's clean - up observance this year will be the Chamber of Commerce, merchants, and civic clubs.

Mr. Moulle stated that the week long campaign will point up the importance of clean-up as one of the best ways to stop fires before they start.

'57 Conference Of Methodists Opens May 28

The 112th annual session of the Louisiana conference of the Methodist Church will begin May 28 on the Centenary College campus, Shreveport, for a four-day session. Bishop Paul E. Martin, head of the Arkansas-Louisiana Area, will preside at the conference sessions.

Dr. Joe J. Mickle, Centenary college president; Rev. Leonard Cooke, vice president, Centenary college; and Dr. B. C. Taylor, Shreveport District superintendent are hosts for the conference.

Pre - conference meetings of boards, commissions, and the bishop's cabinet are scheduled for Monday at 2:00 p.m. The conference will convene for organization and preliminary business Tuesday at 10:00 a.m. Business sessions and reports are scheduled for each day. Climaxing the sessions will be the reading of the appointments of Louisiana's 245 Methodist ministers by Bishop Martin Friday at 11:30 a.m

Dr. Gaston Foote, pastor, First Methodist, Ft. Worth, Tex., will be conference preacher and will speak Tuesday, Wednesday ,and Thursday evenings and Wednesday afternoon. Before his appointment to Ft. Worth in 1952, Dr. Foote held pastorates in Oklahoma; Amarillo, Tex.; Little Rock Ark.; Montgomery, Ala.; and Dayton, O. He has traveled extensively in Europe, the Far East, and in South America. He is the author of seven books and is a Sunday columnist for a Ft. Worth newspaper. Dr. Foote is active in several social, professional, and civic organizations in Ft. Worth, and is now president of the Ft. Worth Area Council of Churches.

Other highlights of the conference will be the service of commemoration and Holy Communion Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. The commemoration service is given annually in remembrance of those members of the conference, their wives or widows who have died during the past year. Dr. George Pomeroy, pastor, First Methodist, Monroe, will direct the services, and the Rev. Jolly B. Harper, pastor, Ruston Methodist, Ruston, will be the commemoration speaker.

The ordination of deacons and elders will take place on Thursday evening, and will be under the direction of Bishop Martin.

The Centenary banquet will be on Wednesday evening, the annual Parsonette Luncheon is scheduled for Thursday, and the Layman's Scarritt - Vanderbilt dinner will take place on Tuesday. A tea honoring Mrs. Paul E. Martin will be at the home of Mrs. Joe J. Mickle Thursday from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m

All business sessions will be held in the Brown Memorial Chapel on the Centenary College campus, and evening services will be held at First Methodist Church in Shreveport. Host pastor is Dr. D. L. Dykes, Jr.

Passman, Lovell Slated To Talk At Bureau Meet

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — Congressman Otto E. Passman and L. L. Lovell, president of the Louisiana Farm Bureau, will be the principal speakers at the annual meeting of the East Carroll Parish Farm Bureau tomorrow at 7:15 p.m.

The meeting, which will be held at the American Legion home, will include a barbecue chicken supper to which each Farm Bureau member and their family, is invited.

Congressman Passman and Lovell will discuss the problems facing the farmer today.

David Amacker, treasurer of the local unit, will report on the progress of this bureau for 1956, and recognition awards will be presented by C. A. Rose.

Commercial Art Is Featured In Tech Art Show

RUSTON (Special) — Brochure covers, lettering and various commercial techniques are being featured in an exhibit now in the art gallery on the first floor of Keeny Hall at Louisiana Tech.

The exhibition was planned and set up entirely by students who are advanced art majors. Mrs. Mary Dickard Rouse, instructor of the class, said that the showing is only a representative group of a large amount of work done by her students.

Because most of the students plan to enter the commercial art field, the projects on exhibit employed techniques which they might find useful, such as photograms and Zip-a-tone lettering.

One of the outstanding features of the collection, said Mrs. Rouse, is the section devoted to books which were lettered, illustrated and bound by the students. Each student selected the poem, story or other material which he wished to use and the type of lettering which was suitable. After hand-lettering and illustrating the book, the student chose an appropriate cover and binding. The volumes are the culmination of work begun last semester.

17 Admitted To La. Tech Engineer Club

RUSTON (Special) — Seventeen persons were admitted to membership in Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity at Louisiana Tech, at an initiation and banquet.

The guest speaker at the banquet was L. B. McLean, professor of electrical engineering at Louisiana State University.

Forrest H. North, Tech class 1941, as initiated as a graduate member. He is a member of Lomax, North and Associates of Jackson, Miss.

The undergraduates initiated were Carter B. Ackel of Monroe, Randall F. Barron of Oak Grove, Donald H. Deloach of West Monroe, Herman H. Deloach of Ruston, Garry V. Edwards of Bastrop, Donald G. Fordham of West Monroe.

Jerry N. Gardner of Jonesboro, Miles W. Hall of Shreveport, Abe T. Hendricks of Magnolia, Ark., John R. Howard of Baton Rouge, Byron T. Johnson of Gibsland.

Claude J. Irby of West Monroe, Charles R. Lott, Ruston, Willie R. Southern of Winnsboro, and Wilbur A. Whitaker of Dunn Center, N. D.

Bill Requires Publication Of Union Reports

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — A bipartisan bill to require full public disclosure of financial and other reports now filed by unions with the government was introduced in the Senate today.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell has requested such legislation, and sentiment in favor of it crystalized during current hearings of a special Senate Rackets Committee.

Airlines Hope To Stop 'No Shows'

The Air Transport Association of America, through its two local members, Southern Airways, Inc., and Delta Air Lines, Inc., have released information on a proposal which will make more seats available to the public by charging travelers who fail to show up for flights on which they have reserved seats. The proposal has been presented to the Civil Aeronautics Board by Robert L. Turner, vice president of the ATA, and calls for a $3 penalty against anyone who is a "no show."

In addition to the penalty, the scheduled airlines propose to introduce a reconfirmation rule as part of the industry's efforts to eliminate the no-show problem which has resulted in airliners departing with empty seats while other people who wanted those seats were unable to buy them.

The plan is subject to approval of the CAB. If the board approves, the reconfirmation requirement will go into effect July 14, and the penalty plan will become effective Sept. 15.

Ramblers Host For State Gypsy Tour, June 8, 9

Twin City Ramblers, local motorcycle rider's club, will host the annual Louisiana State Gypsy tour at Selman Field June 8-9.

Motorcycle riders from throughout the state will participate in the event, sponsored by the Harley Davidson Gulf States Dealers Association.

A party on June 8 will kick off the annual tour with riding events to be held throughout the day June 9. Competition will be held in several slow events and trophies will be awarded to the first, second, and third place winners in each class.

All clubs to participate in the tour are members of the American Motorcycle Association. Anyone who wishes to enter the events must first join the AMA. Jerry Hayes of West Monroe, president of the Twin City Ramblers, invites all local riders to join the club in order to participate in this summer's activities. Meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. each Friday at the club house at Howard Griffin's boat docks. Persons wishing to join may attend the meetings.

The site for the Gypsy tour was granted by the city of Monroe in the interest of traffic safety.

New Study Phase Opens At Session

Opening a new phase of study, based on "An Improved Public School System based on a Sound Financial Structure," the Monroe League of Women Voters yesterday heard a discussion of the school system by Mrs. Ione Hill, president of the Louisiana Teachers Association. The meeting was held at noon at the Penn Hotel.

Mrs. Hill traced the rise of public education from its inception in 1814 through the present day. The real beginning of an educational system in Louisiana, the president said, was "around 1900."

In 1900 about one-half of the educable persons in the state attended school. From this percentage the number has risen until in 1950 approximately 75.3 per cent were in the public schools. This is in addition to about 15 per cent who are attending private or parochial schools.

Also making a noticeable increase over the past years, Mrs. Hill said, is the school year has increased from five to nine months. This has given more efficiency to the instruction of the youngsters of today, she pointed out.

Funds for the public schools from the state are based on two sources, the per educable and the equalization funds. The per educable funds are based on the number of persons of school age in each system's area. This has risen from about $36 to $55 per year per educable.

The equalization fund is set up by the state to aid those systems of the poorer areas which cannot afford to bring their systems up to certain standards.

Mrs. Hill also discussed the sources of revenue from local levels and the teachers' pay scales throughout the state.

Firemen Save Most Of House Hit By Flames

Monroe firemen from Engine companies 1 and 3, and ladder company 2 fought a stubborn blaze on the back porches and wall of a duplex at 1211-1215 Breard street early Saturday for more than an hour and a half.

The fire had already gained headway when a box alarm was turned in at 4:36 a.m. Firemen s that investigation on the cause of the blaze is incomplete, but theorized that a grass fire had spread to the back of the house.

The flames were so intense that the houses on either side of the duplex were scorched. Firemen directed streams of water on the burning building and wet down nearby houses to keep them from igniting.

Both back porches and the roof were burned, but the rest of the duplex was saved.

New Training School Head Appointed In Missi

COLUMBIA, Miss., May 18 (AP)—Supt. Louis W. Rowzee of Coldwater School has been appointed superintendent of the Columbia Training School for Juvenile Delinquents, the board of trustees said today.

BAPTISTS BELIEVE...

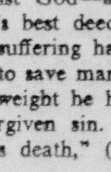
IN CHRIST, THE LIVING SAVIOUR

A wounded lion dying with a spear in his side, always attracts attention in a little park in Lucerne, tzerland. It is carved in a e cliff in memory of Swiss rds who died defending a nch king. The carving re- ds us that suffering borne for eone else is a call to the er levels of living.

aptists believe that this is remely so in the case of Jesus ist, our Saviour.

enturies before Christ, it was hesied that Christ should be man of sorrows" and be unded for our transgres- s" (Isaiah 53:5).

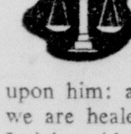
hen he finally came to earth put him to death on a cruel den cross. Besides the cross e were searing nails that tore flesh, a heavy lashing whip a crown of thorns from e who mocked him. In y on his cross when he felt rated from God he cried "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" (Mark 15:34).



He endured this agony that man might not be sep- d from God. God took cross—man's worst deed st God—and turned it to best deed for man. All suffering had a purpose. It to save man from his heav- weight he has to bear—his rgiven sin. "The wages of s death," (Romans 6:23).

We can have the weight lifted because Jesus, the Son of God, bore our sins for us. In him the love of God for lost men was fulfilled.

Being sinners we are separated from God now and forever unless we turn to Jesus for forgiveness and cleansing. "He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him: and with his stripes we are healed," God's prophet, Isaiah, said in predicting Jesus' crucifixion. (Isaiah 53:5).



Because Jesus loved us enough to give himself to die for our sins, we can have hope, forgiveness, and new life from God, or "abundant life" as it is called.

Yes, Baptists believe that only through a personal faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and a confession of him before men can the individual receive forgiveness of sin and become a child of God.

It is a great spiritual mystery, one that cannot be scientifically explained. Yet it is true that when we ask Christ to deliver us from sin these things happen: (1) our guilt vanishes; (2) we have power to overcome wrong; (3) we have the presence of God in our lives, and (4) we know that the truest and most real thing in the world is Jesus Christ. Because he triumphed over death we too who have taken him as our Saviour shall triumph over it

Mrs. Joyce Foreman, president of the Alumni Association, yesterday issued an appeal for all former students of the high school to make plans to attend the banquet and bring their wife or husband.

"We plan to 'call the roll,' so to speak, and recognize those present," Mrs. Foreman said. She explained that former students of various 10-year periods will be asked to stand and be recognized.

The banquet, as in years past, is a combination of events which bring recognition to the graduating class and give former students a chance to get together, renew acquaintances and keep up with current practices at the school.

Graduating seniors with their alumni parents will be introduced and honor students will be recognized.

Another special portion of the program will be devoted to the introduction of retired teachers who will be special guests.

Reporter Calls For Objectivity On Racial Issue

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 18 (UP)—United Press staff correspondent Alfred Kuettner, who won an award for his dispatches on the segregation issue, called tonight for greater objectivity on the racial problem.

Kuettner, manager of the United Press bureau at Atlanta, was the principal speaker at a banquet of the Texas association of Sigma Delta Chi.

Kuettner won the journalistic fraternity's 1957 top award for general reporting. He received the plaque at a dinner in New York Thursday night.

"On this third anniversary of the Supreme Court school decision, it would be a good time for everyone to take the pledge to be a little less frantic and a little more objective about the race issue." Kuettner said.

"We've had it a long time and it's going to be with us a long time, if not forever."

Kuettner was one of several top-ranking newsmen here for the three-day convention. Others included David Brirkley, NBC radio and TV newscasters; Sol Taishoff of Washington, editor and publisher of Broadcasting-Telecasting magazine and national president of Sigma Delta Chi and Bob Cavagnaro, general executive of the Associated Press, San Francisco.

Kuettner said all races in this nation should stop being afraid of approaching the racial problem.

"They should create and promote an atmosphere where all groups can sit down and work out seriously and in sincerity their mutual affairs," he said.

"One of the big troubles today is that both sides are on the defensive. Distrust and misinformation have tempers so ragged on the subject that it's surprising any intelligent solutions are being reached.

"The Supreme Court opinion on school desegregation didn't solve anything. It merely brought the problem into sharp focus. . . . Time and not the law will solve the race problem—if it is to be solved. But I feel that honest American citizens, fully informed on all sides of the issue . . . will eventually come up with the best solution."

Annual Art Show Opens Here Today

The annual art festival, sponsored by the Artists of Northeast Louisiana, will be held this afternoon in Forythe Park. On exhibition will be pictures in watercolors, pastels, oil paintings and other media used by the professional and amateur artists.

Many student works from he various high schools and Northeast Louisiana State College will display projects completed during the school year.

Approximately 500 persons are expected to attend the festival.

Among the artists represented will be a group from the Monroe Community Center, where Mrs. Ivy Oliver conducts classes for the City of Monroe for both children and adults. Artists from several towns within a hundred mile radius of Monroe will also be showing paintings and other works of art.

A new medium now being accepted in field of creative endeavor is photography. In this category, several compositions taken by Tony Danna during his recent trip through Mexico will be exhibited. The viewer will be able to note how photography is applied as a fine arts medium.

In other years, the Art Festival included both dramatic readings, and symphonic music, but because of technical difficulties, these associated arts will not be presented on this occasion. It is hoped that the allied arts may be continued next year.

Boy Trapped In Well—Not At My House, Jokes Mother

NOTE: How does a mother feel, what does she do, while her boy is trapped 21 feet below ground? Mrs. Borghild Hooper, a telephone operator and mother of Benny Hooper, tells of the ordeal she went through.

By MRS. BORGHILD HOOPER
Told To United Press

MASTIC BEACH, N.Y., May 18 (UP) — I was at work and I knew they were trying to get Brookhaven town police on an emergency.

I asked the operator sitting next to me and she told me the police were at another emergency call; that a boy was trapped in a well.

I said jokingly, "It can't be my house.' I knew my husband was digging an irrigation well. I asked operator where it was, and she said it was in Patchogue and not in the direction of my home.

To be sure, I called my house and I got a woman on the phone. She told me she was baby sitting and that my husband had gone to a meeting. It sounded fishy. I knew my husband hadn't gone to any meeting. I called again and they told me they would come and get me.

Drove Home Fast

I pulled my earphones off and ran out the door and drove about 70 miles an hour home.

During the long hours of waiting, while Benny was trapped in the well, I tried to picture the worst. I was trying to build myself up to what it would be without him. I thought what could happen to him down there.

I knew there had been no signs of life, but maybe he was unconscious. They kept saying the chances were slim, but I never gave up hope. I knew that when they found him breathing or if there were any signs of life, they would pull him through.

Thought Of Birthday

Throughout the hours, you think of crazy things. I thought of the little car I had promised Benny for his birthday, July 2, and I wouldn't be able to give it to him.

The worst came about 5 a.m. yesterday when they told me they would get him shortly—and then they couldn't. Then I knew he had been down there too long.

I am thankful to the people throughout the country. They are responsible for his safety through their prayers.

I don't know how to word it but I think they know how I feel.

Seek Deepening Of River Channel

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — A delegation from Lake Charles, La., asked a Senate appropriations subcommittee today to approve funds for deepening the channel in the Calcasieu River and pass.

The channel, dug some years ago, has become so clogged, spokesmen said, that big tankers have to scrape their way along a "groove" in the stream to reach huge industries upstream.

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—After sputtering along in indecisive fashion, the economy this week showed new and unexpected signs of vigor.

Business sentiment — drooping only a short time ago—perked up noticeably. Merchants, manufacturers, stockholders and wage earners seemed to be saying: "Things aren't so terrible after all."

Beginnings of a potential pickup were noted in at least three sectors of the economy where soft spots had developed—autos, appliances and textiles.

Even the badly battered housing industry was girding for a comeback. The improvement in housing might still be months off. But, real estate experts said pent-up demand for new and bigger homes would eventually hit the industry with the force of a tidal wave.

"The important thing," said Dr. George Cline Smith, vice president and economist of F. W. Dodge Corp., "is that nothing can contain, for long, the enormous demand pressure dammed up behind our current rate of underbuilding. Something is going to give."

As for the economy as a whole, bankers, industrialists and others who usually make good guesses gave this estimate of things to come:

Business activity, over-all, should keep on rising. Not as fast as last year, probably, but the trend for the rest of 1957—and certainly for 1958—should be up, not down.

The upward parade of prices should ause for a while. Business costs are sky-high but goods are in great abundance and competition is razor-sharp. This—at least for the time being—should hold price increases in check.

Because of competitive pressures, many businessmen will find it increasingly difficult to recover increased operating costs by raising prices. Profits of some companies may be caught in a tightening cost-price squeeze.

Money, mostly likely, will stay "tight." Business still wants and needs huge amounts of new capital for expansion. However, there may be a slight increase in the availability of home mortgage funds.

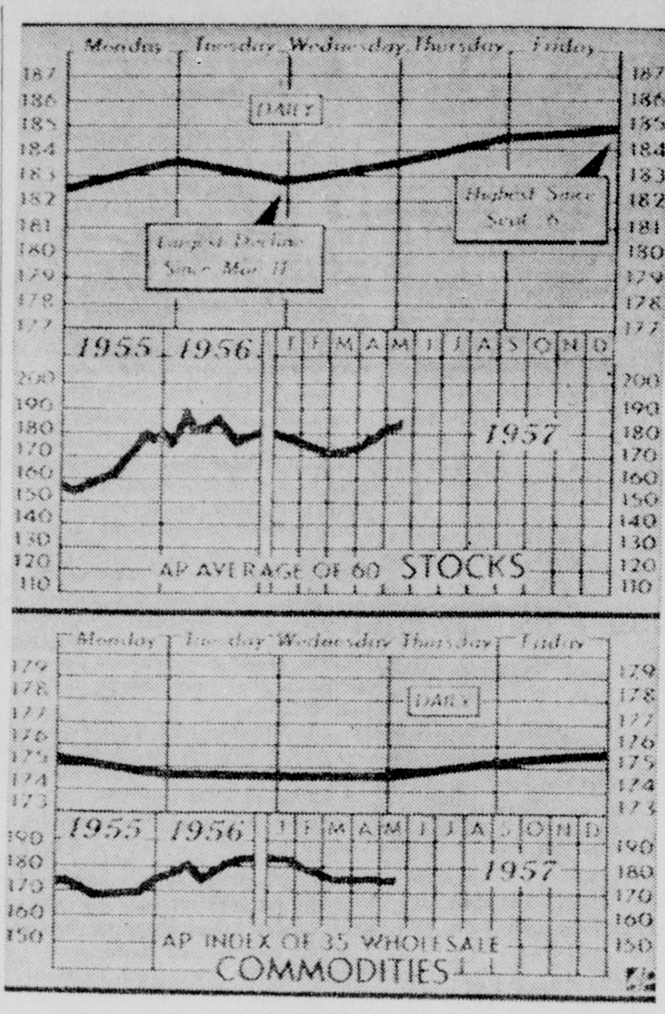
Those inclined to optimism could point this week to a continued high level of consumer incomes and consumer spending.

Personal income of Americans, at latest count, had climbed an annual rate of nearly 339 1-3 billion dollars. That's a record. It represents a gain of 18 billions in just one year. One big factor in the increase: more people are getting social security checks.

Employment is on the upbeat, too. While there isn't as much overtime in the auto factories and steel mills as there used to be, there are more jobs in the trades and services than ever before. For that matter, auto production is picking up a little right now—this week's output of 126,000 cars is the highest in ove. a month.

According to Labor Secretary Mitchell, total employment in th nation this summer will jump to a new high of 68 million.

The Commerce Department reported this week that price inflation accounted for around two-thirds of the increase in the nation's total output of goods and services over the past year.



STOCKS ADVANCE AGAIN—The Associated Press Average of 60 stocks advanced for the 12th week in a row and reached the highest point since Sept. 6, 1956, closing Friday at 184.9 from 182.5 a week earlier. The commodity index gained for the first time in four weeks closing at 175.8 from 175.2 with industrials chalking up the largest gains. (AP Wirephoto)

Market Jumps To High Ground

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—For the second straight week, the stock market this week pushed into new high ground for 1957.

There was nothing dubious about the advance. The market was up four days out of five. The rise was substantial.

Oils, assisted by chemicals, carried the ball most of the time. Steels also helped push up the average. Even the rails, which have consistently lagged in the long recovery from the February lows, caught fire Thursday and made a sturdy gesture toward confirming the rise of the industrials.

The week's volume totaled 13,086,138 shares, biggest since 13,412,730 shares were traded in the week ended April 27.

It was the market's 12th successive weekly rise. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $2.40 to $184.90. Ahead remains the target of the all-time high of $191.50 reached April 6, 1956.

Lukens Steel, sensation of 1956 and so far of 1957, added 9⅞ and there were rumors of another stock split. Other gainers included General Electric 2⅞, Boeing 2, U. S. Steel 2⅜ and Sunray 1½.

The week's five most active issues were Olin Mathieson, up 5 at 52⅝; Benguet, up ⅜ at 1¾; Bethlehem Steel, up 1⅜ at 47¼; U. S. Hoffman Machinery, up 1⅜ at 10, and General Motors, up ⅛ at 43⅜.

Cotton
New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures prices advanced this week, all active contracts except the October, 1958 delivery selling at new seasonal highs at one time.

At the close of the week all active futures from the July, 1957 month through July, 1958 were up 65 cents to $1.60 a bale on the New York Cotton Exchange. The October, 1958 delivery showed a loss of 40 cents.

Trading in the May, 1957 contract expired Tuesday, and it went off the boards $2.75 a bale under the previous week's close.

Price stimulating factors during the week included further unwanted rains in Texas, increasing doubts about new price support legislation in the near future and a belief in some quarters that the final 1957 loan rate will be above the present guaranteed minimum.

On the final day of the week demand was stimulated by reports of improvement in the cotton goods market.

Realizing sales on the advance and scattered hedge selling kept the upturn within bounds during the week. There was some selling on a House vote to end the acreage reserve portion of the soil bank program after this year.

Exports of cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 185,000 bales against 126,000 bales in the previous week and 98,000 bales in the same week last year.

Oil Federation Sets Wage Hike

BATON ROUGE, May 18 (AP) — The National Federation of Independent Oil Unions today agreed on a nationwide pattern which sets a basic six per cent wage boost in negotiations with some 12 major refineries.

Fifty delegates, representing 80,000 members of some 25 independent oil unions, adopted a five-point wage increase and other benefits.

The five points call for:

1. Accepting a minimum wage boost of six per cent, provided that minimum is not below 15 cents an hour or a total $26 a month, whichever is greater.

2. Double time and a half base scale for work on holidays.

3. An eighth holiday for all member groups throughout the country. In some areas, delegates said, an eighth holiday already is being observed.

4. Accepting of pay raises retroactive to April 1, 1957. Most companies offered to set the retroactive date May 1, while unions generally have demanded the pay boost begin as far back as Jan. 1.

5. Four week vacations for 20 or more years in service.

Officials said the six per cent increase would boost the average hourly pay of union employes at Esso Standard Oil Co. and Humble Oil and Refining Co. plants from $2.60 to $2.76 an hour.

Federation officials said they were "working toward a national income" although they have not made final plans.

The purpose of the Baton Rouge session, they said, was to set a wage scale to guide negotiations in independent union locals in this country.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain traders are giving increasing attention to rain in the growing areas.

The situation has become a menace, particularly to winter wheat, and caused buying which boosted wheat futures prices on the Board of Trade this week for the first week's gain in more than a month.

The price trend was somewhat mixed in other grains, due partly to liquidation in May contracts, in which trading will end Tuesday. Contracts remaining open after the close Tuesday must be settled by delivery of the grain. Trade authorities are uncertain what the final pattern will be.

On August 11, 1920, Mrs. Young and one of the children, Elizabeth, sailed for England to begin a nine-months visit. She stopped at Frizington - Cumberland, her home town, and traveled through other parts of England, Scotland and Ireland, seeing relatives and old friends. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Young has been overseas since then, although she did manage a visit to her sister in Toronto, Canada, a few years ago. The Youngs have relatives in England, Scotland, South Africa, Australia and Canada, and carry on a correspondence with them all.

A sports enthusiast, Mr. Young played golf frequently while living in Texas, and today follows baseball, football, and many other sports in the newspaper and views them on television.

Moving to Monroe in 1926, Mr. Young obtained work at the paper mill. The couple's three sons, Robert F., John, and Tom also decided to make their home in the Twin Cities and are currently employed by Olin - Mathieson. Their two daughters married and remained in Texas — Mrs. Mary Eastin lives in Orange, and Mrs. Elizabeth Snoddy resides in San Antonio, Texas.

Mrs. Young has raised her "second family" since 1941, when Tom's wife passed away, and he was left with three children, aged one, two and three years. Mr. and Mrs. Young now live with Tom and Robert.

In addition to work, sports, and family life, Mr. Young also was a member of the Woodmen of the World for 46 years, and Mrs. Young held a place in the Degree of Honor in the Woodmen Circle, the group's auxiliary unit.

Wearing the same yellow gold band which was new 62 years ago, Mrs. Young has managed to do all her own housework until her recent injury. Close friends have heard her state, "I wouldn't take anything else for all these wonderful years of married life."

Proud grandparents eleven times, the Youngs also have 12 great grandchildren.

The couple is known as being "very happy," and many persons will vouch that they have never heard a cross word between them.

Both are members of the Presbyterian church.

Their children recall that the couple has always been fond of animals, and at various times have had several parrots and dogs as pets. Presently they have one dog, "Buddy," and three parakeets.

"We just couldn't ask for any better," was Mr. and Mrs. Youngs comment on their more than a half - century of married life.

Child Learn By Watching Others

Mrs. M. L. DeFreese addressed the A. L. Smith school P.-T. A. Thursday evening on the subject "How Children Learn," in which she emphasized the facts that children learn more from the actions of others than from their words.

She also pointed out that they respond better to praises than to criticism, so they need help in fulfilling their abilities and interests, without being pushed too fast or too far in the wrong direction.

Officers installed by Mrs. DeFreese were Donald Layburn, president; Mrs. Amos Smelser, vice president; Mrs. Ogilvie McDougal, secretary; and Mrs. C. L. Denson, treasurer.

Mrs. W. D. Knox was presented the past president's pin.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

By BETH BREESE

Wish you could see all that's going on at the Playhouse these days (or nights, we should say). In the first place, you'd hardly recognize the stage. Ivan has done unbelievable things with it, making it both deeper and wider on the sides, with steps leading down into the audience. You know, this is what one might call an audience participation play anyway. It seems that radio and tv don't necessarily have the edge on that particular phase of entertainment. We believe you're going to find this production intriguing in many different ways. It's perhaps the most difficult play we've ever done so far as the technical side is concerned — lights, music, sound effects We're quite sure our little Playhouse has never been rigged with so many spots, baby spots and dimmers ever as there are in this show. Ray Magruder has done wonders with the lighting, and Dot Elmendorf and Del Moore will be manning the switchboards and dimmers, etc. It won't be an easy job

We've had a new addition to the cast: Hoyt Moncrief who is playing the role of the constable. It's good to welcome him to the cast. Hoyt is a deputy with the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department. You see what we mean by the Little Theatre being a community project? There're people from all sorts of professions in L. T.'s productions, including Peace Officers.

Oh, and another addition to the cast, too — the first actor from the second generation of Breeses none other than Frederic Breese. Young Frederic is playing one of the roles in the touching wedding scene from "Our Town." Your reporter can say with authority that Master Breese has been looking forward to being in a show at the Little Theatre for many months now, and is definitely pleased over the prospects of being onstage for the first time.

President Sidney Gill has asked us to pass along to you the information that, beginning next week, membership bills will be in the mail. Don't let it throw you when yours shows up — for it will only be your invitation to renew your membership for the 1957-58 season. This is possibly the easiest way of contacting each member of the theatre, and certainly we don't want anyone to be left out for next year. The theatre's looking forward to a wonderful season coming up and we do want you to be in on it. In addition to the renewal memberships going out by mail, there'll also be memberships on sale in the lobby each night during the run of 'Our Town." So if you will count yourself a new member for next season you'll be doing yourself — and the theatre a favor by securing your membership early.

Ivan says to tell you that we are still in dire need of four or five long black coats, circa 1914— or something similar. If you have one of these (they're men's coats, by the way) will you let us use it for the run of the show? You can get in touch with Director Uttal by calling the theatre (FA 3-4263) or his home (FA 3-8413).

See you next week

MARY PEARL COATES

Senior Leaders At Ouachita High Announced

Eloise Hankins and Mary Pearl Coates have been named valedictorian and salutatorian respectively of the 1957 graduating class of Ouachita Parish High School. Miss Hankins maintained a four-year average of 95.866, while Miss Coates had an average of 95.766.

Miss Hankins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tilton Pearce Hankins, is a member of the honor society and the Jeffersonian club. She has been a member of the Lionettes for four years.

Miss Coates is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Jones. She has been active in extracurricular activities during her high school career. She is a member of the Honor Society, Future Business Leaders of America and has served as cheerleader for two years.

Two other graduating senior, Leslie Amos and Barbara Kiese, also have four year averages of 94 or better.

Dr. John S. Kyser, president of Northwestern State College, will address the class of 140 at commencement exercises May 31 in the Neville High School auditorium.

The bidding:

South, Pass; West, Pass.

Opening lead: King of spades.

It took only one ounce of precaution to assure fulfillment of today's contract which was destined to defeat if handled in routine fashion.

South opened with one club, though some players might prefer to open with a demand bid, and West overcalled with one spade. North took no action and South decided to pussy-foot along with a bid of two diamonds.

While such a bid, by implication, describes a good hand, since the bid may force partner to the three level, nevertheless it does not quite do justice to the holding and a bid of three diamonds is preferable.

North showed belated signs of life by bidding two no trump. South now jumped in diamonds, describing to partner a holding of five diamonds and six clubs, and North carried on to game.

West opened the king of spades which was won in dummy with the ace. Forebodings of hard times came when West showed out on the first lead of trumps. But the intense shock came when declarer laid down the ace and kings of clubs and East ruffed the second round.

Declarer was now unable to handle all his club losers. He could ruff once with the jack of diamonds but could not prevent East from scoring one of his trumps on an overruff.

It cannot be denied that declarer was a victim of unfortunate distribution. But South had available to him a method of play which would assure fulfilment of the contract. When at trick two declarer discovers that East has all the outstanding trumps, he should cash only one high club.

At this point he is in a position where he can afford to lose one club trick. He therefore leads a low club out of his hand. If the clubs divide, declarer cashes 11 tricks without effort.

But actually East shows out and West wins the trick. West returns a spade, forcing declarer to ruff, and declarer ruffs a club with the jack of trumps in dummy. This establishes his long suit.

Now a trump is led through East and South plays the nine of diamonds for the proven finesse. Trumps are drawn, the clubs are solid and declarer gives up a heart at the end.

Ex-Warden Of Orleans Prison Awaits Sentence

NEW ORLEANS — UP — The former warden of Orleans parish prison today was awaiting sentence on a gambling conviction.

Criminal Judge Echezabal found ex-warden Alton Diket guilty Friday of gambling by operating a race horse handbook. Sentencing was deferred until next Friday.

Dicket was arrested and booked with violating both city and state laws pertaining to gambling on March 7. The FBI ordered him held for not possessing a federal gambling stamp.

When arrested at a New Orleans bar, Diket was on the parish prison payroll although he apparently did not work there. He had been recovering from a bullet wound he suffered last year when shot by a inmate during a jail break.

Until Jan. 1 this year, he drew a salary of $345 a month which was cut to $270 a month after that date.

Rayburn Jibes GOP On 'Support' Of President

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON, May 18 (UP)—Democrats suggested today that President Eisenhower needs more Republicans in Congress like a drowning man needs water. Key Republican lawmakers said this isn't so and denied they are at odds with their president on such issues as cutting his budget.

The renewed sparring was touched off by Eisenhower's statement to a regional Republican conference in Cincinnati Friday that his program is making "little progress" in the Democratic Congress and that he hoped Republicans would be restored to control next year.

"If the President could get more support from the Republicans now in Congress, his program would be coming along better than it is," Speaker Sam Rayburn commented. "I don't see how more Republicans would help."

Static from Democrats

The veteran Texas Democrat said in an interview it appears that the more Republicans the President succeeds in getting into Congress, the worse off he will be.

Across the capitol, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said, "if there is going to be any change at all, what we need is not a Republican Congress but a Democratic President."

Johnson said the administration has compounded congressional problems because it is controlled by "two parties"— one favoring and one opposing budget cuts.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass.) meantime told a reporter he sees no big difference between himself and congressional Republicans like Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.), on the one hand, and Eisenhower on the other.

Carrying out Platform

He said when the current session of Congress is done the record will show that it was Republican members, not Democrats, who gave the President th port he needs.

Another Eisenhower F can, Sen Clifford P. Ca N. J.) commented in a that "the thunder and b over the President's budg Washington has "clouded t that (he) is carrying out th form on which he won r ing victory in 1956." Case in Asbury Park, N. J.

Rayburn contended the in Congress so far show Democrats regularly bail the President when he was in Republican opposition. H as a recent example the loan extension, on which stantial majority of House licans voted against the ident's proposal.

In 1900 the U. S. education tem accommodated only 1 cent of eligible students. T handles more than 80 per

Sleeping Under Cold Dark Waters Is Magnificent World Man Hasn't Seen

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

WOODS HOLE, Mass., June 18 (AP) — Sleeping under cold dark waters is a world more magnificent than man has ever beheld.

It boasts towering mountains, one higher than Everest . . . huge canyons, one which could hold seven Grand Canyons, and stretches for 1,200 miles . . . vast plains, flat plateaus and domes, astonishingly sheer cliffs . . .

Seventy per cent of our world lies buried under the oceans. And, as one scientist remarks, "We know less about it than the surface of the moon.,"

The salty seas, the home of earthly life by scientific evidence, plunges at points seven to eight miles deep. They teem with strange fish, plant, and animal life.

Their waters stir with the winds and tides and great currents. From the seas comes life-giving rain. From the seas come powerful little - understood influences upon weather and climate fromn seashore to far inland farms and cities.

Without the sea, human life on earth would falter and fail. Yet the oceans are largely still a book of mystery.

Probing its secrets, an armadar of 75 ships and hundreds of scientists goes exploring this year.

This ocean fleet is unique in history—planned voyages by ships of more than a dozen nations to learn facts which no one nation could learn all alone. The trips are part of ocean studies during the International Geophysical year. IGY scientists will also be investigating worldwide weather, cosmic rays, earthquakes, glacier, all the major phenomena and forces affecting our planet Earth, and sharing the knowledge learned.

Roaming the Pacific, Atlantic, and polar waters, many of these ships will use accurate echo sounders to probe the unseen world beneath their keels.

Echo findings already have traced out some of the awesome scenery. They've mapped much of the mid-Atlantic ridge, the world's largest single mountain system shaming the Andes, about 10,000 miles long and 500 miles wide.

In the Pacific, soundings discovered the Tonga - Kermadec Trench between Samoa and New Zealand, seven miles deep, long enough to stretch from New York to Kansas City or beyond. Soundings showed that Mauna Kea in Hawaii is the world's highest mountain, rising 31,000 feet from the ocean bed, with only its final 13,823 feet thrusting a dry head toward the open sky.

Fissuring the ocean floor around the world runs a great crack 20 miles wide, two miles deep. Lamont Geological Observatory scientists theorize it was caused by a pulling apart of the earth's crust by great earthquakes.

But a main target of the voyages is to study the little-known deep currents in the oceans, and particularly to learn how fast the ocean turns over, how fast deep bottom waters come to the surface and surface water sink below.

Scientists aren't sure whether this kind of turn-over takes 100 years or 10,000.

The answer could be vitally important in several ways.

Deep currents and a turnover bringing cold waters to the top could be profoundly vital in long-range weather forecasting.

Fertility of the sea and the consequent abundance of marine life depends upon an interchange of waters and their nutrients.

And the sea might solve a most pressing problem of the coming atomic power age. Are deep holes in the oceans a safe place to dump the dangerous and long-lived radioactive atomic ashes produced in atomic power plants?

The sea would be a safe garbage dump if bottom waters remain stable for many hundreds or thousands of years. But if the waters turn over in a short time, to poison marine life and ultimately man himself.

Studies by L. V. Worthington of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution indicate that the turnover may not be gradual, but could happen suddenly. He finds evidence that cold bottom water of the North Atlantic was formed about 150 years ago during a so-called little ice age.

Analysis of thousands of samples of water taken at various depths in different parts of the ocean could spell out the answer. The samples of water can be analyzed for chemical and physical properties to determine the age of the water, how long it's been where it is. Deep, slow ocean currents can be measured by other techniques.

Great surface currents are far better known, but even here knowledge is far from complete. Another target is to track some of the branches of the Gulf Stream more accurately.

Scientists of this ocean fleet will be dropping overside special instruments to take deep round bites out of the ocean floor, out of invisible canyons, gorges or plains or mountain tops.

These samples of ocean sediments, containing remnants of marine life and ooze and, in places, soils borne by ancient rivers or glaciers, will help fill out the story of what happened, what life was like, during past thousands of years of geologic time.

These specimens will be telltales of past periods of great climatic change, of adaptations by marine life, and evolution.

From shipboard, scientists using modern instruments will make precise measurements of gravity pull, and seismic soundings from special depth charges cropped overside.

From these data will come greater knowledge of the shape of the earth, the composition of the earth's crust under the ocean floors the location of earthquake fault lines.

Gravity varies with the shape of the earth and the structure of its crust. Scientific findings show that the rock under the ocean floor is much different from the basement rock of the continents on which we live.

Earthquakes shake the underwater world, sometimes with cataclysmic force. Sometimes they create great landslides of sediment, flowing rivers of mud which may help carve out some of the fantastic gorges furrowing the ocean bed.

Both seismic and gravity measurements can help piece together the story of the forces that formed great canyons and trenches and mountains.

Tides and short and long-term changes in tides will undergo worldwide study from 100 new stations on islands and shores added to existing stations.

Ike, Monty's Discussion On Gettysburg Not New

TITLED 'ANOTHER BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG,' this cartoon was drawn by Fred O. Seibel for the Richmond Times Dispatch—a modern-day cartoonist's comment in the city that was the capital of the Confederacy. (AP Wirephoto.)

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following story is by an Associated Press staff writer has been a student of the Civil War for more than 20 years and is a charter member of the Civil War Round Table of New York.

By ROBERT D. PRICE

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—By all the fuss that was stirred up, you'd think President Eisenhower and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery had said something new and startling last weekend when they criticised the tactics at the Civil War battle of Gettysburg. They didn't.

It never has been a secret that Gettysburg was far from a model of military maneuver. Indeed, the multiplicity of mistakes made there, the might-have-beens' make one reason why the battle has become such a fascinating study.

The arguments about Gettysburg were under way before the armies left the field. They have been going on ever since. Some of them never will be settled to everyone's satisfaction, but over the years a pattern and a weight of evidence has developed that is fairly conclusive. The point here is that Eisenhower and Montgomery said little that had not been said before.

First, a brief summary of the battle. It was 1863, the third year of the war. The Confederacy, flushed with the victory of Chancellorsville, decided to invade the North. Robert E. Lee marched his divisions up the mountain-shielded avenue of Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, then spread out over Pennsylvania, striking as far as Harrisburg and York.

The Union Army under "Fighting Joe" Hooker, pursued until late June, when George Gordon Meade replaced Hooker. The armies, groping for each other like wrestlers in a fog, collided accidentally at Gettysburg.

For three days they fought, in the hills around the town, a battle that cost 50,000 casualties. The Confederates were defeated but retreated with their army intact. Although the Confederacy fought on until April 1865, it never again mustered strength for an offensive thurst.

Now consider the Eisenhower-Montgomery criticisms, one by one:

1. The famed charge of 15,000 Confederates led by Gen. George Pickett against the Union center on the third day of battle, July 3, 1863, was "a monstrous thing" in Montgomery's words . . . In 1883, the Comte de Paris, writing a history long regarded as a standard work, concluded that the attacking column was "doomed to certain destruction."

In 1955, Clifford Dowdey, one of the best of modern historians, wrote in "The Land They Fought For" that Pickett's charge was the "anticlimax of three days of blundering."

2. Lee displayed poor generalship . . . The late Douglas Southall Freeman, acknowledged peer of Lee biographers, wrote in 1944 that "next to Malvern Hill" — where Lee threw his divisions headlong against an entrenched position—Gettysburg was "the worst fought of all" Lee's battles.

3. Meade should have crushed the defeated Confederate Army of Northern Virginia . . . E. P. Alexander, chief of artillery in James Longstreet's 1st Corps, dealt lengthily with that question in his "Military Memoirs of a Confederate," published in 1907.

"It must ever be held a colossal mistake that Meade did not organize a counter stroke" after Pickett was repulsed, he said. "An advance by a single fresh corps"—and Meade had that corps —"would have cut us in two." Among the modern school Kenneth P. Williams said in "Lincoln Finds a General," published in 1949, that "a great victory might have been won" if Meade had counterattacked on July 3.

Sigler Lauds East Carroll Prison Plan

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) A letter recently received by Judge Frank Voelker from Warden Maurice H. Sigler of Louisiana state penitentiary commented very favorably concerning his recent visit to the East Carroll parish prison farm.

His letter stated in part, "There are not too many suggestions that I would make for improving your overall operation. The morale among your prisoners seemed extremely high. Good food and good working conditions, I am sure, are responsible for this. You are to be congratulated on the forward progress you have made from the parish level in your penal farm.

'It is a unique arrangement, but I believe the best I have seen. The philosophy of your superintendent is in accordance with my thinking, so, naturally, I think it is good. Your physical plant, of course, is far above what is found in most parish facilities."

In his letter, Sigler added that he would recommend the addition of more recreational facilities for the men, with the thought in mind that television sets might be a very worthwhile addition. Another suggestion made by the warden was that a small cannery might be operated very profitably in connection with the farm, if there were other parish institutions that could use the surplus.

Five Domestic Charters Issued To Area Firms

Five domestic charters for companies in northeast Louisiana have been filed with the Secretary of the State, Wade O. Martin, Jr., announced yesterday. The charters, along with one notice of dissolution, were filed with the office between May 8 and 14, but were announced only yesterday.

Filed for this area were:

Northeast Louisiana Grain Company, Inc., Delhi, grain elevator operators, $50,000.

Buttitta, Inc., 1000 Ouachita National Bank Bldg., Monroe, investments, $200,400.

Concordia Homes, Units 1, 2, 3 and 4, Inc., all of Ferriday.

The single notice of dissolution was the Commerce Realty, Inc., of Monroe.

Barbed Wire Teen-Agers Plan To Revive The Ties

By JAMES HUTCHESON

SEATTLE, May 18 (AP) — The teen-agers of the barbed wire generation have set out to revive the ties of three years' imprisonment.

They were the teen-agers who spent the normally carefree years of their lives in the enemy internment camps in the Philippines during World War II.

How are they doing now?

Three of them—all now attractive Seattle housewives with a total of eight children—are finding out. They are Mrs. Waler Irvine and two sisters — Mrs. Wayne Lichter and Mrs. Martin Squires. Mrs. Irvine is the former Liz Lautzenhiser of the Santo Tomas camp Lautzenhisers; the sisters were Margie and Betty Whitaker when interned with their parents in the Santo Tomas and Los Banos camps.

They have written to every corner of the world in an attempt to discover what the "teen-agers of Tomas and Banos" are doing now. So far they have had responses from about half the 200 teen-agers in the camps.

When they feel they have contacted everyone they possibly can, the Seattle women will put all the information into an illustrated booklet.

What have the letters shown?

"Most of the teen-agers have done well despite the interruption in their lives," said Mrs. Squires.

"There are diplomats, missionaries, businessmen, professional men and, of course, a lot of housewives and mothers," added Mrs. Lichter.

What do the Seattle women remember about their three years in the camps?

They recall the bitter pill of having to bow to the more haughty of the Japanese guardians and the slaps many of the other internees received for failure to comply. They recall the deadly diet of rice, rice and more rice—and the latter days of food shortages when more rice would have been like manna from above. And the irony of the American liberating force bringing rice for them with the motorized 1st Cavalry Division column that smashed through to Manila.

"It actually was much harder on the grownups than on us" explained 27-year-old Mrs. Lichter. "The teen-agers really were the best off, if you can say anyone was. We didn't need the foods that little children did and our bodies adapted more readily to the situation. Most of us kept too busy to mope."

Among the responses received from the old camp companions is a letter from Helen MacDonald, a missionary teacher and writer, sent from Teheran:

"Your letter chased me all over the world. You should have seen the party I threw to celebrate my 10th anniversary of freedom. There were tiny barracks of crepe paper and cardboard and parachutes floating down from the light. Stew was the main course —to symbolize what had been— and ice cream came to symbolize what we hoped for."

Science Closing In On Tornadoes

By LEO MARKS

KANSAS CITY, My 18 (AP)—Thanks to electronics, there is reason to believe that the time is not too distant when weathermen may achieve pinpoint accuracy in forecasting and detecting tornadoes.

Experts here for the American Meteorological Society's national conference on severe local storms concluded they still have much to learn, especially about the inner mechanism of the tornado itself. Although its component parts can be listed, weighed and measured, the storm continues to be a spectacular dilemma, an awesome natural force which defies solution.

Optimistic Outlook

But there was no doubt in their conclusion, gathered from papers read to the symposium, that tornadoes are being more accurately predicted and watched each season.

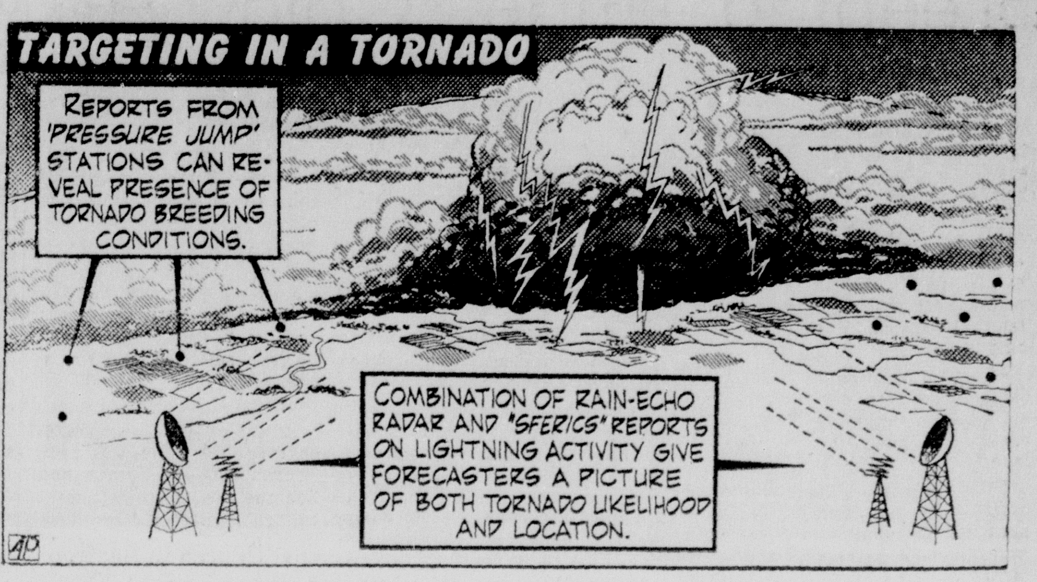
For example, the forecast of the tornado that stalked residential Dallas 40 minutes last April was off only 30 miles. The general area, however, had been alerted to the possibility.

Some devices and systems of promise are already in use. Three were discussed in detail:

1. The automatic 'pressure jump" system set up in the plains states. This records and tracks the sudden, mysterious upward thrusts along a line of air pressure which, under certain conditions, can spawn storms.

2. The use of sferics, short for 'atmospherics," whereby lightning flashes within a violent storm cloud are counted electronically. The higher the count, the greater the chance of a tornado.

3. A combination of conventional rain-echo radar super-imposed on a sferics counter tube. In this way, the storm is not only observed by radar but is triangulated from three sferics transmitter points for accurate location.



A network of 'pressure jump" stations which operated in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas last year has been expanded for this storm season, William A. Hass of the U. S. Weather Bureau in Washington told the meeting.

Each station has an automatic indicator. When a jump in pressure shows, the operator telephones a central point which compares and evaluates similar reports from other stations.

These jumps, or rapid, violent rises of air, follow a low-level line of air pressure sandwiched between two layers of air of different densities. The line is approximately 100 to 200 miles long, and from five to six hours in duration.

'Sometimes it goes along without incident," Hass explained. "But under certain conditions the line can become a storm front. Then, where the right combination of weather factors in present, say over a farmer's field, a tornado forms."

The pressure jumps, he said, could indicate the possibility of a tornado, although during the Dallas twister they showed nothing indicative.

Wilbur H. Paulsen of the Air Force Cambridge Research Center at Bedford, Mass., described the radar-sferics system of tornado detection.

The present setup has sferics transmitters located at Amarillo, Tex., Texarkana, Oklahoma City and Kansas City. Each transmitter can send its pulse, or count, over ordinary telephone lines to a plotting center. There the plot on the suspected storm is taken from three of the transmitters and shown on a sferics tube which automatically counts the pulses, or lightning flashes.

Better Showing Expected

On this is superimposed the radar observation of the same storm, allowing forecasters to follow it accurately while from the sferics count they deduce whether the danger of a tornado is present.

'Tests last year were not conclusive because of bugs in the equipment," Paulsen said, 'but these have been corrected and his season we hope for a better showing.

So. Publishers Assn. Invites 450 To Meeting

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 18 (AP)—The Southern Newspaper Publishers Assn. has sent out invitations to its more than 400 daily newspaper members and 50-odd associate members outlining plans for the SNPA's 54th anniversary convention at Boca Raton, Fla., Nov. 11-13.

The convention program is being planned by a special committee under the leadership of president James L. Knight of Charlotte, N. C.

Officers to be elected this year are president and treasurer. The current treasurer is Hugh B. Patterson Jr., publisher of The Arkansas Gazette at Little Rock.

Man Can Have Real Air Castle

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK, 18 (UP)—It is well known that a man's home is his castle. Now he can have an air castle. Home was never like this.

This abode is not of the stuff that dreams are made on. It's for real. The basis structural component is just plain atmosphere.

Far from being a dream the so-called "air house" is a solid (well . . . fairly solid) reality built of an interior mass of low-pressure air, courtesy of two air conditioning units; an igloo-shape covering of vinyl-coated nylon fabric, courtesy of U.S. Rubber Co.; brainwork, courtesy of that old demon of international architecture, Frank Lloyd Wright.

There is no record that anybody is living, yet, in one of the things. I walked through one of them—a huge two-roomer—at an exhibition here and watched one of them being deflated (a man merely unzipped a doorway and let the air whoosh slowly out, as if from a big balloon).

Revolving Door

It may have been my imagination, but I thought my ears popped just slightly, as they do with a minor change of pressure in an airplane, when I walked through the revolving door. With that kind of door, incidentally, there isn't much chance of losing any great gulp of air and having your house billow down around you.

The two rooms looked like two tremendous inverted cups, connected by a small passageway. Inflated by the air conditioners, they were sturdily erect and purportedly able to resist strong winds and snow loads. The domes were anchored to the ground by an encircling base tube filled with water. There were no metal or wood supports anywhere.

The interior, of course, was filled with expensive exhibition-type carpets, furniture, and decorations. In the middle of the larger dome there was an imitation fireplace with a flue running almost to the ceiling.

Good Question

Outside, a man connected with the exhibit was asked: "Is that supposed to be a fireplace and flue in there?" He said it was. "Well, what happens to a real flue—wouldn't the air pressure go up it?"

"That's a good question," said the man, grinning. "You'd have a real roaring fire in the fireplace."

Presumably, however, you would have air conditioners that blew both hot and cold, thus providing heat in winter. Those on the demonstration house were automatically regulated to turn on when the pressure got below a certain point.

"There is one man, up in Massachusetts," the man said "who has put one over his outdoor swimming pool and now he swims all year around. However, there's one expense problem."

What's that?

"Costs him a buck an hour to keep the pool water warm in winter."

ANNOUNCING

The opening of TEMPO MUSIC COMPANY—A new service for the Twin Cities. TEMPO MUSIC COMPANY was formed to provide FUNCTIONAL BACKGROUND MUSIC to offices, clinics, banks, firms, shops and stores of every description in the Monroe area. This is a centralized service with all music originating from one studio and piped to the termination by direct telephone wire. All equipment, including installation and servicing thereof, will be of the highest quality and furnished by the TEMPO MUSIC COMPANY. A flat monthly rate in charged.

The effectiveness of any program depends upon variety — not frequent repetition of selections. TEMPO MUSIC COMPANY has acquired a large library which will be added to constantly, and which now will play for two weeks before a selection is repeated. This library was acquired for a single functional use: For background purposes and background purposes ONLY.

There will be no vocals, jive, rock & roll or other types which distract. Extensive research has been made by the Owners of Tempo into the actual programming of the music. Surveys made into this field have revealed certain periods when certain tempos are used to the best advantage. These are catalogued and will be aired at the appropriate time.

This service is not a luxury item and this fact cannot be brought out too strongly to a possible subscriber. The monthly fee is very reasonable, and the returns to the subscriber are many fold. (See chart below).

ADVANTAGES	DISADVANTAGES
1. Greater efficiency with less errors. 2. Highly improved morale. 3. Reduce employee turnover. 4. Less absenteeism. 5. Public appreciation and good will. 6. Increased sales.	1. All surveys made into this field by the United States Dept. of Labor, Stevens Institute of Technology and other interested parties could not find a single disadvantage in a well planned, well maintained and well serviced background music program such as now offered by the Tempo Music Company.

Thousand Club Helps Finance Church

The One Thousand Club, com- sed of Methodists who donate sum of $10 three times a year create a fund to start or aid sustaining new churches of this nomination, is establishing a cord for performance in Louisi- a. The sum is so small that one feels hurt by the donation, in the aggregate a fine work financing is resulting. This do- ion, shown in the above pic- e, illustrates how the money is pended.

The Memorial Methodist Church Bastrop, recently formed, as has no church edifice of its n. It is worshipping in the nerican Legion home in Bastrop ile the building on the Mer uge highway is being erected. will soon be ready for occupancy and this donation will help with the financing.

Formed in the early nineteen fifties, the One Thousand Club had its origin, and its first project was helping to the extent of $5,000 the Southside Methodist Church in Monroe, headed by the minister, the Rev. Lea Joyner. It owes its birth to the Board of Missions of the Louisiana Annual Conference. Today Southside Methodist Church in Monroe has 443 members; a church school enrollment of 282 and property that is valued at $106,000 on which the entire indebtedness is but $19,705.

Other churches founded or financially helped through the One Thousand Club are:

Barksdale, Bossier City; Trinity, Buras - Triumph; Faith, Natchitoches; Northside, Lake Charles; Broadmoor, Baton Rouge; Asbury, Lafayette; Luling; St. Luke's, Lake Charles and Horseshoe Drive, a church to be erected soon in Alexandria.

Devout Son Of Monroe Family To Priesthood

Rev. Hugh Biggar will be ordained a Catholic priest the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, D.D., Apostolic legate to the U. S. on Saturday, May 25, 1957. He l come to Monroe to celebrate his first Solemn Mass, nday, June 2, 1957, at 6 p.m. in St. Matthew's Catholic Church.

REV. HUGH BIGGAR

This young man, native of Monroe, was born in St. Francis Sanitarium, Sept. 22, 1932. His parents were stalwart Catholics and member of a well known local family, the late Hugh Biggar and Mrs. Bess Biggar.

There will be a reception for friends from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. in St. Matthew's gymnasium.

He attended St. Matthew's Catholic School, later St. Benedict's St. Joseph's Mission in Covington, where he received basic training and was graduated after four years. Next he attended Maryhill Seminary where after two years he was graduated in June 1951. Next he entered Major Seminary Pontifical College Josephium, at Worthington, Ohio, studying philosophy for two years and theology for four years.

Rev. Hugh Biggar, as priest for this section, will serve his own state receiving assignment from the Bishop of Alexandria, the Most Rev. Charles P. Greco. The only parallel case cited is that of the ordination of Father Jerome Bres ordained in 1861. He, like Father Bres, will serve his own community occasioning local pride in his achievement.

Arkansas Road Church To Use New Building

Highland Baptist church, 1509 Arkansas Road, West Monroe, will today hold services for the first time in their new church edifice. It comprises one and one-third units of an overall four unit building program. This church in its eleven months of existence is now possessed of property, building and site valued at excess of $40,000. There have been, in eleven months, 104 additions to the memberships which started off with a charter membership of 42.

This church started as a mission Sunday school in Sunshine Heights by several interested laymen and women and meetings were held in various homes.

The churches of the Trenton Baptist association gave much help and leadership together with that of the district missionary,

REV. L. M. KING

Rev. A. L. New and for which the church is sincerely grateful.

Ultimately on May 28, 1956 Highland Baptist Church was named for the organization and the Rev. Filer J. Seal called to become pastor of this church. The site was purchased of what was known as the old Mauldin home which comprised three acres of ground and was sold for $16,500.

Construction of the church edifice was started on January 3, 1957 and the members of this church and congregation are proud of the result of their efforts.

There will be a revival meeting this week end. The revival leaders will be the Rev. L. M. King of Jeanerette, La. and singing will be led by J. E. Smith. The public is cordially invited. Services 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. A welcome for one and all.

'57 Class From High School To Hear Rev. Boddie

Members of the Rayville High School graduating class will be honor guests at the First Methodist church in that town Sunday when the minister, Rev. W. D. Boddie will address the class in his morning sermon entitled "To Make A Name."

The graduating class will be composed of Mary Jo Ellington, Patricia Ann Richardson, Wayland Dopson, Charles Harrigill, Kenneth Kirkland, John Thomason and Billy Thompson.

The Chancel choir, under the direction of W. L. Calhoun, III, will sing "Jerusalem! O Turn Thee to the Lord" by Gounod.

Reverend W. D. Boddie's sermon theme at the 7:30 p.m. service will be "Predictable Christians!" Mrs. W. D. Cotton will direct the Carol and Junior High Choirs. Miss Billie Jo Hanchey will be at the piano and Miss Mary Jo Ellington will be at the organ.

LSU Baccalaureate Speaker Named

BATON ROUGE, (Special)—Dr. J. Howard Williams, president of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, will deliver the Baccalaureate Sermon at Louisiana State University June 1.

Some 925 students will receive degrees at the commencement exercises scheduled for 3 p.m. in the Agricultural Center. Baccalaureate services will be held at 10 a.m. the same day.

DR. J. H. WILLIAMS
Baccalaureate Speaker

Dr. Williams has served as executive secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas at two different times, and has served as pastor of a number of Baptist churches in Texas. He was president of the Texas Convention in 1938 and served as president of the Board of Trustees of Oklahoma Baptist University in 1944. He is now a member of the executive committee of the Baptist World Alliance.

Dr. Williams, who recently returned from a trip to the Orient, has traveled extensively in Europe the Near East and the Holy Land.

The university said the number of students receiving degrees at the exercises is considerably less than last year's class because 380 students were graduated last January, the first time in 14 years that LSU has sponsored mid-year commencement.

Among this year's degree candidates will be about 300 graduate and professional students. With the conferring of degrees this spring, the university's total number of graduates will have exceeded 37,000.

Bible Words for Today

DEUTERONOMY 33:27—"The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms...." (King James Version)

These sublime words constitute one of the sunlit peaks in the majestic mountain range of Old Testament Scripture. They were born in the heart of one of the master spirits of the ages at a time of national crisis.

They were inspired of God and designed to point for weary pilgrims the way to a source of unfailing strength for all time to come. They have been like streams of healing waters to multitudes of marchers along life's trail across the centuries. To the lonely they have brought cheer, to the sorrowing comfort, and to the weary rest.

They speak of two attributes of God. They remind us of His strength and of His tenderness. In this refuge we find security. In His everlasting arms we find love. Man is at his best when he feels his need of God most. Perhaps that is why many of life's sweetest lessons are learned in life's bitterest experiences. Myriads of people today attest the truth of this promise which sustained God's people in the long ago.

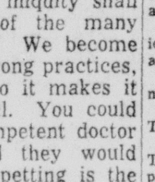
MY ANSWER by Billy Graham



QUESTION: My mother has forbidden me to indulge in petting when I go out with boys. All the kids do it, and don't you think she is just old-fashioned?

ANSWER: Petting is one of the major problems for the teenager today. Because it is so generally done, I am not surprised that a Christian young person should wonder about it. One time Jesus said that "Because iniquity shall abound, the love of the many shall become cold." We become so accustomed to wrong practices, and growing used to it makes it seem less of an evil. You could have asked any competent doctor or physiologist and they would have told you that petting is the preliminary act to the sex relation. To excite oneself when satisfaction is neither safe nor right is harmful to your constitution and to your mental life as well. It is known that there are times when young persons are unable to control themselves once excited. If those who counsel this way do so from the physiological and psychological point of view, I am sure that the Christian young person would not want to jeopardize his spiritual victory and his effective witness for a brief moment of unsatisfactory excitement.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson - sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 19, 1957.

The Golden Text is: "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:53).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson - sermon is the following from the Bible: "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?" (Isa. 2:22).

The lesson - sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortal body and mind are one, and that one is called man; but a mortal is not man, for man is immmortal"

These plants form ...er buds in the summer. ...ven't pruned these early ...oomers, do it at once. ...plants require heavier ...han others. A good practice is to remove sole of the oldest branches at the ground each year to control size of plants and to get more growth for flowering among the plants that should be pruned this way. Other plants which should be pruned this way are: nandina, spireas, forsythia, Japanese magnolia, flowering quince, winter honeysuckle, flowering peach, flowering almond and large growing azaleas.

There are several reasons for pruning shrubs. The first reason is to shape and control size of plants. We prune to stimulate growth of new wood. Usually three or four new branches will grow at the point where one is cut. So be sure to cut where you want new growth. Another reason for pruning plants is to get more flowers. So, keep in mind what you want to accomplish when pruning each plant.

Happy Meals With Cheese

Some of the healthiest nations of the world make cheese a regular part of their diet. Budget watchers calorie watchers, old folks and youngsters find cheese a mainstay for regular meals and snacks. If you watch calories you will find that a small amount of cheese has a lot of staying power. Also, you can count cheese one of the best things that ever happened to your budget. One of the blessings of cottage cheese is its low-caloric content, whether creamed or uncreamed. There's little or no waste to cheese. Its flavor and nutritious goodness can contribute to low-cost meals, lunch boxes and in-between snacks. The associate nutritionist with the Agricultural Extension Service at Louisiana State University, Mrs. Irene Turner, points out that three-fourths pound of American Cheddar cheese will supply more protein than a pound of meat with a medium amount of bone. She says that cheese can be readily and completely digested by all ages.

Sources of Vitamin C

At this time it is very easy not to get a rich vitamin C food daily, for prices of citrus fruits may be out of bounds for the budget. But check on the new products such as frozen and dried citrus concentrates and canned juices and include tomato.

Vitamin C foods are needed daily, for vitamin C is not stored in the body. Today we know that vitamin C works with calcium in developing sound bones, teeth and healthy gums. Vitamin C helps to prevent hemorrhaging. Oranges, grapefruit, strawberries, watermelon, cantaloupes, tomatoes contain good amounts of vitamin C.

Turnip greens, collars, green pepper contain vitamin C. Irish potatoes have some vitamin C. You must remember to cook vegetables only until they are tender. Vitamin C is very easily destroyed by heat. And that is one reason why we say a citrus fruit or tomato must be included because so often vegetables are cooked too long, and there is very little vitamin C left for you. Serve as many of the fruits and vegetables raw, so as to save the vitamin C for you.

See you next Sunday.

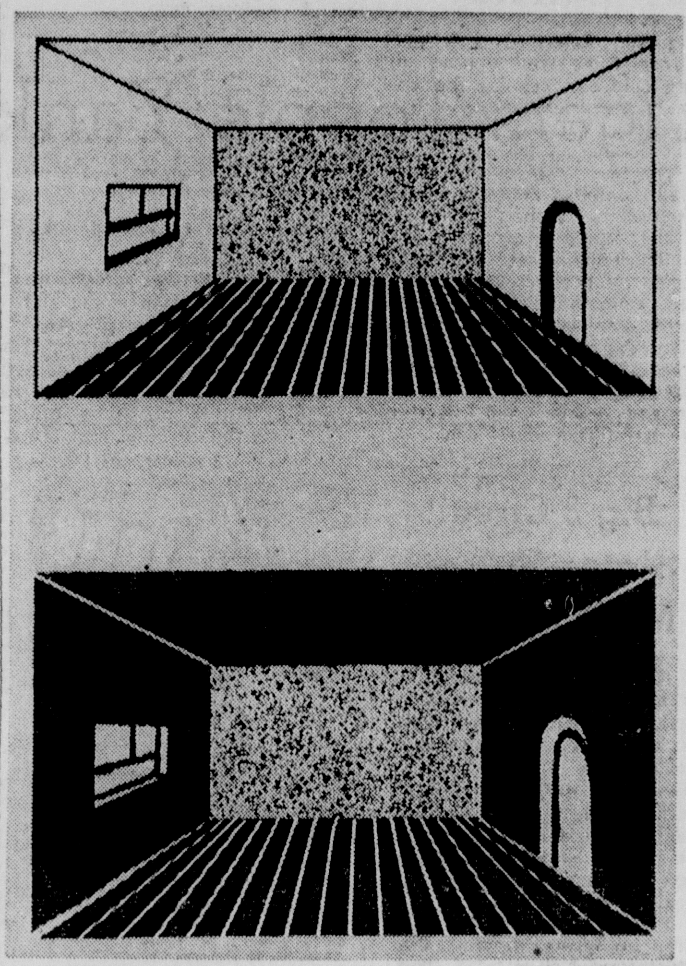
Lawn Troubles

By MILDRED SWIFT

When St. Augustine was first started in the South, we thought that this surely was a lawn grass that would be bug resistant. In the last few yesars, though, we've found the chinch bug kills the grass in round areas. For this we use 6 per cent chlordane, dusting the dead area a foot or more out on the uninjured sod. Sod webworms just destroy the turf in large areas, using no particular pattern. Dust with 10 DDT and water down well.



COLOR CHANGES SIZE OF ROOM—Note how in the top the use of light colors seems to expand the room while in the bottom the use of dark colors on the three walls makes the area look small and cramped. Note too that the floor treatment is exactly alike but it appears to change proportions with the wall treatment.

There Is More To Color Then First Meets The Eye

Next time you argue with your spouse, suggest finishing the argument in a green room. You're less likely to lose your head there, say color scientists.

Science has now definitely established that color cannot only fool you on size, shape and distance, but can make you happy or sad, help keep you alert or slow down your mental and physical reactions.

Psychologists had long suspected this, but the power of color has only recently been confirmed by a 2-year-long research program at The Johns Hopkins University in cooperation with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. Through a series of experiments it was discovered that children, students, patients and workers could be affected — for better or worse — by the colors surrounding them.

With color — and color — alone — you can push walls back, raise or lower your ceiling, have sunshine instead of goom, make a barn - like room seem friendly, even make the corners of your mouth turn up or down.

All you need to know is what each color will do for you . . . and plan accordingly.

The Basic Six

Most homes are decorated in two or more of the following colors: violet, blue, green, yellow, orange, red.

The first three — violet, blue and green — are "cool" colors. They remind you of mountain shadows, sky, still lakes, give a sense of coolness, spaciousness and rest. The Johns Hopkins experiments proved that "cool" colors have the power to calm the mind, quiet the body and reduce muscular tension. They're "retreating" colors, too — they blur at the distance and can be used to soften harsh outlines.

If Junior isn't doing well at school, for example, try redoing his study area in a "cool" color—it's conducive to concentration. A warm south or west room can be "cooled" by decorating it in these colors. And if your living room gives a somewhat cramped appearance, consider painting the walls some shade of violet, blue or green — it'll make the room look larger — as much as 17 per cent roomier, according to the Hopkins report.

The other colors—yellow, orange and red — are "warm." Reminiscent of fire and sunshine, they suggest light, warmth, cheer and vitality. They are stimulating, too, and can help overcome moods of depression. The exact opposite of the "cool" group, "warm" colors have a tendency to "advance."

Thus, to make a large, rangy room seem more compact and friendly — use "warm" colors. If you want to accentuate your sofa —or dramatize any other single object in a room — have it done in a "warm" color. Or if a cold north room is your problem, give it a cheerful, cozy atmosphere by doing it in a "warm" color combination.

Harmony

This is of the utmost imporance. While either "warm" or "cool" colors should dominate a room, they should not rule it with a mailed fist. A room done entirely in red would soon tire the eyes, get on your nerves. You must strive for balance.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Annual Flowers Grow In Varied Conditions

By William Lanier Hunt

Annuals that came up reluctantly and had to be nursed through the cold nights last month will come bursting throug the soil now and grow into fine little plants before you can get them transplanted.

This gardener is more than willing to pay the florists for those early annuals they have raised in the warmth of the greenhouses. No one should miss the thrill of sowing annuals in mid-May, however. One can indulge in a real orgy of giving away the huge surplus of little plants. There are always many, many more than anyone could possibly transplant, and every year, little zinnias and marigolds and petunias bloom luxuriously in the seed beds where they were sown.

If you are the kind of gardener who can mercilessly pull up the extra seedlings, then sow your seeds right where the plants are to grow. They will bloom a week earlier when planted in the beds. This system has the advantage of filling in the blank spots in your flower beds right away.

Some annuals are really hot weather lovers and will grow off with no delay whatsoever if the soil is good. Among these heat lovers are zinnias, marigolds, petunias, cleome, ageratum, balsam, cockscomb, gourds and some of the South African annuals like African daisies (Dimorphotheca) and Arctotis. Do not make the mistake of thinking that many of these heat loving and drought resisting annuals do not like water. They do like it and respond to it in spite of the fact that they can get along better than other plants when they have to undergo droughts.

If you need some quick growing vines to cover something or screen you or to dress up a trellis or house wall, gourds will do this for you. The canary bird flower will do this, too. It has interesting little flowers and pretty foliage. For places where you sit in the evening, by all means grow a moon vine. You can watch the flowers open in early evening. It is not at all too late to plant morning - glories of all kinds, including the heavenly blue kind.

Climbing nasturtiums make a better ground cover or bank cover than they do vine unless you have a lot of patience to keep them going up their support. Aphids often get them, too, and it is best to have some other vine you can count on.

Our wild maypops in the fields make vigorous vines. These perennial passion flowers climb up quickly onto any support. They come back every year from the ground. To remove the dead vines after frost, you can set fire to them and burn them off their supports if you will grow them on wire, instead of wooden supports. Moved with a ball of dirt, they will transplant easily from the fields and provide you with about the quickest growing vine you can find for summer shade. Of course, you will have to keep the newly transplanted wine well watered for a week or ten days.

The root is vigorous, and, ... you kill the tops in movi... species you will soon have ... vine.

THE HOME SHIFT

Daylilies Thrive With Little Care

By Mildred Swift

Even though the rain and cool weather have dampened the spirits of our faithful daylilies, they're still spectacular in the parks and boulevards around thes Twin Cities. This friend of ours is always more beautiful when planted in large numbers that bloom at the same time. The daylily seldom disappoints us. There are varieties that bloom from early spring to late frost. They can be moved at any time. Many are evergreen and will they go through any drouth with flying colors. They respond to watering, fertilizing and mulching but will bloom without either. They're beautiful along garden paths, on hill sides and slopes and as border line plantings. When you divide your lilies and have an overflow, please call me and let's offer them to other gardeners.

More Gardening

Just after the Confederate jasmine drops its blooms is the time to prune. Just shear the plant, cutting off long tendrils and stems close to the main vine. This will cause the plant to thicken and be green and glossy with few limbs showing. It will bloom even more profusely next spring.

Coleus is excellent for planting for summer color. The cold kills it in the winter, but you can always carry in some sprigs to use as house plants. When the warm weather comes again these sprigs can be planted outside again. The colors in coleus are luscious. The purple wandering jew can be treated the same way, also, the green and white variegated. This green and white brightens dark corners in the garden and all jew grows well in the shade, even dense, dark shade.

Oleanders root so easily, even in a jar of water. Give some cuttings to your friends. If you want to enjoy the blooms from your plants, plunge the stems in water, up to their necks as soon as you cut them. Otherwise they'll wither in your arrangements.

Food News

You're better off than you think. Higher prices sound pretty discouraging, but prices have little meaning when they stand alone. Prices need to be compared to incomes. The average American factory worker needed to work 42½ minutes to buy a pound of beef in 1919. In 1956 he only needed 20 minutes working time to buy a pound of beef.

Now that the weather is really warming up, menu planners are thinking in terms of salads and all that goes in them. The overall supply of fresh vegetables is expected to be somewhat smaller in supply than last year. A substantially smaller tomato crop is expected but there will be more asparagus, cucumbers, lettuce and celery. Serve lettuce alone, quartered, shredded or chopped or combine it with fruits or vegetables. Here are some salad suggestions:

(1) Sliced onions on a slice of lettuce with French dressing, (2) Fresh young beets boiled, served on lettuce with dressing (3) chopped celery with cauliflower flowerettes and dressing (4) cooked green beans, with cheese cubes and French dressing, (5) grated carrots, pineapple and raisins, (6) Peach halves with cottage cheese, (7) tomatoes stuffed with cream cheese, (8) lettuce, olives and cream cheese chopped, (9) prunes stuffed with cheese (10) chopped crisp bacon and lettuce, (11) avocado filled with chicken or shrimp salad.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are as follows: Monday, Doris Cain, upholstering; Tuesday, Jean Cloy, upholstering; Wednesday, flower arrangements and patio plants; Thursday, Glenda Willet, upholstering; and Friday, Maxine Reeves finishes the upholstering lessons. I'll be on vacation for two weeks, but I'll see you next Sunday.

Flowers Set Mood In Church Service

In a brass footed container Wright designed a triangle mass arrangement of Yucca and Arborvita, filling in the central point of interest with Easter lilies.

A vertical line was designed in a Hammett Original goblet using white gladiolus. Wright suggested that a pair of this arrangement be used in the church.

Mr. Wright designed a symmetrical triangle in a white footed pottery container, using Equisetum, Canna leaves, Arborvita, Gladiolus and Easter lilies. In this arrangement Equisetum formed the strong vertical line. Transition was carried by the white gladiolus. Easter lilies formed the strong focal point and were worked in on either side, making the arrangement artistically complete from all sides. In a white pottery pillow vase day lily buds were used to form the structural line, filling in with Centaurea (Dusty Miller). The focal point was created with rose-pink hollyhocks.

All the arrangements were beautiful and very interesting. Wright said that large bold flowers should be used in the church and suggested that a pair of arrangements be used in churches that called for pairs.

Every church should have a flower committee, whose duty it is to place flowers in the church each Sunday. If the church is small, one person may serve on this committee. A large church should have a large committee with a chairman. The chairmann should be an executive, tactful, understanding and schooled in the principles of flower arrangement. She should handle all memorial funds or other funds alloted to the committee. All churches should include in their budget a sum of money for flowers.

The chairman should be ready at all times to take over the church arrangements when some member of her committee cannot serve. One year term is long enough for a committee to serve at one time. Other members with different taste and new interest should be given a chance to serve.

Flower arrangements in the church should be placed where they can be seen by all, and they must be made so that from any viewpoint they are artistically complete.

Ina Jones in her book "Arranging Church Flowers" says "Now for the things that an arrangement must have. It must be in good proportion to the space it will occupy. It must contrast with the background enough to be separated from it and yet it must not stand out so sharply that the eye cannot leave it. It must be neither too large nor too small for the container.

The flowers must be secure in the container, and the container must rest securely on its table or pedestal. It must be strong enough in color and design to "carry" to the back of the sanctuary. It should be rich in texture and should blend with the religious mood set by the music of the organ. It should fade into the background when the minister begins to speak. If these requirements seem to add up to the impossible, it should be remembered that, in driving a car, one does many things at once, almost unconsciously, so most of these dont's and do's are observed in the same manner. A few simple rules to follow, coupled with discrimination good taste, and everything comes out right."

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

The baseball season has hardly started and already several minor league clubs, some in high classifications, are experiencing troubles that indicate the ills that are befuddling the professional ranks are showing no abatement.

New Orleans, long a solid member of the Southern Association, stands to be sold if advice of the Pelicans' board of directors is accepted. The club stockholders have been told they should sell in the face of dwindling interest in this city of well over half a million population. If sold, some other New Orleans interest could be the buyer to hold the club there. It could go to some other city. Whatever happens, the present trouble indicates the growing risk of running a pro ball club.

The Big State League has a meeting slated today to decide what to do with the Wichita Falls franchise . . . move it or operate it as a road club. Port Arthur in the same Class B Texas circuit also is considered shaky.

The Southwestern League is already operating Pampa as a road club, and reports the Hobbs, N. M., situation unstable. Some action was expected last night on whether to drop Pampa and Hobbs and operate as a six-club league, or, if Hobbs sticks, to move the Pampa club to San Angelo.

The Syracuse, N. Y., club of the Eastern League is in a last ditch fight to keep its franchise. A ticket drive is underway, and Syracuse's fate is due to be known this week. And Bradford, Pa., of the Class D New York-Pennsylvania League is appealing for major league help to stay in business or move to Hornell. Bradford quit last year but returned this season.

Night baseball, once considered the salvation of club finances, isn't what it used to be, but many clubs would be out of business if they had to depend on daytime support. Pro baseball accepted the Abner Doubleday myth as gospel truth and has been fighting to keep public interest ever since. The introduction of Negro players (Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers as the first in the majors) was supposed to attract the dollars of the bettered economic conditions of their race but interest continues to sag.

The major leagues still hold public interest across the country, but all their talk about franchise shifts indicates all is not well even in the majors.

"Any boys who want to workout are invited to visit me," Factor said. "If we can stir up enough interest, we'll attempt affiliation with the Golden Gloves program.

Factor has already purchased gloves, installed punching bags and other gym equipment to aid young fighters in conditioning programs.

The Ouachita river here, to be the scene of the June 30 Silver Cup outboard motor race, is mighty high and can hardly be expected to be within its banks by race time, but Howard Griffin advises that even if the river isn't at a condition more favorable to the racers, the Silver cup events will be run as scheduled.

The racers would like for the river to be at "pool stage" with practically no current. Pool stage is around 13 feet, a level maintained by the Locks and Dam, but with the better than 40-foot stage now, a lot of facilities the racers had expected to use are apparently still going to be under water.

But the show will go on as scheduled. While a strong current might not be favorable to the boatmen, spectator appeal will be as strong as ever.

OUTDOORS

By DION HENDERSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The biggest birdwatching operation on the continent is under way right now, and what the boys with the binoculars see during the next few weeks will have a good deal to do with what duck hunters see next fall — and how long they get to look.

This duck detection project is known formally as the summer waterfowl breeding and nesting ground survey. Most of the men and equipment come from the U. S. Bureau of Fish and Wildlife, but other experts and some of the Canadian Wildlife Service and the fish and game departments of the various states. Private groups like Ducks Unlimited help too.

Purpose of all this is fairly obvious. It's part of the continuing program of getting information necessary for the preparation of waterfowl regulations.

The surveys, and attendant banding operations, which start in May when the wintering ground inventory stops and runs right up to August when the flyway councils get down to business on season dates and bag limits, concentrate on the prairie provinces of Canada and the Dakota pothole country.

However, there's work to be done wherever there are nesting grounds for the continental waterfowl population, and that means from California to Labrador, not to mention Alaska.

Banding of ducks on their nesting ground is important business, too, and a division that raises considerably more perspiration than the population counts which are set up for aerial flights over statistically established transect. But the band—and their return, which is what the management officials ask not too successfully of hunters — are vital in establishing movements of ducks under various circumstance.

The flyway theory of duck migration, for instance, is fairly well established even though it's not fully understood. It's the patterns, and factors that may influence them, that count rather than the exceptions. A duck that's banded in Labrador and is killed in England 21 days later — as one was — is likely to draw public attention, but the game officials would rather know whether 99 per cent of the Labrador ducks friends took a conventional route to Chesapeake Bay. Those are the hard ones to find out about.

Banding, by the way, is carried out not only in this big summer operation, but by various state agencies in both separate and related studies. To keep the records straight, the federal service has collected data on some 7 million bands — not only of ducks but of 600 species of birds—at its Laurel, Md., station. This is the clearing house for all the banding studies.

On the prairie potholes, banding of ducks gets underway in June and continues through the summer period when the success of the current breeding season can be estimated too and hence the number of birds likely to be available for harvest on their way south in the fall. The aircraft will fly some 100,000 miles during the counting, and the ground crews will slosh what seems that many more on foot, with trained retrievers, to roust out all around ducklings and flightless ducks.

But it will all be proved in a good cause, come autumn, when the word comes: "Get down in the blind, boys."

First apprentice to win the Kentucky Derby was Ira Hanford who scored with Bold Venture in 1936. Apprentice Willie Boland scored with Middleground in 1950.

Evening Time Claims Betsy

CAMDEN, N.J., May 18 (AP)— Darby Dan farm Evening Time, expertly handled by veteran Gayle L. Smith, won the $30,450 Betsy Ross Stakes at Garden State Park today before 36,421.

Evening Time, who passed up the Black Eyed Susan at Pimlico this week, returned $27.80, $12.40 and $6.40. Marullah brought her backers $7.20 and $4.20 while Offbeat, coupled with I Dot, paid $2.80.

SUB TURNS TRICK

Tigers Topple Yanks, 2-1

NEW YORK, May 18 (UP)— Second-string catcher Red Wilson, in the game only because first-stringer Frank House was hit by a foul tip in the seventh inning, lined a ninth-inning single that scored Al Kaline from second base today and gave the Detroit Tigers a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Wilson drove in the winning run off Don Larsen. The ball Wilson hit bounced on the foul line, about 25 feet past third base.

arsen, who suffered his first defeat against two victories, sent the Yankees' only run across with a single in the second inning and nursed a 1-0 margin until House led off the seventh with his third homer of the season into the lower right field stands.

In the bottom of the frame, House was hit in the neck by Mickey Mantle's foul tip and was forced to leave the game. The injury was described as minor.

Big 8 Circuit Slates Ruston Meet Tuesday

RUSTON, La., (Special) — The Big Eigh Baseball League will meet here Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the City Hall to advance plans for the opening of its season on June 1, according to L. J. Fox, the league president whose plans to resign the job were balked by popular demand of the league membership.

Season openers will be Bastrop at Springhill, Minden at Ruston, and Bernice at Homer.

Two new managers, Ed Head of Bastrop and Sammy Booras of Minden, will be in the circuit this summer. Head, a former Brooklyn manager, had piloted the Monroe Sports the last three seasons. Returning pilots are Hubert Bowles, Springhill; Billy Henderson, Ruston; Johnny Emmons, Bernice; and Bud McDonald, Homer.

Derby Error By Shoemaker Helps Arcaro

BALTIMORE, Md., May 18 (UP)—Eddie Arcaro, only jockey ever to win the Preakness six times, indicated shortly after victory on Bold Ruler today that the Willie Shoemaker incident in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago helped him in this classic for three year olds.

Shoemaker was set down for 15 days for standing up in the saddle when he mistook the finish line at Churchill Downs.

'That took the pressure off me today," Arcaro said, "otherwise I would have been on the pan. I rode a damn bad race in the Derby but there is nothing I can do about that now. It was very gratifying to win this one for that reason."

Arcaro said he never tried to outrace the swift Federal Hill from the first because "I don't think Federal Hill can beat Bold Ruler over a distance."

Little Boys

SOUTHSIDE WINS

Southside topped Northside 8-5 in the opening game of the West Monroe Little Boys League last night before a large crowd.

Three Southside pitchers gave up only one hit but bases-on-balls and heads up baserunning by the Northsiders got the 5 runs for the losers. Teddy Johnson, Wayne Hardwick and Floyd Allen divided the pitching for the victors and Wayne Clampit and Lawrence Robinson did the catching. Johnson, Hardwick and Robinson hit homers to pace the Southside offense.

Terry Jones, Steve Gilbert, Humble and McCrea pitched for the losers and Worthy and Johnson were the Northside catchers. McCrea got the only hit off the Southside hurlers.

Phillies Trip Cards, 7 To 5, For Simmons

ST. LOUIS, May 18 (UP)—Curt Simmons bore down in the clutches today to notch his third victory of the season as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-5 and sent the Red Birds down to their 10th defeat in 14 home games.

The Phillies, with Granny Hamner driving in three runs and Stan Lopata two, increased their first divsion hold to 2 1-2 games over thes fifth place Cardinals.

The loss went to young Lloyd Merritt, a hometown boy who was the second of four relief pitchers after starter Vinegar Bend Mizell was removed when he missed the plate on 11 of the first 12 pitches.

The veteran Simmons gave up 11 hits, but had the Cardinals in his pocket in the clutches and two of their five runs scored on double plays.

The Phillies pounded out 12 hits with Richies Ashburn getting three and scoring two runs.

LATE HOMER PAYS

White Sox, Orioles Battle To 4-4 Tie

BALTIMORE, Md., May 18 (UP)—Dick Williams hit a home run in the ninth inning at the stroke of the agreed 10:20 p.m. curfew tonight to give the Baltimore Orioles a 4-4 tie with the Chicago White Sox. The curfew was set up to allow the White Sox to catch a train to Boston.

The game will be replayed at a later date.

The game which started at 7 p.m., an hour earlier than usual, was changed from day to night several weeks ago to avoid conflict with today's Preakness stakes at Pimlico.

Until Williams hit his last-second homer off Paul LaPalme, it looked as if the Sox had their seventh straight victory wrapped up by virtue of a four-run rally in the seventh inning. But with the clock ticking off the final seconds, Williams led off the ninth with a high, arching shot into the left field bleachers to save the Orioles from their sixth straight defeat.

Swede, Swiss Pentathlon Teams Arrive

SAN ANTONIO, May 18 (UP)— Arrival of the modern pentathlon teams from Sweden and Switzerland today completed the five-nation field for the international competition at Fort Sam Houston May 21-25.

Already on hand were the squads from the United States, Mexico and Brazil. The Latin-American nations had their teams on hand for more than a week to become accustomed with the San Antonio climate, which usually produces mid-80 degree weather in mid-afternoon, the time set for most competition.

Gen. Gustaf Dyrssen, former Olympic pentathlon winner, is in charge of the Swedish team with Capt. Stig Kuylen Stierna as coach. Team members are Lt. Thor Henning, Lt. Per-Ove Nilsson, Lt. Sture Ericson and Lt. Arne Nordin.

Riding events lead off the program starting at 2 p.m. (cst) May 21.

Swoon's Son Cops LaSalle Handicap Run

CHICAGO, May 18 (AP) — Swoon's Son, a 4-year-old colt owned by E. Gay Drake, broke through the fog at midstretch and rode to an impressive victory today in Balmoral's $21,900 LaSalle Handicap at Washington Park.

Swoon's Son finished one and three - quarters lengths ahead of Rothmore farm's Munchausen. Lori - El, owned by Michael Soto and A. E. Berke, was a distant third.

Alma's Heart, Sea O'Erin, Obair and French Bleu completed the field of seven in that order.

The victory was worth $12,675 for Swoon's Son who paid $3.80, $2.80 and $2.40 and upped his total earnings to $574,805. Munchausen returned $5.20 and $3.40, and Lori-El paid $3.

Ridden by Dave Erb Swoon's Son ran the three - quarters of a mile in 1:11 2-5 but the field was visible only the last eighth of a mile because of fog. A crowd of 17,645 braved the cold and rain to watch Swoon's Son make his 1957 Chicago debut.

Giants Tag Reds; Gomez Cops Sixth

CINCINNATI, May 18 (UP)—Willie Mays blasted a home run with one mate aboard in the fourth inning and stole four bases today to pace the New York Giants to a 6-3 victiry over the Cincinnati Redlegs and make Reuben Gomez the major leagues' first six-game winner of the season.

The victory snapped the Giants' three-game losing streak and reduced the Redlegs' National League lead over Milwaukee to a half game. It was only the Redlegs' second defeat in 17 games since April 28.

Mays' homer, a drive over the most distant corner of the right center field fence, climaxed a three-run New York rally that knocked out Joe Nuxhall and tagged him with his first loss. The Redlegs got to Gomez for a pair of runs in the second inning to lead 2-1, but two singles and a forceout produced the tying run for the Giants and Mays followed with his fourth homer of the season to give them a 4-2 lead.

Gomez, who did not win his sixth game of the 1956 season until Aug. 1, protected the lead thereafter, yielding only a seventh inning homer to first baseman George Crowe. It was Crowe's sixth of the season.

Mays ran wild on the bases, stealing second and third each time after singling in two other innings. He led the Giants' 14-hit attack on Nuxhall, Art Fowler and Hershell Freeman.

Dutch Women Swimmers Set World Marks

BLACKPOOL, England, May 18 (UP)—Holland's star women simmers set three world records today in the windup of a two-day meet against Britain. The meet, held in the derby 55-yard indoor salt water pool, ended in a 78-78 tie.

The Dutch women's quartet established a world record for the 440 yard medley relay events and during the course of the race Greetje Kraan set a new 110-yard backstroke standard.

The medley relay team, composed of Lenie De Nijs, Ada Den Haan, Atie Voorbij and Miss Kraan, swam the 440-yard distance in four minutes, 57 seconds. In order, they swam the backstroke, breast stroke, butterfly and freestyle, 110 yards each.

In an earlier race, Margaret Edwards of Britain had bettered the International Amateur Swimming Federation's standard for the women's 110-yard backstroke distance by winning in 1:13.5. However, 1. minutes later, Miss Kraan was clocked in 1:13.2. on her leg of the medley relay event.

Miss Den Haan set the other world record when she won the 220-yard breast stroke race in 2:52.6. This clipped 3.8 seconds off the old mark.

Easterner's 64 Brings 2 Stroke Bulge

By ERNEST BARCELLA

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va., May 18 (UP)— Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., gave proof today that he is no one-day golf wonder.

The slender, 27-year-old Harney played another spectacular round —asizling 64—to recapture the lead in the third round of the Sam Snead Golf Festival with a 196 total.

Harney, the first day leader with a 63, did it the hard way today. He outshot the great Ben Hogan, who had overtaken him at the halfway mark in this 72-hole tournament.

Hogan, despite an ailing back that almost forced him to withdraw this morning fashioned a three-under par 67. This dropped him into second place with a 198, two strokes behind Harney.

Peter Cooper of Melbourne, Australia, who has won the British Open three straight times, fired a 65 for an even 200. This put him in a third-place tie with Billy Casper of Bonita, Calif., who had a 67 today.

But this was not the best day for Sam Snead, the tournament host. Snead, tied for second at the start of today's round, fell upon evil ways on the incoming nine and had to settle for a par 70 which gave him a 54-hold total of 202. Snead was moving along at a three-under par pace and giving it a great try when he hit his tee shot out of bounds on the 13th and took a six.

Then came Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N.Y. E.J. (Dutch) Harrison of St. Louis and Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y. with 204's. Harmon climbed into that bracket with a 64; Besselink with a 65 and Harrison with a 68.

This was a day when a 64 was a fashionable score. Besides Harney and Harmon, a similar spectacular round was achieved by Mike Fetchick of Yonkers, N.Y. This enabled Fetchick to move into to move into the 205 bracket with the Hebert brothers — Lionel and Jay — of Sanford, Fla., Johnny Revolta of Skokie, Ill.; Jim Ferree of Winston - Salem, N.C.; Pat Schwab of Dayton, Ohio; and Dick Mayer of LaJolla, Calif.

AARON FIRES ATTACK

Braves Shade Pirates, 6-5

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 18 (UP)— Hank Aaron hit two home runs, one to the "wrong" field, and drove in four runs to lead the Milwaukee Braves to a 6-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today in 40-degree weather.

Aaron's three - run homer to right field, the wrong field for a right handed hitter, put the Braves ahead to stay in the fourth inning after trailing, 4-3.

Aaron, the defending National League batting champion, got a single besides his homers to raise his batting average to .278. Before today's game he was only .10 percentage points behind league-leading Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The homers also made Aaron the major league leader in that department with 11.

The upstart Pirates, seeking their fourth victory in a row, rocked southpaw Warren Spahn with a run in the first and sent him to the bench with three runs in the fourth. Lew Burdette relieved Spahn and allowed only four hits to win his fifth victory against two losses.

Haas Event Nears 5-Man Final Tour

Only one more match remains to be played in the Cramer Haas Memorial Handicap Golf Tournament to determine the lone remaining position in the five - man medal play finals to determine the champion of the ninth annual event at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Already set for the 18-hole title round are Ivy Jordan, H. C. Menuet, Tom McMahan, and Theo Terzia.

There're awaiting a match between Dr. J. W. Schonlau, the defending champion, and John Godfrey to decide the fifth man in the final tour of the B. D. course with Dr. Schonlau still facing the jinx that no champion has ever repeated in the previous tourneys.

The original field of 160 contenders has been reduced by match play to the six remaining players.

The pairings were made up of five brackets for the first time in the tourney with the winner of each bracket advancing to the medal 'ay final round.

While Dr. Schonlau still must beat Godfrey to win the first bracket, Jordan beat Bob Carson for the second bracket, I up; Menuet stopped Frank Davis, 2 up, in the final match of the third bracket; McMahan beat Curtis Cook, 3 and 1, in the fourth bracket, and Terzia won the fifth bracket when he beat Stanley Bagwell 1 up.

SILVER BAT FOR AARON

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 18 (UP)— National League President Warren Giles will present a silver bat to Milwaukee Braves' outfielder Hank Aaron before Sunday's game with the New York Giants. The bat is emblematic of the league batting title which Aaron won with a .328 average last year.

Minor League Openers Top Majors' Draw

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 18 (AP)—Minor league baseball outdrew the majors by 197,625 in opening game attendance this season.

The "catch" is that 26 minor loops were involved, against two major circuits, in figures announced today by George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues.

The majors attracted 427,702 to the opening games, but the minors "plagued by rain, snow, cold weather and even tornadoes," according to Trautman, drew 625,327. A year ago the minors were a magnet for 615,586, and this year's over-all increase of 9,741 was credited to the class AA Mexican loop where the 60,271 attendance was 19,633 over the 1956 figure.

"While we do not intend by these figures to compare minor and major league baseball," Trautman said, "it is most significant that as always more persons attend games at our level.

Our detractors sometimes try to spread the word that the fans are deserting us, but the figures never seem to bear this out.

"Any program which can attract that many persons on a particular occasion is a vital force to be reckoned with."

But for the inclement weather, Trautman said, the minors probably would have shown a much greater increase over last year. Of the 26 leagues surveyed, 14 showed an increase and 12 a decrease, and Trautman said most of the latter were in the rain belt.

An encouraging aspect, Trautman said, was that 10 of the 14 leagues showing increases were "little fellows" in class B and below.

Softball League Groups To Meet Tuesday Night

An attempt will be made to form a Civic Softball League at a 7 o'clock meeting at the Monroe Community Center and two earlier meeting will be held to form the Midget, Junior and Senior Softball League on Tuesday night.

The Midgets and Juniors will meet at 6:00 at the Community Center and the Seniors will follow with a meeting at 6:30. Any church, club or neighborhood groups interested in entering are urged to attend these meetings.

The Civic Softball League meeting will be the final attempt to form the league. Any clubs or commercial outfits who are interested in entering a team are requested to be present.

Arizona School Boy Is First To Vault 15 Ft.

PHOENIX, Arix., May 18 (AP)—A shy, lanky 18-year-old has become the first high school boy to vault 15 feet.

Making his last appearance as a high school athlete, Jim Brewer of North Phoenix High School cleared 15 feet 1-8 inch last night in a state American Legion meet. It was the third weekend in a row that Brewer had bettered his own national prep mark.

He holds the 14-foot-2-inch record officially recognized by the A.A.U. which he set back in 1955. This year he got a new, springy fiberglass pole and climbed from 14 5¼ to 14 6¼ to last night's magic mark.

KILPATRICK VEEP

RUSTON, La., May 18 (AP)—The Gulf States Conference today elected Roland Cambre of Southwestern Louisiana Institute president.

Other officers elected at the meeting included Arnold Kilpatrick of Northeast State, vice president; Frank M. Rolufs of McNeese State, secretary-treasurer.

Named to the GSC executive committee were Luther Marlar of Southeastern and Cecil Crowley of Louisiana Tech.

Cambre succeeds S. W. Nelken of Northwestern State, who now becomes a member of the executive committee.

In other action, the officials voted not to allow the signing of basketball prospects until the end of the various high school state basketball tournaments. They also adopted a six-year revolving home-and-home basketball schedule.

The officials also approved a motion to form a football officials organiation and decided to limit all-conference teams to football. The Louisiana Sports Writers Assn. will select the all-GSC football team in cooperation with the conference.

Conference champions were awarded trophies for titles earned during the past year. Receiving trophies were Southeastern in football; McNeese in basketball, Southeastern and Northwestern who tied for the baseball crown, and Tech in Golf and Tennis. The track and field title was being decided last night.

At a meeting of coaches, GSC "Coach of the Year" awards were presented to NSC baseball coach Alvin (Cracker) Brown, McNeese basketball coach Ralph Ward and Northeast football coach Devone Payne. A special award was presented Harry Turpin of NSC in recognition of his 31 years of coaching and contributions to the GSC.

TRADE TALK

NEW YORK, May 18 (UP) — Chuck Dressen, an assistant to the president of the Washington Senators, arrived at Yankee Stadium today for trade talks with the world champion New York Yankees.

Favored Iron Liege Trails Two Lengths

BALTIMORE, Md., May 18 (UP)— Bold Ruler, the beaten Kentucky Derby favorite, smashed back from that defeat with a powerful rush through the stretch at Pimlico today to win the $133,800 Preakness Stakes and shatter the triple crown chances of Iron Liege.

Bold Ruler swept across the finish line two full lenths ahead of Calumet Farm's Iron Liege, who scored a surprise victory in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago and was favored today to move another notch closer to triple crown immortality.

But Iron Liege just couldn't stay with the powerful Bold Ruler in this mile and three-sixteenths classic and just about managed to beat the surprising Inside Tract by a neck for second place.

With jockey Eddie Arcaro, first whipping with his left hand and then strapping the big son of Nasullah with his left Bold Ruler gave his jockey a sixth triumph in the run for the black-eyed Susans and trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons a fourth victory in this classic.

Bold Ruler, owned by Wheatly Stable, was a dead fit horse for the race and he had to be to win it. First he battled with the speedy Federal Hill for the early lead. Although Federal Hill, with Willie Carstens riding, headed Bold Ruler in the initial run through the stretch, Bold Ruler beat his fast-stepping rival to the first turn and had things his own way from then on.

The long - legged Bold Ruler pulled even with Federal Hill as the pair swept around the turn into the back stretch and put him away in the run down the backstretch.

Bold Ruler streaked under the wire in 1:56 1-6, the third fastest running of the Preakness Stakes but far off the track and stakes record set in the Preakness two years ago when Nassau, Arcaro and Mr. Fitz combined to win Maryland's three-year-old classic for Belair Stud.

Bold Ruler hauled down a winner's purse of $65,250 as he added the Preakness Stakes to earlier triumphs this year in the Bahamas, the Flamingo and the Wood Memorial. He now has earned $396,825 during two years of campaigning.

Bold Ruler returned $4.80, $2.60 and $2.40 across the board in his 12th win in 18 races. Iron Liege, only slightly favored over Bold Ruler by 10 cents to the dollar, returned $2.40 and $2.20. Inside Tract paid $4.00 in the small field.

TIGERS TRIP BOSOX

Unbeaten Trucks Claims Fifth Victory In Relief

BOSTON, May 18 (UP)Veteran relief ace Virgil Trucks, pitching with an injured toe, and slugger Gus Zernial with four RBI's, delivered handsomely today to give the Kansas City Athletics a 7-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox, ending a four-game losing streak.

The unbeaten Trucks, a five-game winner in relief, hurled five-hit two run ball over the final three and two-thirds innings to rescue starter Wally Burnette's third victory against one loss. Zernial provided Burnette with a 4-1 lead with a run-scoring first inning double and a three-run homer, his sixth, in the fifth.

But the young Kansas City knuckle baller had to yield to Trucks in the sixth when the Red Sox pushed across two runs. Trucks, who celebrated his 38th birthday last month, had his uneasy moments in the final inning when Boston loaded the bases.

Pinch batter Mickey Vernon cracked a double to right as the first man up and Trucks then walked Jimmy Piersall. A double-play wiped out two men with Vernon going to third. Ted Williams walked and Dick Genert singled scoring Vernon. Trucks gave another pass to Jensen, filling the sacks. But Biliy Consolo, who had delivered a two-run single in the sixth to drive out Burnette, hit into a force play to end the game.

Kansas City got the ultimate winning run in the seventh inning when reliefer Rudy Minarcin, the third Red Sox hurler, walked Zernial and Lou Skizas to start the frame. After Hal Smith hit into a force play sending Zernial to third, Vic Power delivered a sacrifice fly to center and scored Zernial. That put the A's ahead 6-4 and Joe DeMaestri smashed his second home run over the left field wall off George Susce in the eighth, for the last Kansas City run.

Chattanooga Hitter Tops In Southern

ATLANTA, May 18—UP— Stan Roseboro, Chattanooga's steady-slugging second baseman, continued to set the pace for Southern Association batters this week for the second time in a row.

The stocky infielder, last year's batting champ, wound up the week with a .386 average, leading Bob Coasts of Memphis with .384, Sam Miley of Birmingham, .370, and Ben Downs of Little Rock, .366. All have played in more than 20 games.

Statistics released by the Howe News Bureau show Nashville still on top in team batting and fielding. Birmingham is double - play kingpin with 45, trailed by New Orleans 42.

Birmingham's Larry Osborne dropped his average to .288, but is ahead in runs-batted-in with 33 and in homers with seven. Donald Nicholas of Nashville has 11 stolen bases to lead that department.

For pitchers, righthander Bob Kelly of Nashville has six wins and two defeats in 45 innings or more, and Dick Kleinsmith of New Orleans has a good 2.74 earned run average. Nashville southpaw Jerry Davis has fanned 74 batters for the most strikeouts.

Young Glen Hobbie, Memphis relief pitcher, holds the best won-loss record with 5-0 for less than 25 innnings.

Indians Hold 2nd As Nats Fall, 8-1

WASHINGTON, May 18 (UP)— Chico Carrasquel and bonus-boy Ken Kuhn each drove in two runs and Jim Busby hit a home run to help the Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators, 8-1 today for their fifth straight victory.

The triumph was the Indians ninth in the last 10 games and enabled them to take over undisputed possession of second place in the American League race. The setback was Washington's fourth straight.

Cal McLish, who entered the game with two out in the third inning after starter Mike Garcia aggravated a leg injury, pitched shutout ball the rest of the way to receive credit for his second relief victory.

4 RECORDS FALL

LSU Spikemen Capture Southeastern's Crown

By LEROY SIMMS

BIRMINGHAM, May 18 (AP) — Four new records were set today as the LSU Tigers won the Southeastern Conference track title.

Senior Harry Carpenter, the LSU wheelhorse, won the low hurdles and the 220-yard dash, took second in the 100-yard dash and third in the high hurdles for 17 points. He also ran a leg on the 440-relay, in which the champions finished second, and a leg in the mile relay in which LSU took first place.

LSU's winning total was 59½, well ahead of the 34 3-5 amassed by Auburn and 33 3-5 by Florida in second and third places respectively. Alabama came fourth with 27 3-5.

Bill Duckworth of Georgia today broke the javelin record he set yesterday with a thrust of 229 feet, 9½ inches. His best in the preliminaries was 228-4, and the old record was the one he set here a year ago at 220-6.

Tennessee's Ed Murphey shook off the effects of a hot afternoon to run the mile in 4 minutes, 14.8 seconds, breaking the mark of 4 minutes, 16.2 seconds set in 1952 by Alf Holmberg, also of Tennessee.

Fred Berman, big Ga. Tech weight man, set a new shot record at 54 feet, one-half inch. He set the old record last year at 53 feet, 11½ inches.

The fourth record fell to the Florida 440-relay team of Don Lucey, Jim Smith, Lincoln Knowles and Ellis Goodloe, at 42 seconds. Florida had set the old mark at 42.5 in 1954.

Auburn took second honors in a close race with defending champion Florida by getting in a three-way tie for second place in the pole vault, the day's final event. Bill Yarbrough, top scorer in the meet as a sophomore two years ago, won the high hurdles, placed second in the broad jump and netted another three-fifths in the high jump, for one of the day's best efforts.

Berman was the only double winner besides Carpenter. He took the discus with a mark of 151 feet, one-quarter inch in addition to his record in winning the shot.

Bob Buntin, Vanderbilt half-miler, grabbed that race in one minute, 54.8 seconds in one of the day's surprises. It was the first top finish for a Vandy performer since 1943.

Times in the hurdles and short dashes were hampered by a brisk breeze.

Team scoring after the four leaders was:

Georgia 21½; Miss. State 19 3-5; Vanderbilt 15 3-5; Ga. Tech 15; Tennessee 9, and Kentucky 4.

First place winners for LSU besides Carpenter were King Mott in the 440, in 47.9 seconds; Tommy Dukes in the broad jump with 24 feet, 1½ inches and Jerry Moore in the pole vault. Dukes also tied with George Poss of Georgia in the high jump at 6 feet, 3½ inches.

Florida's Ellis Goodloe took the 100 yard dash in 10.1 seconds, slowed by the wind, but was nosed out by Carpenter in the 220 in 21.5 seconds.

Kraft Tournament Dated At Bastrop

BASTROP, La. (Special) —More than 300 entrants are expected in the 23rd annual Kraft Paper Golf Tournament scheduled at the Morehouse Country Club in here July 2-3-4, according to J. E. Pate country club president.

Named as chairmen of the three-day meet are Jacob Seligman and Warren Stevenson.

A total of $1,500 in prizes will be made avaliable to top flight amateurs and the tourney opening day will feature the largest pro-amateur in the south with prizes for professionals and special awards for amateurs. Prizes valued at $400 will be given the first day, Tuesday, July 2, the club president pointed out.

All entrants will be guests of the Morehouse club at a free barbecue, dance and swimming throughout the tournament.

An entrance fee of $12.50 must be paid before the qualifying round is started and entrants may play their qualifying round any time between June 16 and July 1. Beginning June 16, the course will be available for practice rounds by entrants who have already paid the entrance fee.

Qualifying rounds for amateurs will be 18 holes medal play and then flights of 16 players each will be made for the championship and first flights. These flights will play 18-hole matches. All other flights will be composed of eight men who will play nine-hole matches.

A prize will be awarded for medalist and three prizes for each flight—winner, runner-up and consolation winner.

The three-day program will include: July 2-8 to 10 a.m., qualifying round; 1 p.m., pro-amateur, 18-hole match; 1 p.m. qualifying for medalist and championship flight only; 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., cocktail hour; 9 p.m., dance.

July 3-7 a.m., first round all flights, other than championship and first flights; 8 a.m., first round matches, championship and first flight; 1 p.m. second round, championship and first flight; 7 p.m., cocktail hour and barbecue.

July 4 — 7 a.m., semi-final matches all flights; 1 p.m., finals, all flights and consolation finals, all flights; 7 p.m., awarding of prizes.,

Information may be secured from Pate, 'phone 2500, Bastrop; Seligman or Stevenson, 'phone 28 or 38 Bastrop.

Jackie Cupit of Ruston was crowned champion of the Kraft Paper Tournament in 1956 and Tommy Beard of Baton Rouge was the winner in 1954 and in 1955.

Mer Rouge Gun Club To Hold Trapshooting

MER ROUGE, La., (Special) — The Mer Rouge Gun Club will start trap shooting Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

A new Western White Flyer trap has been installed. Shooting is open to all shooters. Nc shells are furnished by the club. All shooters furnish their own shells.

Club charges are 75 cents per round of 25 targets. The club has been organized as a strictly non-profit organization. However, 12 gauge shells can be purchased at the range and are furnished by a local merchant.

The trap range is located just north off the Mer Rouge-Bastrop highway at the outskirts of Mer Rouge.

Shooters from Monroe, Bastrop, Rayville, Oak Grove, Oak Ridge and all nearby communities are especially invited to attend these shoots.

Shadow Over Monte Carlo Event Today

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, May 18 (UP)— The Grand Prix of Monte Carlo, opening event of the European racing season, takes place Sunday in the face of mounting demands for a ban on auto racing.

A long series of fatal accidents climaxed by last Sunday's Mille Miglia slaughter and today's crash by British driver Peter Collins has set off a hue and cry for a ban.

The winner of Sunday's blood-soaked Mille Miglia, Piero Taruffi, of Italy, announced today he is quitting road racing forever.

Juan Januel Fangio, world driving champion, will be favored Sunday and will start in the number one position, since he clocked the best time during the three day trials which ended today.

Fangio, hurtling through the treacherous 3.145-kilometers (nearly two miles) track through the city, was timed in 1:42.7 in his 2.5 - liter maserati, averaging 110.245 miles per hour.

The last day of the trials was nearly fatal to several racers.

Collins, driving a Ferrari, skidded on an oil spot, went through a light hay bale protection pile, and was stopped from plunging into the blue Mediterraneann only when his car rammed a mooring post.

Maurice Trintignant, in a Ferrari, went into a spectacular spin at the "tobacco shop curve" on the Monaco Quay.

Fingio, who was following him, barely had time to apply his driving skill and swerve and to avoid hitting the Ferrari broadside.

Officials and experts made no secret of their fears that a serious accident during the three - hour race Sunday might rouse public opinion to demand their governments ban further racing.

You Get a Keotane®-Clean Engine
You Get 14.6% More Horsepower

Only with Skelly Supreme the cleaning, cleaning gasoline

Read how Keotane dissolves gluey engine gum, "unglues" power-stealing carbon and lead, to give you an average of 14.6% more horsepower output:

Engine gum is gluey stuff. Carbon and lead deposits stick to it. These hard, black crusts on pistons, rings, valves and spark plugs rob you of a tremendous amount of valuable horsepower.

In fact, excessive carbon and lead deposits probably cost car owners more money than all other engine problems combined.

Keotane "Unglues" Carbon

The way to get rid of carbon and lead deposits is to get rid of gum. Keotane in Skelly Supreme Gasoline dissolves gum . . . "unglues" carbon and lead as you drive . . . and lets it blow out the exhaust.

Tests by an independent research institute show that Keotane can give you an average of 14.6% more horsepower output. And that's plenty important, money-wise. Look at it this way:

Want A $438 Bonus?

If you have a 200 h.p. car that cost $3,000, you paid about $15.00 per horsepower. By restoring 14.6% of its horsepower, Keotane gives you a bonus of $438 worth of power. (200 h.p. x 14.6% x $15.00.)

Over 6c Extra Value Per Gallon

Besides saving horsepower, tests also show that Keotane can give you an average of 12.7% more mileage and the performance effect of 3.1 extra octane points.

In fact, the gum-dissolving action of Keotane is so effective that engineers estimate Keotane gives Skelly Supreme Gasoline 6.1c extra value per gallon (see chart) at no extra cost to you.

Any Gasoline Could Benefit

Truth is, most top-grade premium gasoline would be worth 6.1c more per gallon if it had Keotane. But because Keotane is a development of Skelly Research, you get Keotane only in Skelly Supreme.

Not Like Metallic Additives

Keotane contains no metal and because it cleans before each combustion stroke, then burns up like gasoline, it can't possibly damage exhaust valves.

So why not start now to get your engine Keotane-Clean? Switch now to the highest octane gasoline in Skelly history . . . new Skelly Supreme with Keotane, the cleaning, cleaning gasoline.

Full strength, Keotane dissolves glue-like gum quickly, yet won't harm metal. Injected into Skelly Supreme Gasoline, Keotane removes gum-stuck carbon and lead as you drive. Some cars may reach their peak results in 1,000 miles. Others may take 3,000. A few, perhaps, longer. But once you reach peak results, you will hold at that level as long as you continue to use Skelly Supreme with Keotane.

6.1c Extra Value
No Extra Cost
(Based on average current premium gasoline prices in the Midwest)

12.7% average gain in mileage	3.8c
3 octane points extra performance effect	1.0c
14.6% more horsepower output (h.p. saved or added)	.8c
Less gum and cleaner carburetors, faster starts with fewer sputters, longer life for batteries	.5c
Estimated extra value per gallon to you . . .	6.1c

The extra values shown above are conservative estimates by our engineers. They are not figured against inferior premium gasolines or regular grade gasolines, but against Skelly Supreme Gasoline without Keotane, the best top-octane premium gasoline previously made.

SKELLY

Only Skelly Supreme Gives You 6.1c Extra Value Per Gallon with Keotane
(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

6.1c makes other premium gasoline expensive to use;
6.1c makes any regular gasoline expensive to use;
6.1c makes any "cut rate" gasoline expensive to use.

MIDGET GIRLS HERE

Star-Packed Mat Card Set

Regular mat customers get Kallio production when they see their popular favorite Curtis, former world's light heavyweight an idea of the magnitude of the champ, and the ex-state heavyweight king, appearing in the curtain-raiser when he has been ruling as main event talent for years.

CAROLINE BENNETT

The battle of the lady midgets sends Caroline Bennett, 73-pound grappler of Pineville, Mo., against Baby Doe, a 75-pounder from New York. The girls get their action in the middle bout, a 45-minute time limit scrap with two falls to win.

Hurley, the heavyweight king of the Louisiana state crown from Prince Emir, the rowdy Arabian, will be taking Zaharias over a 90-minute time limit distance, two falls to win. Kallio pointed out that Hurley's titles are not at stake (his Australian belt can be risked only on home soil), but Zaharias has been promised a shot at the Louisiana crown if he beats Hurley tomorrow night.

Zaharias, of Denver, Colo., is a younger brother of George Zaharias, onetime wrestling great and husband of the late Mildred "Babe" Didrickson Zaharias, famed woman athlete.

The Jack Curtis-Prince Emir scrap will not be without its appeal to the mat customers. Emir is the man who dethroned Curtis as state champ, beat his brother George's bid to bring the crown back into the family, and then lost the title to Hurley.

Jack and Emir will clash in a unique one-fall "finish match" which will have no time limit. They are slated to start the night's action at 8:15 o'clock.

Loy Scarborough will serve as referee.

Wall Leading Money Chase For Pro Golf

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 18 (UP)—Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., has taken over the lead in the Professional Golfers Association top 10 player ratings, the PGA Tournament Bureau announced today.

Field Secretary Jim Gaquin, in Kansas City preceding the Kansas City open next week, said Wall, winner of the 1957 Pensacola Open, has massed 492 1-2 points. He leads Doug Ford and Bill Casper Jr., by 6 1-2 points. Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., was fourth with 453.

Under the newly-devised rating system, the first 45 professionals in each PGA co-sponsored tournament get points. A 10-point premium is giving for entering a tournament at least two weeks ahead of time. The winner of each tournament gets a bonus of 20 points. Players also earn points by finishing in the money.

Gaquin said the system was devised to encourage leading players to participate in more tournaments.

Pair Of Baylor Aces Get Pacts

CHICAGO, May 18 (UP) — The Chicago Cardinals have signed two Baylor players, fullback Charles Dupre and tackle Dave Lunceford, for the 1957 season, managing director Walter Wolfner announced today.

Both players were drafted by the Cardinals in 1956. Dupre, brother of L. G. Dupre of the Baltimore Colts, was the sixth choice and Lunceford eighth choice.

Many Fall Into Wells; Few Survive

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—Many children, and a few adults, have fallen down wells, shafts and pipes in recent years. Not many came out alive.

Little Kathy Fiscus, the 3-year-old San Marino, Calif., tot, wrung the nation's heart in April, 1949. For two days and two nights rescuers toiled to sink another shaft 100 feet to where she was caught in an old well casing. They were too late.

The day Kathy was buried, Haskell Meadows, 6, of Tracy City, Tenn., fell through wooden slabs across another old well. He plunged 18 feet to his death in 12 feet of water.

Another boy, Jack Maxwell, 4, of Klamath Falls, Ore., plunged feet first through the bottom of a 26-foot false shaft trying to recover a lost ball in November, 1939. It was two weeks before his body could be recovered.

Seven years ago, a Brooklyn well digger, Dominick Atteo, was pinned for 28 hours in a caved-in well pit. He died almost at the moment firemen and policemen reached him.

Luck favored three little ones. A 15-months-old baby, Ronald Mysinger, tumbled into a well under his house at Ranier, Ore., in September, 1950, but 40 townsmen digging in relays got him out unharmed.

Woman Refuses To Cover Up Fish Pond After Tot Drowns

FORT WORTH, May 18 (AP) — Mrs. Grady Leath, the landlady who refused to cover a fish pond in which a young boy drowned yesterday, said today she still isn't going to cover the pool.

Mrs. Leath said she wanted the pool open to make the yard attractive for all the tenants of her apartment unit at 2912 E. Vickery.

"I'm sick about the boy drowning," she said, "but I don't rent to persons who have children or dogs. I rented that apartment two years ago to a Mrs. Hill and her two teen-aged daughters.

"Since then, one of the daughters got married, moved away and had the child. She was back here on a visit only, and I wasn't even notified that she and the child were living there. I didn't know they had a dog until I saw it running around the place one night.

"One day I saw that they had covered the fish pond with a door that I had in a storeroom and some screen. I took it off because it was warping my door and doors are expensive.

"I told them then that children should be kept away from the pond.

"If they can't look out for their children, it's not my responsibility any more than it's my responsibility if they run in a street."

Mrs. Leath said she received an anonymous call last night telling her of the drowning death of 15-month-old Stevie Grant. Stevie had been playing around the pool during the afternoon with his cocker spaniel, Ginger.

Stevie was found floating in the pond by neighbors who heard the frantic barking of his dog Ginger, a rust-colored cocker spaniel. the dog was tugging at Stevie's rompers.

The boy was given artificial respiration by his grandmother while an ambulance was called. The doctor who delivered Stevie to Mrs. R. F. Grant immediately made an incision in his chest and massaged his heart until it started beating again. Doctors estimated it had been stopped for about 10 minutes.

"We tried to get the owner to cover up that pond," said his grief-stricken mother. "We knew something like this would happen but the lady said she wanted the sun to shine on her lilies.

More Lighting Needed, Says Recent Survey

NEW YORK (UP) — Many Americans need to be shown the light, literally, says the American Home Lighting Institute.

A recent institute survey showed four out of five Americans are living in dreary gloom, only a few candles removed from the light provided by the caveman's fire, it said.

Some 80 per cent of the nation's homes have less than 11 light fixtures, the institute said. Minimum good home lighting standards call for at least 25 lights.

MISS JERRY ODOM

Miss Odom And Rev. Eppinette To Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Odom, of Baskin, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jerry Patricia, to the Rev. Jimmy Lee Eppinette, of Harrisonburg. Rev. Eppinette is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Eppinette of West Monroe.

A June wedding was planned for the 28th, at seven o'clock in the evening in the Harrisonburg Baptist Church. The Rev. Wilburn Taylor, of the Holly Ridge Baptist Church, will perform the ceremony.

The bride's attendants will be Miss Gwen Tims, as maid of honor, and Miss Lou Dean Henry, as bridesmaid.

The bride attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The Rev. Eppinette attended Louisiana College, New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, and is at present pastor of the Harrisonburg Baptist Church.

You probably know that roast beef should stand about 20 minutes before carving. But did you kniw that it's a good idea to give baked ham the same waiting treatment?

MRS. LELA CULLOM, seated, was installed as regent of Chief Tusquahoma Chapter DAR at the meeting held yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. G. Wall, Jr. Mrs. O. N. Reynolds will serve as first vice-regent and not pictured is Mrs. Wall, the second vice-regent. Mrs. Archie Dickerson is the retiring regent.

NO RAIN! for several days now, so maybe with the aid of the U.S. Weather Bureau we may be able to sing with SOLOMAN, "Lo! The rain is over and gone and the sound of the turtle is heard in our land." At least we won't have to listen to our farmer friends moan and look at their long faces.

I know one home where there are smiles on all the faces, THE JOHN DUCHKARS. Husband, John, has arrived home from California, where he has been working for the last ten months.

When the HARRY HUBENTHALS return today to Houston, EUGENE WINDES, their father, will accompany them for a visit. Sounds wonderful to hear that Eugene is able to go traveling.

MRS. DUNCAN COOK tells us that when ED PIPER of Shreveport spoke to the ladies of the MONROE GARDEN CLUB on Monday, that he said, "it does not matter which color you choose, when decorating your home, just be sure to select the one that you love best." Don't you like the idea?—Now we won't have to copy or use the most popular color, but one reflecting our own taste.

GOODNESS! have you ever seen so many people doing the same thing at the same time?—staring at thirteen cards. Mrs. Allen Turpin, chairman, Mrs. Neil Buie, Dr. James Schonlau, Mrs. Meyer Greenwall, Allen Turpin, Mrs. R. M. Troy, Mrs. Stanley Mintz, Mrs. Otto Passman, and all the members of the Bayou Bridge Club are really putting on a wonderful tournament—come out this afternoon and see the final game.

THE GOLFERS of the Country Club all took off by bus this morning for Vicksburg, where they will play in an inter-club match. There should be plenty of entertainment after the game is over.

They tell me—GAYE OLCOTT made the Dean's List this semester at S.M.U.—her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Olcott received an engraved invitation to the exercises on Tuesday. DOLORES IRVING, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Irving left Thursday for Lafayette, where she will be in the group of alumnae initiated into Delta Delta Delta social sorority, which was organized this past week on the campus at S.L.I.

Something to look forward to—THE MONROE LITLE THEATER will present its final play of the '56-'57 season, "Our Town". Director, IVAN UTTAL has had a most successful year. Mrs. Joe Guerriero will be in charge of securing the hostesses for the nights this play will run, May 24th through the 28th.

Miss Mercer Complimented

LAKE PROVIDENCE — Miss Bonnie Ruth Mercer, bride-elect of Jimmy Lanier, was honoree at a bridal shower recently, given by Mrs. D. B. White.

As Miss Mercer entered the reception suite of the White home, the wedding march was played by Mrs. Ethel Cheshire.

A number of lovely and useful gifts were received by the honoree, who is a member of the Tallulah High School faculty.

The hostess, Mrs. White, was assisted in the courtesies of the day by Mrs. E. H. Johnston. Special guests were T. H. Mercer of Epps, mother of the bride-elect and Mrs. James Lanier, of Crowville, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

MISS ALICE TARPLEY

The Engagement Of Miss Tarpley And John Davis Is Announced

Of interest here is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson Tarpley, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice Mae Tarpley, to John Harold Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Davis, also of Monroe.

The wedding will be solemnized in the First Christian Church, Friday, June 21, at seven-thirty in the evening with the Reverend R. P. Watson officiating.

Miss Tarpley has chosen for her matron of honor Mrs. Jack Phillips; maid of honor will be Miss Ordie Nell Tarpley, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids for the double-ring ceremony are Mrs. John Tarpley, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Sarah Batton, Mrs. Jennings Wilkins, of West Monroe and Miss Mary Jo Whitehead.

Sam Davis, brother of the groom, will serve as best man. The groomsmen will be Rodney Cannon, John Tarpley, brother of the bride; Berle Palmer, Harold Bauman, of Columbia, and Joe Jordon.

The ushers are Fred Tarpley, cousin of the groom, of Monroe.

Soloist for the occasion will be Jennings Wilkins, of West Monroe, and Professor George Brian will read the beautiful poem by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, "How Do I Love Thee?" This classic poem is traditional in the Tarpley family, and is read at each wedding. Mrs. Robert Wroten will present the musical background for the ceremony at the organ.

The flower girl will be Melinda Kay Davis, niece of the groom, and Monty Tremble, cousin of the groom, will serve as ring bearer.

A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony in Fellowship Hall in the church.

Miss Tarpley is a graduate of Neville High School, and Northeast Louisiana State College of Monroe. A teacher of speech and English here, she is also president of the Phi Mu Social Sorority, and a member of the Delta Psi Omega, a national dramatics fraternity.

All delicious with roast leg of lamb: baked or broiled canned pear nalves filled with mint jelly, spiced crab apples, mammoth-size prunes soaked in sherry and then cooked gently and butter-fried pineapple rings garnished with fresh mint sprigs.

Miss Adams' grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Alvie T. Brooks, of Henderson, Tex., and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Adams, of Ruston. She is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School.

Mr. Rhodes is the grandson of Mrs. W. E. Scriber and the late Mr. Scriber, of Lisbon.

They have chosen as their wedding attendants, Miss Faith Johnson, as maid of honor, Miss Mary Lillian Scriber, of Lisbon, and Miss Shirley Wood, of Newport, Ark., bridesmaids. Ross Rhodes will serve as best man and the groomsmen will be Ray Rhodes and Charles Sebough.

Girl Scout News

This is the season for "flying up" for Brownie Scouts who are completing the fourth grade in school. For some two months at least, all these troops have been working on the Tenderfoot Requirements for Intermediate Scouting. These requirements contain activities in Homemaking, citizenship, out-of-doors, and knowledge of the Girl Scout organization.

Troop 48 was one of the first to have its fly-up. Inviting their parents and the younger Brownie troops at their school, the girls decided on late afternoon so their dads could be present. Accordingly, at Grace Church Parish House, last Tuesday, leaders of the troop, Mrs. M. A. Denoux, and Mrs. Floyd Stone, invested the following girls as Intermediates: Ruth Anne Armstrong, Linda Battistone, Brenda Carso, Marily Denoux, Suzanne Fisher, Kay Joyce, Janet Kiper, Pat Pickett, Mary Elizabeth Reynolds, Catherine Stone, Linda Williams, Diane Womack, Mary Alyce Yeldell, Sherry Marmon.

Following the ceremony the girls presented their leaders with gifts in appreciation of their service. Under the direction of Mrs. B. O. Yeldell, chairman of the troop committee, the girls served punch and cookies to their guests. Miss Annis Klie, Girl Scout executive, was asked to preside at the punch bowl.

Youngsters are evidently interested in Indians, judging from reports of Troops 33, 41, and 53, all of whom have recently visited the Indian Museum at Northeast State. Mr. Edward Whatley, of the college faculty, has obligingly given his time to conducting a tour, explaining the exhibits, and answering the girls' questions. According to their leaders, the girls asked very intelligent questions.

Mrs. W. A. Roche and Mrs. Lucien Stratton, leaders of Troop 53, said their Brownies, brand new ones at Lakeshore School, were most interested in the pottery and the skull of an Indian.

Mrs. Frank Halpin and Mrs. C. E. Vaughan, leaders of troop 33, report that their girls were impressed by the size of some of the bones, which, Mr. Whatley explained, proves that the aborigines in this part of the world were larger than a present-day six-footer. Also, contrary to what we usually think, these Indians used spears, not bows and arrows. The troops mentioned recommend a trip to the museum to other troops and individuals.

MISS JO ANN HENDERSON

Anna Thorne Travis Brown Pledge Troth

The Gordon Avenue Methodist Church was the setting for the recent wedding of Miss Anna Thorne and Travis D. Brown.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. L. L. Thorne and the bridegroom is the son of Reverend and Mrs. T. A. Brown.

The groom's father officiated before a background of white spring blossoms, greenery and glowing tapers in candelabra entwined with greenery. Music was presented by Miss Elaine Hesketh, organist and Mrs. Homer Cook.

Given in marriage by her brother, Wilson Thorne, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and tulle. The lace bodice was delicately scalloped at the neckline and was fastened with tiny covered buttons down the back. Long lace sleeves extended to points at the wrists. The tulle skirt had a draped apron effect of lace which ended in points at the hemline. A coronet of satin held her veil of illusion. She carried a white Bible with cascades of tuberoses and satin ribbons.

Miss Molly Naff was the maid of honor. She was dressed in shell pink satin with a bolero and cummerbund of mauve lace. In her hair she wore a headdress of the same lace and carried a bouquet of blue carnations.

Wade Brown was his brothers best man and ushers were Donnie Brown and Lawrence Thorne. The candlelighters were Eddie Naff and Raydell Thorne.

Mrs. Thorne chose for her daughters' wedding a dress of navy lace with which she wore white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Brown was wearing a mauve linen and lace dress with mauve colored hat and black accessories with a pink carnation corsage.

Preparing a rice ring? Add chopped stuffed olives, slivered browned almonds or minced parsley to it.

MRS. DARRELL S. MOBLEY, who before a recent wedding, was Miss Mayo Sled. The marriage was solemnized May 4, in Greenville, Miss., with the Rev. D. I. Young officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. W. E. Sled and the late Mrs. Sled, and the niece of Mr. and Mrs. P. K. Creed, of Crossett, Arkansas. She is a graduate of the Crossett High School. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Mobley, of Bastrop. He is a graduate of Bastrop High School and attended Northeast State College. The couple are making their home in Bastrop.

Nutt-Henderson Wedding Plans Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Henderson of Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jo Ann, to Rev. Jesse L. Nutt, Jr.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Nutt, Sr. of El Dorado, Ark.

A graduate of Neville High School and Northeast Louisiana State College, Miss Henderson has been on the faculty at Louisiana College, Pineville, for the past two years. She will complete work for a Master of Science Degree at the University of Tennessee in August.

Rev. Nutt is a graduate of El Dorado High School and Ouachita Baptist College. He will receive a Bachelor of Divinity Degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at the May commencement exercises. In August Rev. Nutt will receive his Master of Arts Degree from L. S. U.

A late summer wedding is planned.

Care In Using The Fine China

IOWA CITY — Fine china which is often displayed but rarely used can take daily use if given proper care, a University of Iowa home economist said.

Margaret Keyes said care should begin with proper storage. This means keeping similar shaped pieces stacked together with a piece of protective material between them.

Cups shouldn't be hung by the handles because it puts pressure on the weakest part of the cup, the point where the bowl and handle are joined, she said.

China should be washed separately and in soft, warm water with a mild soap. The water should be of uniform temperature, with no scalding water used as a rinse.

TV Writers Gain

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The combined earnings of writers in the television field are gaining on those of movie writers, says the Western Division of the Writers Guild of America.

TV writers now are contributing about 32 per cent of the guild's total income through dues based on their earnings compared with 26 per cent last year, the guild reported yesterday.

Israel Issues Special Stamp

A jet plane performing a sky-writing act is the basic, yet simple, design of the new Israeli stamp honoring the ninth anniversary of that nation's birth.

The 250 pruta depicts the silhouette of a plane zooming out of a "figure 9" against a blue sky background.

Australian Postmaster General C. W. Davidson announced that a new 7 pence stamp will be issued in August or September to honor the Royal Flying Doctor Service. It will be a part of the regular series of Australian stamps and will not be listed as a commemorative.

Depicted will be a winged caduceus, the shadow of which is projected on a map of Australia to form the outline of an airplane. It is supposed to symbolize the heaving over the vast areas of Australia's inner territory.

The American First Day Cover Society will hold its second annual convention in Newark, N. J., Aug. 3 and 4. The Essex Stamp Club of Newark, AEDCS No. 1, will be the host. There will be a 100 frame competition-exhibition of U. S. and foreign first day covers. Prizes will be awarded winning exhibits.

Brazil will issue a special stamp to commemorate the collaboration of the Brazilian Army in the U. N. Emergency Forces at the Suez Canal. Plans are for this stamp to be released on Oct. 24 to coincide with the 12th anniversary of the United Nations.

Stamp collecting often has been called the hobby of kings. Famous monarchs who saved stamps have been Kings George V and VI of Great Britain, Farouk of Egypt and Leopold of Belgium. The latest in the long line of royal collectors are the royal children of Britain's Queen Elizabeth—Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

'THE OKLAHOMAN'—In a land of violent men, Joel McCrea faces trouble and the pleading of an Indian girl, Gloria Talbott, in a scene from Allied Artists' CinemaScope and DeLuxe color production, "The Oklahoman." The outdoor action drama co-stars Barbara Hale and Brad Dexter and opens Wednesday at the Jim Theatre.

'12 Angry Men' Opening Today

Some time ago author Reginald Rose served on a jury. The day after he was relieved, he began to write "12 Angry Men," which has now reached the screen. The film opens today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release.

HENRY FONDA, as a juror who persuades his fellow jurors not to bring a hasty, prejudicial verdict against a boy charged with murder in "12 Angry Men."

The powerful and intense story of the drama behind the scenes in a jury room during the murder trial, "12 Angry Men" stars Henry Fonda, with Lee J. Cobb, Ed Begley and E. G. Marshall and Jack Warden. Martin Balsam, John Fiedler, Jack Klugman, Edward Binns, Joseph Sweeney, George Voskovec and Robert Webber head the supporting cast.

"12 Angry Men" was directed by Sidney Lumet, one of television's most highly praised young directors, and photographed by Boris Kaufman. It is a joint presentation of Orion Productions (Fonda's own independent producing company) and Nova Productions (Rose's own independent producing company).

Fonda is making his bow as an independent producer after two decades as one of Hollywood's top performers. As an actor in "12 Angry Men," Fonda arrogated no special privilege to himself on the basis of his being producer. So far as the director, the production manager and the cameraman were concerned, he was just another one of the performers, subject to the same discipline and orders as the others.

Sidney Lumet makes his bow as a film director with "12 Angry Men." A former child actor, Lumet has been in show business for 28 of his 32 years. It was following his army service that he changed from acting to directing, and after a distinguished record in the off-Broadway theatre, joined the CBS television network. In the past few years, he has directed no less than seven of Rose's television plays.

"12 Angry Men" was filmed entirely in New York, and its cast (with the sole exception of Lee J. Cobb, who has flown in from Hollywood for his role as the forceful, opinionater, sadistic Juror No. 3) was recruited from the Broadway stage and the television studies.

TV notes

"You Are There," CBS Television's living history series, returns to the early days of Franklin D. Roosevelt's first term today, when News Correspondent Walter Cronkite recreates a dramatic newscast depicting national reaction to the unprecedented "Bank Holiday of 1933" featuring actual film of the late president's first "fireside chat."

A special full - hour program on which four prominent United States senators will participate in a discussion of "The President's Budgetary and Other Legislative Proposals," will be presented today. The panel will consist of a Republican and a Democratic senator arguing against them.

John Forsythe stars in a comedy involving a contented bachelor who inherits the care and custody of a teen - age niece in "A New Girl in His Life," on the General Electric Theatre, Sunday, May 26.

Vic Damone, singing star whose records and motion picture appearances have made him a top star, steps into the television spotlight July 3 with the premier of the "Vic Damone Show."

"The Big Record" will have its premiere over CBS Television Wednesday, Sept. 18, instead of Sept. 25 as previously announced. The series stars Patti Page and features outstanding vocalists and musicians who will appear each week "in person" doing the hits for which they have become national favorites.

Dennis James has been signed to continue as master of ceremonies for NBC's "Club 60" through Aug. 23.

"NBC Matinee Theater" now has a new theme song, appropriately entitled "Matinee." Edward Truman, musical director of the series, composed the music. Nick and Charles Kenny wrote the lyric, which, however is not used on the program. Nelson Riddle and his orchestra have recorded the number for Capitol Records.

Will Hutchins, a rising movie actor, will be the leading player in 'Sugarfoot," a new adult western series being filmed in Hollywood by Warner Bros. for the ABC network. It will start Sept. 17, alternating in the 7:30-8:30 p.m. Tuesday spot with "Cheyenne."

Guy Mitchell's live 30-minute variety show for ABC next season will tee off Sept. 21; Saturdays at 10 p. m.

'The Quiet Man' Showing At Jim

The cast for this romantic comedy features Ward Bond, Victor McLaglen, Mildred Natwick, Francis Ford, Arthur Shields and a group of prominent players from the famous Abbey Theatre in Dublin.

A pictorial masterpiece that sparkles with wit, gay Irish humor and tenderness, and with as riotous a finish as has ever been filmed, the not so quiet "Quiet Man" concerns the turbulent home - coming of an Irish - born American pugilist who, having killed a man in the ring back in the States, comes to his small home town seeking peace and quiet. Here he falls in love with and marries the fiery Maureen 'Hara, only to find that he must fight his way to happiness.

John Wyane's performance in the title role, Maureen O'Hara's superb portrayal of the wild Irish lass, and Barry Fitzgerald's whimsical marriage broker, have been called outstanding in their noteworthy careers.

Toe Tips—Can You Bare 'Em?

Toes are in the news again. Perish the thought. Big and little, fat and scrawny, bent and bulbous, they'll be peeking out of toeless shoe and sandals all summer long. This is no rare sight, as any gentleman with the temerity to peer at a row of sandled or barefooted beach beauties will testify. It may be downright repulsive.

Few women have good toes, but most women insist on exposing their footwork to public view, a habit that appalls some men.

Let's be sensible about it. If you haven't got good toes, why bother showing them off? If it's the barefoot feeling you enjoy, walk in unshod glory when others are not around. Stroll around the house barefoot or in toeless scuffs. Walk on a private beach barefoot, but don't take your bare toes to department stores, restaurants, park benches and beach clubs if they don't measure up to snuff.

Twinkle Toes

This doesn't apply, of course, to girls who have few toe blemishes. A corn, bunion or callous may be corrected, and with the proper elbow grease applied to the problem, toes may be smoothed out and ready to twinkle in a short time.

Callouses may be rubbed smooth with pumices or some of the prepared callous removers available in drug stores.

Corns should be removed with a skilled hand — yours or a chiropodist's or other foot specialist.

Ingrown toenails may be straightened out by constant attention to the nail, by filing it straight across, and by notching the center edge of the nail in a V-shape to encourage the nail to grow toward the center.

Nightly Care

Scabby looking growth around toes (the result of not drying toes properly) should be oiled or creamed as often as possible.

It's a good idea to oil massage feet and heels every night until you feel they are ready for display. A cheap pair of white cotton socks worn to bed helps in a case like this. After taking your bath (and scrubbing toes, heels and callouses with a little stiff brush) massage your feet all over with oil before putting on the socks. Massage toes by pulling them length - wise. Little toes have a tendency to curl up shrinking tendons, but this condition could be adverted if one would pull and massage the toes frequently, and make sure that good - fitting shoes are worn. Never cramp your toes in too - tight shoes as it will ruin their looks.

Dirty toes are another blight on the female grooming scene. Dirt left to gather not only under the nail but around the cuticle is a common fault of young girls, particularly teen - agers who insist in going barefooted. Though they may not have some of the other toe faults that harrass older women, carelessness still can spoil the effect of pretty feet.

Throat Cream For Spring

Your skin needs a spring cleaning and reconditioning too, something to keep in mind when you've finished refurbishing the house.

At winter's end our skin often takes on a greyed appearance craving more sunlight. Throats and foreheads are likely to be particularly wrinkled and dry looking. If you are below 25, normal applications of dry skin cream for a few nights should help get your throat line back into the smooth groove. The over-30 set and the over-40 set would do well to find a good rich lubricating throat cream. The throat area contains fewer fatty cells so that the skin is thinner there, requiring rich oil to seep down through pores to help restore firmness and resilience to the delicate skin area.

This is the one spot really where you want to make sure to have a good, rich, nourishing cream, one especially formulated with the throat in mind. Put it on gently rubbing it up from the collar bones towards the chin line. Do not pull or stretch the skin in this area as it may sag in a manner that can never be remedied. Women who are able to afford facials as they grow older have learned to their sorrow that massage carried on down the throat line in a heavy-handed manner contributed to their early sagging profile.

All massage of the face should be on the gentle side or with a tapping motion to stimulate circulation, but there should be no push-pull motion. The over-30 woman needs to watch the skin of her face too, especially the eye area. One good cream has a velvety effect if used faithfully. It smoothes and soothes roughened areas, is completely non-greasy, and its golden creaminess disappears on the skin, imparting a supple texture that is so admired in young girls.

Heavy creams of this type are good too on mid-forehead thinking-lines, around the chin and corners of the mouth and used on the pump-bumps at the heels and flaky roughness of legs due to winter chapping. It's good too on elbows and forearms where dryness develops, and is especially good used just before wearing a short-sheeved dress.

There is a comforting thing about a rich cream when you know that your skin needs that treatment — you feel that you've nourished it at its own request, satisfying its craving for skin food.

The first circulating library in U. S. was organized in 1731 in Philadelphia. Benjamin Franklin was a customer.

Manners On The Highway

At this season of the year, when more automobiles than ever are on the road, I can think of no subject more fitting than one on motor manners. Good manners in car driving, is actually good sportsmanship. Its importance is far more than courtesy. An ordinary encounter with a boorish person may produce annoyance, resentment or anger; but it rarely breaks bones. Boorish driving produces equally unfavorable emotional reactions; and in addition, it endangers the lives and limbs of all in the vicinity.

Among the thousands of motor accidents that are listed on the police blotters every day, at least half are said to be the direct result of people who have not learned to discipline themselves to be on time. The driver, suddenly becoming conscious that he should have left home earlier, flings his good driving manners to the wind, starts taking chances in weaving in and out of lines, clipping red lights, pushing his way, and taking chances which he would never do if he were not in a hurry! If no one ever tried to shove to get into a place where one doesn't belong — if no one pulled out of line without knowing exactly where and into which space one was going to find plenty of room to get in again, if no one did anything discourteous, motor accidents would be much fewer than they are.

It is just as unfair and lacking in sportsmanship to lag when the traffic light turns green (holding up the other cars behind you) as to beat the lights by starting while it is still red. Inattention to traffic lights, in addition to being a careless disregarder of the law, is an affront to all other drivers.

One who wishess to drive slowly keeps well over to the right so that another may overtake and pass him safely.

Well-bred people, in parking their cars, neither monopolize space for two parked cars nor park so close to others that they are prevented from pulling out. In marked parking places, they stay within the marks — they do not straddle the lines and thus take for themselves the space which is intended for two.

It is more than ordinary courtesy to yield to the driver coming from the opposite direction who is proceeding straight across a crossing, rather than to attempt a left turn in front of him—it is prudence and it is fair play.

Trumpet horns — those raucuous, penetrating signals designed for use on the open road—are as out of place in city driving as hob-nailed golfing shoes in a ballroom. If more people realized that the horn, as the voice of the car, is in reality the voice of the driver, there would be less raucuous thoughtlessness in its use. People who would never dream of bawling a vocal protest at a few second's delay, blast away on their horns at every little hesitance on the part of the car ahead.

The same man who grows highly indignant at the woman who neglects to take off her hat in the theater thinks nothing of blaring along the highroad with glaring lights, despite the courteous dipping of the beams of those he meets. Yet, in the former case, he is merely annoyed while endeavoring to derive amusement; in the latter he is endangering his own and the lives of others.

As to the manners of pedestrians: When anyone is run over by an automobile, the driver's guilt is invariably taken for granted. Often the blame belongs to him, but often again it doesn't. In other words, motor manners are every bit as important to those who want to escape being injured as for those who want to avoid injuring others.

First rule for pedestrians is, don't cross against red light. Don't cross street in middle of block. Above all, don't dart forward from behind a parked car. Don't, when the lights change while you are in the middle of the street, turn and run back to the side you started from. If you keep on going at the same pace, the drivers who expect you to pass in front of them automatically wait and give you time to pass. But not one of those you have already passed, can possibly be prepared to have you about face and suddenly dash in front of his wheels.

Just as every well-mannered driver makes it clear to every other driver exactly what he is going to do, every well-mannered pedestrian should do his part to keep well-mannered drivers from running the risk of killing him (or her).

MISS PEGGY O'NEAL

Miss O'Neal To Wed Mr. Shockey

Miss Peggy O'Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard O'Neal, will wed Hilman Shockey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malvin Shockey, all of Bastrop.

The wedding ceremony will be June fourteenth, at seven o'clock in the evening. The Rev. J. E. Allen will officiate in the Van Avenue Assembly of God Church.

Miss Francis Scott will be the maid of honor. The matron of honor is to be Miss Syble Evans. Miss Ouida Lloyd and Miss Clawdia White will serve as bridesmaids.

The groom chose Daniel Shockey to be best man. Gene Hughes, Darvin McGough, and Eddie Gene Fair will usher.

The bride is attending Bastrop High School and the groom is a graduate of the school.

Color Changes In The Latest Furniture

CHICAGO — Home decorators had a bad case of spring fever this year, and their ailment showed up in the new spring furniture.

Every material from wood to wrought iron has taken on some colorful spring changes, says Dorothy Iwig, University of Illinois home furnishings specialist.

In wrought iron lawn pieces, says Miss Iwig, rich blues, greens, and even lilacs and terra cottas are used with the old standard white.

When chosen tastefully, she says, this colorful furniture can do much to lighten and brighten a room. But the furniture must fit into the character of the room, she warns.

The practical homemaker does not have to buy new furniture to keep up with the trend, says Miss Iwig. Either paint old furniture or add colorful cushions, she advises.

Pictures Add To Room Atmosphere

CHAMPAIGN, Ill — Pictures were meant to do more than fill up an empty space on a wall, says a home furnishings specialist. They can add much to the "general feeling" of a room.

Robbie Blakemore, University of Illinois home furnishings expert, said that framing and hanging a picture correctly play a big part in getting the effect you want.

Mats should be selected with the room decoration in mind, and kept darker than the lightest tone in the picture.

Miss Blakemore suggested the picture be hung slightly below the eye level of a standing person. Strive for good relationship to nearby furniture and wall areas, she said, so that they and the picture will form a unit.

When hanging groups of pictures, avoid a jagged effect by making sure the bottoms or tops of the frames are the same distance from the floor.

WHITE PAPER

Red Treatment Of Our Prisoners

THE CAPTIVES OF KOREA. An Unofficial White Paper on the Treatment of War Prisoners. By William Lindsay White. (Charles Scribners' Sons.).

This book will make you mad all over again, particularly the way the Communists treated our prisoners in the Korean War. It again emphasizes the fact that in dealing witl Communists we are dealing with people who should not be thought of as human brings.

In World War II 3 per cent of our men imprisoned by the enemy died; in Korea, as White says in italics, of the Americans captured, 'an almost unbelievable 58 per cent died."

It is this appalling loss which White writes about with his unflagging vigor.

First we see how we, with gloves on, treated the thousands we captured, from providing native delicacies like octopus for the table to nursing their ailments, keeping them warm and dry.

Next we watch the International Red Cross try to enforce the conventiona: safeguards, visiting our camps and on occasion complaining,but never allowed to set foot in places where Americans were held and so in effect never finding much to complain about.

But White tells them. Of one batch of 320 setting out on a march, only 120 arrived; of another 650, only 200 made it; of the 200 only nine lived to return to this country. There are grim but fascinating details about the ability of, for instance, a Turk to outlive an American, the lack of stamina that accompanied lack of discipline, the character of Americans who were, as they said, brainwashed.

White blames the "brutish materialism of Karl Marx," when no doubt some of it must be laid to the ignorance, callousness and barbarity and to some uncivilized Orientals who always treated life with disrespect, even before Marx. Even so, this is a staggering indictment of North Korean Communists; no charges brought against them yet will be so hard to shake off.

Two English Novels About Life Of Woman

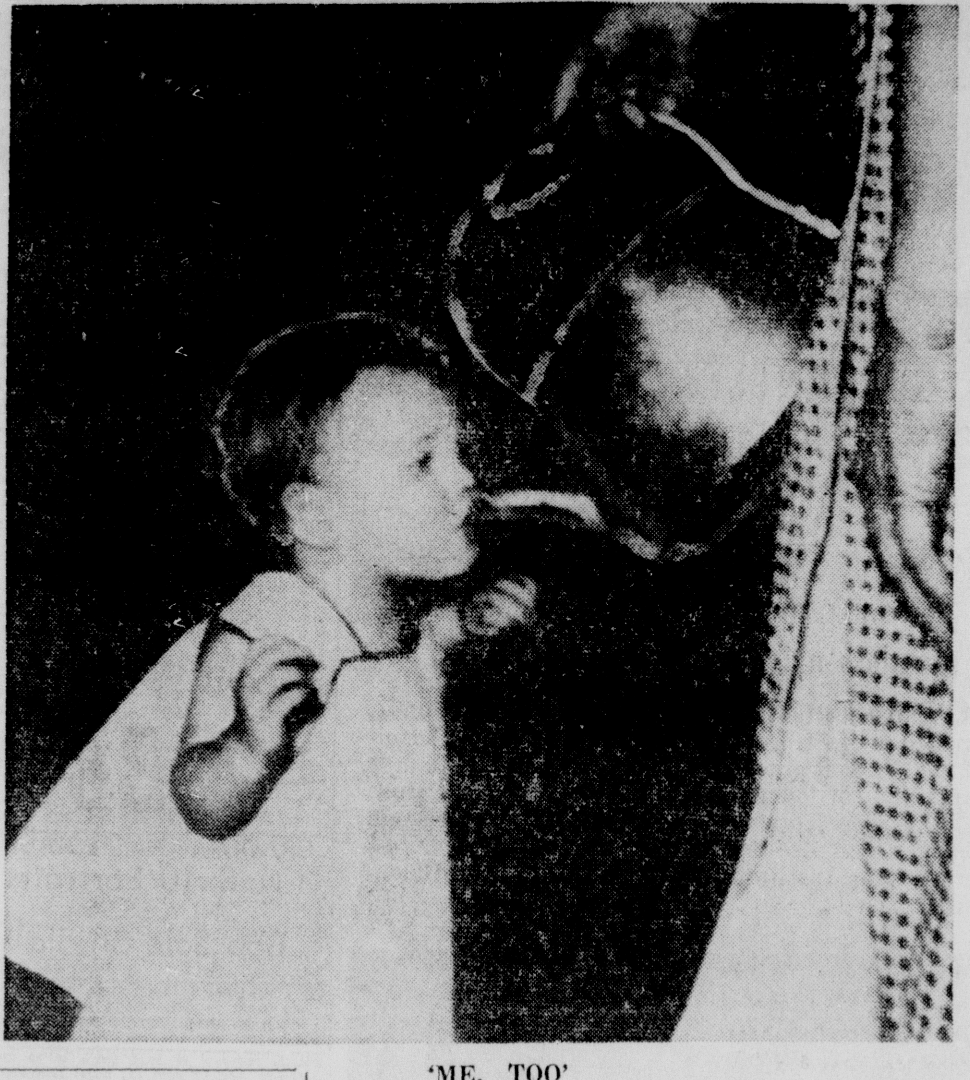
WOMEN IN ANTIQUITY By Charles Seltman, St. Martin's Press. THE ENGLISH WOMAN IN HISTORY By Doris Mary Stenton, Macmillan.

"Wife and Servant are the same,

But only differ in the Name."

Thus with bitterness wrote Lady Chudleigh, unhappy wife, around 1700. But that has not always been true, according to these authors who, while noting some "emancipation" today, gloat over past periods of great freedom.

In Sparta and Athens, Seltman claims, women enjoyed such independence that modern "bugbears," to use his word, "bastardy, divorce and prostitution — were quite unknown." The pictures on vases testify to uninhibited nudity, harmless vanity, a merry social life, a vigorous mingling of the sexes.



'ME, TOO'

Camera Editor

While waiting in the outer office of a local eye, ear, nose and throat doctor recently, Mrs. Louis Pringle, the attending nurse, struck up a conversation about her new camera, and of course, being camera conscious, I immediately asked what kind she had and if she had any pictures she had taken with it.

Mrs. Pringle said, more or less reluctantly, "Well, now if you won't laugh at my poor photography, I'll show you a sample of what it will do." Naturally, I assured her that I would not laugh and would sincerely try to give her me advice — if I could. The above cute picture along with several others was what she showed me.

She said she was out on her back porch watering some potted plants and her little two-year-old daughter, noticing the plants getting a drink, decided that she, too, was thirsty and needed a drink from the same source. Consequently the cute picture you see is the result.

Mrs. Pringle told me that she had heeded some advice given in this column concerning having the camera ready at all times and so she quickly handed the watering can to a friend, grabbed her camera and started shooting.

The rather dark background and poor lighting can very easily be overlooked when we analyze the picture from a story telling standpoint. Also when we see the fine candid expression caught on the child's face. Mrs. Pringle is to be commended for being ready and capturing a very interesting and cute picture which I'm sure she and her family will cherish for years.

Since the camera used in the making of this picture was a Polaroid land camera, it was necessary to copy and enlarge the original print for newspaper production, therefore, we did sacrifice some of the good qualities in making an engraving for the paper.

The Polaroid land camera is a fine instrument for taking pictures that one wants to see immediately as it takes, and produces a finished print in less than one minute. However, it does sacrifice the possibility of making more prints of the same picture unless the original is copied. Many amateur photorapkers like this feature as they can immediately judge their work and see what they got, while others need to wait for their films to be processed which sometimes allows their enthusiasm to cool off for their hobby.

Whatever type of camera you are using, let's get it out and start shooting some of those candid pictures and try for some of those once in a lifetime pictures, of which we can say, "Oh, if only I had my camera with me now."

MADAME BOVARY

New Translation Among The Best

MADAME BOVARY By Gustave Flaubert (Random House, $3.95).

Although written one hundred years ago Madame Bovary is as timely today as it was then. In fact, it is one of those books that will always fit into any age.

The latest issue by Random House is a new translation by Francis Steegmuller and was published as part of the centenary celebration.

It is doubtful if any book in history of the novel has been more enjoyed and praised by critics, fellow craftsmen and gereral readers of all sorts.

The novel is a tale of a provincial French woman who could not bear the discrepancy between her romantic dreams and the dull routine of her daily life.

There is a special poignancy for most of us in the story of Emma Bovary, whose attempt to impose upon her humdrum life the substance of those dreams brought about her own dissolution.

She is caught up in the currents of life and seemingly has no control over them. She is whippd about by the winds of fate. You will feel sorry for her and at the same time amazed.

This work is probably among the best put out during the golden era of French literature.

Francis Steegmuller is uniquely qualified to translate Flaubert's inimitable prose, the quality of which is almost as inaccessible to translation as is most poetry. His Flaubert and Madame Bovary is a contemporary classic, his selection and translation of Flaubert's letters outstanding and his critical interpretation of Flaubert among the most acute. He is eminently fitted to provide the centenary translation of Madam Bovary.

Records Aid For Opera Appreciation

NEW YORK, May 18.—(UP)—Only last October G. C. Menotti's "madrigal fable for chorus, ten dancers, and nine instruments" had its first performance, and here only months later is the complete recording. You miss the dancers which hardly can be helped, to be sure, yet in a piece so delicately contrived, the absence of a component is important.

But the fable unfolded by the chorus and supported by the instruments in Menotti's most individualistic vein has stature nevertheless, both musically and dramatically. Thomas Schippers, who is the foremost Menotti conductor, made the recording with the company which gave the New York performance. Even if this odd piece, entitled "The Unicorn, The Gorgon, and the Manticore," puzzles them, Menotti fans will find it indispensable (Angel-35437).

A Baritone Orpheus

More and more Americans are being educated by records to the fact that operas can be sung in translation—and are as a matter of course everywhere but in America. The newest example is set by German singers doing Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice"—in German, naturally. But language is no real novelty, actually; the novelty in this recording is that the part of Orpheus is sung by a baritone.

A superlative baritone, Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, yet you wonder if that isn't a touch too much when you recall Gluck's first choice was a contralto although he did, in the French version, transcribe the part down to tenor. Perhaps it is because you are most familiar with the Italian version and the contralto Orpheus that you are unable to take the further downward transcription in stride. It does sound strange!

In addition to Fischer-Dieskau, the recording has Maria Stader and Rita Streich, both impressive singers, and Ference Fricsay conducting the Berlin Radio Symphony (Decca - DXH143).

Guide To Good Reading Now At The Ouachita Parish Public Library

FRANCES FLANDERS, Librarian

Again this week we have a number of new and exciting books of fiction for our reading public. As usual there are novels of various types and for different types of readers. Two new historical novels are among this week's additions. They are "The Big Drum" by Elizabeth Boatwright Coker and "Sailor Names Jones" by Harvey Haslip. "The Big Drum" has its setting in London of Charles II, the lush island of Barbados, the lively new city of Charles Town and the great wilderness of Carolina. This is an exciting story of Simon Blake and his adventures in many places. "Sailor Names Jones" is a historical novel based on the life of John Paul Jones, who was the father of the American navy. It is a thrilling story of heroism and of victory over almost unsurmountable odds.

MODERN SETTING

Books with a modern setting are again in prominence. "Six People and Love" by Stella Zilliacus is a group of short stories with an international setting. They are well written and should have great interest. John Steinbeck, who is one of our outstanding modern novelists has written a very humorour book which he calls "The Short Reign of Pippin IV." It is the story of what happened when retiring middle - aged astronomer was suddenly drafted to rule the French people. This is a hilarious account of the French Revolution upside down and may become a minor classic. Don't miss this if your sense of humor is well-developed.

"The Trumpet Shall Sound" is the title of a new novel by H. M. Tomlinson. It is a very moving account of what happened to the Gale family during the Battle of Britain. It marks the passing of the old order in England, but its message is affirmative. "The shape of things may change, but the best prevails in a new form." A new and exciting novel of suspense is "Bogue's Fortune" by Julian Symons. The setting of this book is in a school for juvenile delinquents, but what happens is certainly not usual for such institutions .

"SPIRAL ROAD"

Jan de Hartog is making a name for himself as one of our leading modern novelists. His latest work is called "The Spiral Road." It has its setting in the Dutch East Indies and it is a book of tremendous vitality. It moves from the dregs of Amsterdam's underworld through the riotous colors of Batavia to its awesome climax in a lonely medical outpost. It is a book which will linger with the reader long after the book has been put aside. "The Towers of Trebizond" is the title of the latest novel by Rose Macaulay. It has everything that has made her earlier works popular; travel in romantic places, fantastic adventure, exquisite prose and a continuously entertaining procession of extraordinary incidents. The scene shifts between Turkey and England and this is a book which you will not want to miss.

PSYCHOLOGICAL NOVEL

A most unusual psychological novel is "Jame" by Phyllis Bottome. It is the story of Jane, a London pickpocket and of her attachment to George, who had trained her well. It shows us the world of the criminal, correctional institutions and a set of values of which most of us have no conception. It is not a pleasant novel, but for those who like this sort of thing, it should be intensely interesting.

The interpretation of the German mind from the time of the first World War to the present has interested many writers. Probably the one who has given us the best interpretation is Erich Maria Remarque who has established for himself a huge following ever since his "All Quiet on the Western Front" which appeared many years ago. His latest novel is "The Black Obelisk". The setting is a small provincial German Town and the year is 1923. Mr. Remarque has used his own experience to draw for us an unforgettable character in Ludwig Bodmer. Another novel with a German setting and characters is called "The General" and was written by Karl-ludwig Opitz. It is a portrait of the typical German general of World War II and how he met defeat.

SHORT STORIES

Readers of short stories will welcome a new volume called "The Finest Stories of Sean O'Faolain." It is a marvelous collection by one of the best of the Irish story tellers.

Now we come back to two more historical novels: "The Strangled Queen" by Maurice Druon and "Alabama Empire" by Welbourn Kelley. "The Strangled Queen" is the second of the books in a projected series called "The Accursed Kings." The first one was called "The Iron King." Each volume in the series is complete in itself and may be read separately, but at the same time the series is designed to recreate a factual and representative canvas of the times. This is a story set in the time of Louis X of France. It deals with his plans to get rid of one wife to be free to marry another. This novel is exciting because the characters come alive. The detail is authentic and it gives us a very vivid picture of France in the 14th century.

Every day new patrons come to the Ouachita Parish Public Library and take advantage of its resources. If you are not doing so, we given you a hearty invitation to do so as your earliest convenience.

Opera Star Wants Vacation From Clocks And Newsmen

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—Renata Tebaldi repeated my question: "What will I do on vacation?" and then answered:

"I will not think of newspapers or be bothered by newspapermen."

But she smiled when she said it, and went on:

"It will be fun not to have a telephone to answer, not to have to keep appointments with dressmaker or lawyer, or for rehearsals.

"I will not have to be on trains. I will not have to watch the watch" —tapping her wrist where at the moment, in the hotel apartment in which she lives during the New York season, she had no watch at all.

It is nearly vacation time for singers, though not quite for Miss Tebaldi. Now on tour with the Metropolitan, her first cross country trip with it too, she appears in 13 performances mostly before audiences that have not heard her famous voice before.

Isn't 13 unlucky?

"Not for me," she said. "I don't like 17, though. I am of course superstitious."

She travels with a basketful of stuffed animals and dolls, made by Lenci in her native Italy, and usually strings a dozen of them up across the top of her dressing room at the opera house.

She is always accompanied by her mother, here and in other American cities, at her home in Milan, at her place in the country, on vacation, on shopping trips. On tour Miss Tebaldi's mother spends much of her time hunting through local markets for the foods she knows her daughter likes, and whenever they can manage, even if it is only on a hot-plate, she cooks for the singer.

Will Miss Tebaldi read? Not on vacation.

Will she sew or knit? No time for that.

Go to dances? She likes to watch, and according to her pretty secretary and companion, Linda Barone, "she is a very good dancer," but she doesn't indulge in it much now.

Go for walks? Yes.

Lie abed in the morning? Ah, that, yes!

A couple of years ago when I first talked to her, she had hardly mastered a "yes" or "no" in English, but now, "learning by ear," she said, she understands most of what she hears and can speak for herself on most occasions. For sticklers Miss Barone, who learned her fluent English in Florence, is always at hand to help.

"When I sing, I see people all the time, at the opera, at parties, and so when vacation comes I like to be by myself."

"I love New York department stores," she said, "even when I can't buy anything. I am too big. The sizes are not right."

Miss Tebaldi is in fact a lot of woman, as audiences see almost as quickly as they hear she is a lot of voice. Her fingers are long, pointed, expressive, graceful. Her jet black hair brings out the pallor of her face, as though she needed a vacation. In repose her features, though they are as beautiful as her photos show, nevertheless are severe. It's as if she never really got her mind off such serious and hallowed things as her music Yet when she does relax, and break into a smile, it's as lively and interested as a childs.

"I'm tried after I sing," she said. "I'd like to go home and have a small supper and get into bed. But on tour there will be parties, and here there are always a dozen or more gathered in my dressing room after the last curtain, and then perhaps 50, or several times as many asking for autographs on the walk outside. I like to sign for them."

After her summer in the mountains when her work will be only to prepare two recordings for the fall, she will be back here to open the Chicathe Met for the rest of the go season, and then come to calendar year. After that there will be Spain, Austria, Florence's Maggio Musicale, another restful summer and then Caracas — that accounts for her next 15 months.

Miss Tebaldi made her Met debut as Desdemona in January, 1955. Perhaps her most popular interpretations have been in "Travita," "Boheme and "Tosca."

AT INSTITUTE HERE

Fire Fighting Plan Placed In Motion

An all - day session on fire-fighting in hospitals and methods for removing patients in case of emergencies was held Saturday at St. Francis Hospital, under direction of Lt. Robert McGrath, Hospital Inspector for the Chicago Fire Department.

Sponsored by the Northeast Louisiana Hospital Council, the Louisiana Hospital Association, and the Monroe Fire Department, the "Disaster Planning Institute" was attended by more than 50 representatives of hospitals and fire departments in the northeastern part of the state, who received training on methods of putting out chemical fires and fires on various types of material.

Instruction and practical demonstration on means of removing patients from hospitals was also given, and then the representatives were shown how to fight fire and take care of patients if the fire were close to or on the hospital beds.

Actual fires were set on hospital beds placed in the parking lot of St. Francis, and methods of combatting the flame and removing "patients" were demonstrated, between 3 and 4 p.m.

Representatives will now hold their hospitals, to teach local personnel the methods which were shown at yessterday's institute.

Rev. Fraser Speaker At NE Services

Rev. William P. Fraser, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Plaquemine, today will be guest speaker at a campus - wide inter-denominational service at Northeast State.

The special religious service, sponsored by the Student Council, is scheduled from 4 to 5 p.m. on the banks of Bayou DeSiard at the college president's home. The public is invited to hear the speaker discuss "Smaller Goals or Greater Visions."

Council members have mailed invitations to parents of all students attending Northeast to be present for the first service of its kind ever to be held on the campus. If the event proves successful, the program probably will become an annual affair, the council said.

The speaker received degrees from Centenary College, Shreveport, Vanderbilt University, and Yale Divinity School.

Rev. Fraser has served as pastor of Methodist churches in Louisiana, Tennessee and Connnecticut. He also taught at Centenary College, where he became head of the Department of Biblical Literature in 1950. During his affiliation with Centenary he held the deanship of men and he served as chairman of the Humanities division prior to accepting the pastorate at Plaquemine in June of 1956.

He participated actively in civic affairs of Shreveport where he held membership on the board of directors of Good Will Industries, and a similar post with the YMCA and Community Council for Shreveport and Bossier City.

Rev. Fraser also is affiliated with the American Legion Club, Veteran of Foreign Wars, Rotary Club and North Louisiana Historical Association. He was elected in 1955 to the executive committee of the Commission on College and University Professors of Religion of Methodist Churches.

From 1943 through 1946, Rev. Fraser was chaplain of the U. S. Army in North Carolina, France and Germany. He held the rank of captain, and was awarded the bronze star with two oak leaf clusters while serving with the 100th division.

Bridge Meet Ends Today Country Club

About 200 confirmed addicts of the bridge table, dealing and bidding since Friday night will continue this afternoon to complete the second annual Monroe sectional tournament sponsored by the Royal Bridge Club.

The contest today will be for the final session of the Open Pair championship and the Special Pairs, in the tournament being directed by Walter Wilson of New Orleans.

Winners thus far include:

Individual —First, Mrs. Charles G. Martin, Thibodaux; second, Al Rosenfield, Jackson, Miss.

Shreveport Pairs — Mrs. Paul Griffis, and Mrs. Rosalie Ricou Schwarz of Shreveport; second, Mrs. W. E. Leigh and Mrs. David Aron.

New Orleans Pairs—Mrs. M. A. Hitt and Mrs. J. H. Sheehan of Eldorado, Ark.; second, Mrs. Allen Turpin and Mrs. J. H. Toledano of New Orleans.

Man Is Held On Attempted Murder Count

Two Negro men were arrested by Monroe city police yesterday, one on an attempted murder charge, and the other on a charge of aggravated battery and illegal use of a knife.

Booked for attempted murder was Earl Celestine, 36, of 1000 Griffin street, who was arrested by Officers Sowell and Ratcliff shortly after 3 a.m. Saturday.

Police had received a call to the Griffin street address, and found Celestine standing in front of the house. When he saw the police, he attempted to escape, and ran down Barlow street for 50 yards, before turning left between two houses into a weed patch, police said. He was apprehended at the back of the lot and admitted that he had fired a shot in a room occupied by Katherine Oatis, 23, Negro, also of 1000 Griffin street.

According to police, Celestine said that the Oatis woman was his common-law wife. He stated that he came home and went into her room to get a 12 gauge single barrel gun. The couple argued, and he said he intended to frighten her.

Celestine claimed that he did not know the gun was loaded, and it discharged, with a load ripping through the head of the bed into the wall, missing her by 12 inches.

She said that she was sitting on the bed, changing the baby's diaper, when Celestine came in, pointed the gun at her and said he would kill her.

An empty shotgun shell was found on the floor at the foot of the bed, and the gun was found under a bed in an adjoining room by Officers Endsley and Kemp.

Walter J. Johnson, Jr., 22-year-old Negro of 812 Calypso street was arrested by Officers Antley and Barnes Saturday, and charged with aggravated battery and illegal use of a weapon.

Page said that he and C. L. Jordan, Negro, of 807 Calypso, were at a bar on 14th street Friday night, when Johnson walked up to them and started an argument. He claimed that after a few words, Johnson left, then came back in with a knife and stabbed Page.

Hearings Set On Area Oil, Gas Matters

Two Monroe district hearings are to be held at the Caddo Parish Court House in Shreveport, May 23 State Conservation Commissioner John B. Hussey said yesterday. They are:

Docket No 57-79 West Monroe Field, Ouachita Parish: Application of Pan American Petroleum Corp. for an order adopting 640 acre drilling units for the Cotton Valley "D" sand, and 640 acre units for the Vaughn Sand. Applicant states the "D" sand is found between 9366-9400 feet and the Vaughn sand is found between 9603-9611 feet in its Tina Parker No. 1 well in Sec 5,T17N, R3E.

Docket 57-81 Delhi Field, Richland Parish: Application of Chester Hunter, et al, who state that the Mayes A-2 well which is completed in the Holt - Bryant Zone on a tract in the SW¼ of ST¼ of Sec. 26-17N-8E, is now classified as a gas well. Applicant request permission to drill an oil well, the Mayes A-3, on the tract, and believe that a low gas oil ratio oil well can be completed, whereupon the Mayes A-2 will be shut-in and removed from the allowable schedule. As an alternative, applicants request that the development units for the Holt-Bryant zone, as adopted by previous orders, be revised

A state wide hearing will be held in Baton Rouge, June 5, 1957. servation Commission will receive evidence from purchasers of Crude relative to their requirements to satisfy the Market Demand for the 31 day period of July. The Commission will also receive evidence from purchasers of Natural Gas relative to their requirements to satisfy the demand for the months of July, August and September 1957.

Four Vehicles Are Damaged In One Crash

Four cars were damaged in one wreck yesterday, and three had to be towed away. Monroe city police charged Nora Boyd, 44, Negro, of 202 Cedar street, Monroe with reckless driving.

She ran a stop sign at the intersection of Adams and North 18th Street, hit a 1957 G. M. C. panel truck driven by Richard L. Harris, 17, Negro, of 1900 Grammont street, who was going north on 18th Street. Her car then skidded approximately 96 feet, and crashed into two parked cars, a 1948 Chevrolet owned by Harry Porter of 1804 Adams Street, and a 1952 Chevrolet owned by Abraham Bowie of 1801 Adams. Both cars were parked in the 100 block of Adams.

No one was injured, but the back and both sides of the Boyd Buick were smashed in, the front of the truck was extensively damaged, and both sides and the back of the Porter car were damaged. All three vehicles had to be towed away. The Bowie vehicle was struck on the left back fender, and was the only driveable one after the mishap.

B. S. TUBBS

FARMERVILLE (Special) — B. S. Tubbs, 81, died at his home at Loran Friday night after a brief illness.

Funeral services will be at the Hopewell Baptist Church at 3 p. m. Sunday, conducted by the Rev. Joe McQuiston and Rev. Kenneth Nutt.

Burial will be in the Zion Hill cemetery near Farmerville under the direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral home of Farmerville.

He is survived by one brother, Ted Tubbs of Loran; and four sisters, Mrs. C. B. Nolan of El Dorado, Ark.; Mrs. A. T. Black of Farmerville; Mrs. W. R. Holloway of Baton Rouge, and Mrs. Maggie Foster of Fort Worth, Tex.

MRS. MOLLIE HARDESTY

WINNSBORO (Special) — Mrs. Mollie Hardesty, 88, of Winnsboro, died there early Saturday morning. Funeral services will be held in the First Baptist church in Mangham at 2:30 p.m. Sunday with Rev. Paul Brooks officiating. Interment, under the direction of the Mulhearn Funeral Home of Winnsboro, will follow in the Gwin cemetery. The remains will be carried to the church at 1 p.m. to lie in state until time of services.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Fannie Lobrano and Mrs. Laura McCormick, both of Mangham; several nieces and nephews, and several great - nieces and great nephews.

MRS. LOU MILES

Funeral services for Mrs. Lou Miles, 82, who died early Saturday morning, will be held in the College Place Baptist Church at 3 p.m. Sunday with Rev. L. L. Morris, Rev. J. T. Horton and Rev. T. Earl Ogg, officiating. Interment, under the direction of the Mulhearn Funeral home, will follow in the Memorial Park cemetery.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Clara Tillman, Monroe; one son, Marion Miles, Minden; one brother, R. B. McGowen, Hattiesburg, Miss.; three grandchildren, Mrs. Ernest Hart, Monroe, Frances Miles and Ross Miles, both of Minden: and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Tom Lindsey, Connie Pickering, Connor Spear, E. L. Hinton, R. A. Harper, and Vaughn Harkness. Honorary pallbearers will be all friends of the family.

Mrs. Miles, who had made her home in Monroe for the past eight years, was a member of the College Place Baptist Church.

The remains will be taken to the church at 1:30 p.m. Sunday to lie in state there until time of services.

Theft Attempt Cited As Cause Of Crash Here

A two-car crash occurred last night, at N. Eighth and DeSiard streets, after a Negro man tried to reach into a car and grab a purse, shortly before 8 o'clock.

Florence R. Adams, of 803 DeSiard street, said that the man attempted the theft, and she stepped on the gas to get away, crashing into a car driven by Harry E. Boudreaux of 6A Louis Lock Homes, Monroe, damaging his right front fender.

The left front of the Adams' Buick was smashed in, but there were no injuries. Police officers Robinson and Cowart investigated, and no charges were filed.

3 Are Charged With Battery

Three Monroe Negroes were charged with aggravated battery Saturday night, after two men and a woman cut each other in a fracas in a home on Vicksburg street.

Police were summoned to the scene by Beatrice Daniel, 40, Negro, of 1012 Nicks Alley, who phoned for help from a grocery store at 1023 Calypso street.

Investigating officers Antley and Barnes took Exel Washington, 48, also of 1012 Nicks Alley, Mack Dolphis, 35, of 205 Ninth street, and the Daniel woman to E. A. Conway Memorial hospital, where Washington was treated for a four inch cut across his palm, Dolphis for a three inch deep laceration on his left arm, and Beatrice Daniel for a laceration across her left ear. Part of her ear was cut off.

Officers said that Dolphis cut Washington, Washington cut the Daniel woman, and she slashed Dolphis. All three were still fighting when police arrived on the scene

(2) Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS

It may seem late but my poor heart has been so crushed since the death of my dear husband, Mr. Jack Morrison. I couldn't find words to express my thanks to our many, many friends of the Twin Cities and State of La. for their unceasing kindness during his illness and death, and still today . . . a luscious cake sent me. I would love to mention names, but it would fill several columns. Flowers before and at his death, every kind of meat known sent and brought by the men, sweets by the ladies, a hospital bed by the Sunday School class, a new wheel chair, get well cards . . . 300 or more, same number of sympathy cards. I still haven't put them away. Prayers that kept him from suffering, I'm sure, and gave me strength to administer to him. Even the children brought their gifts, he enjoyed so much. Many phone calls that brought comfort to my heart, and tears to my eyes, all wanting to know what they could do for us. People were so good to us, to each and everyone who contributed in the least He joins me in Heaven asking you to come up higher when God calls.

Lovingly,
Mrs. Jack Morrison.

DESIGNED BY ALLEN TURPIN
THIS DREAM house is nestled in a woodland setting on a lot 200x300. Here you'll find the joy and ease of suburban living combined with every modern convenience. Constructed on two levels, the entire south wall is glass, giving a breath - taking view of the woods. With its three bedrooms and three baths, there are SEVENTEEN closets, some double. And you'll love the kitchen—White Formica cabinets and birch cabinets galore, a G.E. dishwasher and disposal, and even the clock's built in! There's a playroom, on ground level, with bar. It's carpeted throughout, and has central heating and central air conditioning. 3715 MACMILLAN ROAD, WEST MONROE.

Jones Is Speaker At Start School

START, (Special) — C. J. Fleischmann, Start High School principal, has announced that Judge Fred Jones of Ruston will address the graduating class of Start High School at the anual commencement exercises on Wednesday, May 22, at 8 p.m.

Judge Jones, Louisiana's young man of the year, will be returning to his native parish, having been born and reared in Rayville.

As one of the youngest city judges in the state, Jones is well qualified to give an inspirational message to youth. He is a grad- and the L.S.U. Law School, past president of the Kiwanis Club of Ruston, an active Boy Scout worker, chairman of the board of deacons of First Baptist Church of Ruston, and an active participant in all civic and community enterprises.

Ralph Dwyer, Jr., said when he presented Judge Jones the young man of the year award at the Monteleone Hotel in New Orleans, "We have found Judge Jones to be the individual who has achieved more, and who has extended his leadership to serve his community more during the calendar year 1956 than any other man in the state."

Rev. Joe Mongle, pastor of the Start Baptist Church, will deliver the baccalaureate address on Sunday May 19, at 11 a.m. He has selected as a subject "Meeting Life's Requirements."

Mrs. J. L. Harrell, Start school music director, will have charge of all musical activities.

J. E. (June) WOOD

New Finance Co. To Open Monday

The Domestic Finance Company opens its doors Monday at 107 North Second street in Monroe and will concentrate on consolidation loans. The company is under the management of J. E. Wood.

Serving as cashier will be Mrs. Edna Smith.

The manager of the new company, Wood, is a native of Rayville, but has resided in Monroe most of his life. He is a graduate of Ouachita Parish schools and attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

He is married to the former Jean Hemler, also of Monroe. They are the parents of five children and reside at 318 Loop Road.

Both World and Mrs. Smith have had many years in the field of personal finances.

Judge Anders Graduated From Tulane 50 Years Ago

WINNSBORO, (Special) — The Tulane Alumni Association and his many many friends in this area are congratulating Judge D. J. Anders, Sr., of Winnsboro, on the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation from the School of Law of Tulane University.

JUDGE D. J. ANDERS, SR.
50th Anniversary

There were 32 members of the class of 1907 and 14 are still living. Judge Anders and his classmates have been invited to be guests of Tulane University at the commencement exercises on June 3. The members of the class of 1907 will wear caps and gowns, and each will be presented with a "second diploma."

The commencement exercises will be held at 9:30 a.m. in the quadrangle behind Gibson Hall, and following the exercises the fifty-year class will be entertained with a luncheon by President and Mrs. Harris at the Tulane Alumni House, 6319 Willow Street.

Judge Anders has practiced law in the Fifth judicial district since 1916, and was District Attorney from 1930 through 1936. He has also served as Special Judge on several occasions and has been admitted to the Bar in Arkansas.

He is presently senior member of the law firm of Anders and Anders at Winnsboro. The junior member of the firm being his son Harry N. Anders, who is also District Attorney of the Fifth District. His other son D. J. Anders, Jr., is assistant general manager and attorney for the Northeast Louisiana Power Cooperative, Inc.

Memorial To Famed Judge Will Be A Gastly Gallows

By CLIFTON WELLS

FORT SMITH, Ark., May 18 (AP)—A strange memorial to a strange man will open to the public this month.

The memorial: a gallows.

The man: Judge Isaac Charles Parker, who sent 79 badmen to death by hanging, more than any other U.S. jurist before or since.

From his U.S. District Court bench in Fort Smith, Judge Parker held legal sway over a part of Arkansas and 70,000 square miles of the Old West, including the Indian territory of Oklahoma.

Between 1875 and 1896, the "Hanging Judge" sentenced 164 men to the gallows. Eighty-five escaped the sentence by one means or another.

All of them heard Judge Parker intone virtually the same chilling phrase:

"I sentence you ... to be hanged by the neck until dead. And may God, whose laws you have broken, have mercy on your soul."

As a federal district judge acting as a circuit court jurist in criminal cases, there was at first no appeal from Parker's death sentences. For 14 years only the President could stop a Parker hanging. He seldom did. Later the U.S. Supreme Court overruled Parker 30 times.

Fort Smith (current population 47,000) was a dusty frontier town when the 37-year-old Parker arrived from St. Joseph, Mo., to take his bench—and build his gallows.

The settlement, originally an Army post, was undergoing the pains of reconstruction. To the west lay the vast, untamed land of the outlaws: the Youngers, the Daltons, Cherokee Bill, Whisky Jack and Belle Starr.

The only law was Parker's court and the judge administered it lustily. His record as a federal jurist included 13,500 cases of which 12,000 involved criminal offenses. There were 344 murder and rape trials; 8,600 convictions.

His gallows was enlarged to provide for a dozen executions at once. It was never used to full capacity, although multiple hangings were frequent.

Historians draw conflicting pictures of Parker.

Some see him as a cruel fanatic whose public hangings were sadistic entertainments.

Others see him as a man of necessarily stern justice—but a champion of the underdog, a friend to the Indians and a kindly husband and father.

A sampling included: a white man charged with raping a 70-year-old Indian squaw; a man accaused of seducing his own sister; a man who shot his partner in the back, then raped and killed the dead man's wife.

Although he was the target of bitter criticism in later years, including an attack by the U. S. attorney general, Parker never wavered from the belief that he had arrested the "flood tide of crime" on the frontier.

On July 30, 1896, one James Casharago, convicted of slaying his uncle in "cold blood," became the last man to drop through the trap to the Fort Smith gallows.

A month later, the court lost its jurisdiction over the Western territory. And three months after that, Parker died. He was buried near the courtroom where he had doomed so many.

Two years ago, the Fort Smith City Commission began a campaign to restore Judge Parker's gallows, jail and courtroom. Funds were raised by public subscription. Unions donated labor and contractors supplied materials and supervision.

The restored gallows and courtroom are scheduled to be unveiled May 26, in conjunction with the Arkansas-Oklahoma rodeo. Future plans call for restoration of the jail—known as "Parker's Hotel."

BEER STATISTICE

CINCINNATI — (UP) — The United States Brewers Foundation reported that New York state led the country in the beer drinking in 1956. Pennsylvia, California, Illinois and Ohio were next. The national per capita consumption was 15.7 gallons of beer. ¼

Museum Would Be Tourist Attraction For Monroe

By MARIE KENT

The time of year has come which may be classed as 'vacation season.' It is quite natural for our thoughts to turn to the apprehension of pleasures we have little time for in our every day routine. Many of us will visit other states, driving through parks, viewing historical landmarks, and recalling our great history as we visit museums. These adventures not only afford much pleasure but are very educational. To realize the culture we possess today we must learn and understand its foundation and structure.

During this season there will be hundreds, perhaps thousands, of people pass through this area. Is it not sad that we do not have a park or museum for them to visit? The Monroe - West Monroe area has one of the most romantic and historical backgrounds to be found in this section. It is true we have a modern, thriving city; one to be proud of. But what has been done to restore the memory of those courageous men who made this possible?

Members of the Ouachita Genealogical and Historical Society have been working faithfully for almost a year to establish a museum for this area. We realize it is a huge task but we are also aware of the fact that the people of this area want a museum. If they continue to show their interest in this venture by donations of relics and money with which to purchase the various equipment needed we are assured of a huge success. We have collected so many relics we are lacking in cases and space in which to display them. We must have more cases and a building must be acquired in the near future.

This area also needs a state park. (And where would be a better place for a museum than inside a state park?) Other sections of the state have parks, historical markers, and museums; why can't we? We have the back ground, the material and the people. Why is this area lacking in so worthy a project? The Ouachita Genealogical and Historical Society will support anyone who undertakes the establishment of a state park for this area. It can only be done through public opinion. It is the duty of every citizen to do a share in preserving the history of the great state we have today. May this be said until it sinks deep into the hearts of our people. Do your part now. For information call Mrs. Travis Tynes, phone FA 2-6476.

Let us switch the subject from the lacks of this area to one of which we can boast a bit. In an effort to aid members seeking genealogical information, the Louisiana Genealogical and Historical Society conducted a survey of the library facilities in the state. The survey points up the necessity of building up our libraries' genealogical material. But lacking as it may, the Ouachita Parish library ranks among the top three in the state. The information given as follows: Census: Louisiana 1810 to 1880; Delaware 1800; Mississippi 1820 and 1850; some 1790 census; a few old newspapers: printed material — larger than average amount; and Microfilm and Readers.

The foremost purpose of the society (and local chapters) is to aid anyone interested in obtaining genealogical and historical material for the purpose of restoring our fastly disappearing records and history.

The local society will hold the next meeting, 2:30 p.m., Saturday May 25th in the court room of the Ouachita Parish court house. A special program has been planned. The public is invited.
